Wind, Rain Pound Marin; San Rafael Power Failure

Rash Of 101 Accidents During Commute Hour

A strong prewinter storm moved into Marin today, causing traffic tie-ups on Highway 101 and knocking out power in a section of San Rafael for up to almost four hours.

The weather front which moved into Northern California about 3 a.m. brought rains whipped by strong winds. The wind peaked at about 6 a.m. with gusts of up to 43 miles an hour reported at Tiburon.

Minor accidents on the Golden Gate Bridge and on Highway 101 near the Highway 17 overpass in San Rafael at about 7:30 a.m. slowed southbound commuter traffic, the California Highway Patrol reported.

A Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. boom truck overturned on Highway 101 about 10 a.m. south of the Greenbrae overpass when its brakes locked on the wet highway.

Sausalito reported .44 inches of rain in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today. Novato had .70 inches in the same period and San Rafael also had .70 inches in the 24 hours ending at noon.

About 2,000 businesses and residences in the northern part of San Rafael were without electricity for a time after winds blew a tree limb into a 12,000-volt power line in the vicinity of Prospect, Chula Vista and Coleman drives.

Ouster Of Smog Boss Is Demanded

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials, bitterly divided among themselves as they groped with a controversial move to fire their legal officer, were confronted yesterday with demands that their top administrator be fired instead.

The all-day meeting of Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors was the longest and most acrimonious in memory. Charges of lying, bad staff morale, coddling polluters, conflict of interest and illegal meetings took up much of the nearly seven-hour-long meeting.

The emotional session erupted over the personnel committee's recommendation of last month that district counsel Matthew S. Walker be fired. He and the district's top administrator, D. J. Callaghan, have feuded for years — and Walker has charged Callaghan with shielding industrial polluters from legal action.

Nothing was settled yesterday, however, and a public hearing previously set for Jan. 5 to air charges against Walker for the first time was postponed indefinitely. The personnel committee had been given until yesterday by the board to prepare the unknown charges, but reported it had been unable to complete its mission.

Quickly stepping into the vacuum left by the personnel committee's failure to come up with charges, however, was a group of directors critical of Callaghan. One of them, San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein, suggested that the district's administrative code did not empower the personnel committee to recommend firing anyone.

The board decided to seek independent legal advice before proceeding further. And several directors reported privately that the first attorney asked to take the job of advising the board on the firing had refused to take the job.

The attorney, Louis Heilbron of San Francisco, reportedly backed out on the ground that

By MARY LEYDECKER

Angela Davis, who had spent almost a year in the Marin County Jail, was whisked in a driving rainstorm before dawn today to a cell in Santa Clara County's jail at Palo Alto.

"It was a routine transfer," said a spokesman for the Marin Sheriff's Department.

Miss Davis rode in an unmarked car and was accompanied by Sheriff's Capt. Harvey Teague, matron Evelyn Gosser and two deputies. Another unmarked car from Santa Clara County preceded the car in which the 27-year-old black militant rode.

Although about 15 of Miss Davis's supporters spent a good part of the night in a vigil outside the Marin Hall of Justice, they had been driven away by the cold and rain before she left shortly before 6 a.m.

Santa Clara County officials said they received a phone call from Marin officials at about 1 a.m., indicating that the transfer, which had been planned for later in the morning, was being moved ahead.

A Marin sheriff's spokesman said the time change was made because of the rain and in order to avoid commuter traffic.

There were no problems during the 75-minute ride, he said.

Miss Davis was taken to a small cell in the north county courts building in Palo Alto. Santa Clara Sheriff James Geary said although he had earlier contemplated "knocking out a wall" to enlarge a cell, he did not now think it was necessary.

He said there were two other women prisoners in the small jail today.

The Palo Alto facility was chosen over the Milpitas jail, where most Santa Clara County women prisoners are housed, because the former has a direct corridor from the jail into the building's only courtroom.

Miss Davis's case was transfered to Santa Clara County on the orders of Judge Richard E. Arnason, who personally inspected courts and jails of three counties suggested by the state Judicial Council.

Although the former university instructor's lawyers had asked a change of venue from Marin County, they have opposed the switch to Santa Clara County, saying residents there were equally or more prejudiced against their client.

They had asked the trial of Miss Davis, charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in connection with the August 1970 shoot-out at the Civic Center, be held in San Francisco.

They filed today for a writ of prohibition in the district Court of Appeals in San Francisco, asking an order barring the proceedings in Santa Clara County. The appellate court is expected to act next week on the request.

Also sent to Santa Clara County today were the huge file

3 Student Leaders Face Recall Ballot

Three student government leaders at Tamalpais High School, accused of not taking their jobs seriously and not representing a majority of the student body, will face a recall election next week.

Students will vote Thursday, Dec. 9, on whether student body president Nicholas Harris and vice-president Matthew White should be removed from office. The next day, sophomores will vote on the recall of Paul Cohen, sophomore class president and president of the Marin County Youth Commission.

The issue, according to sophomore Lars P. Enevoldsen, who is spearheading the recall drive under a provision of the school's 18-month-old constitution, is simply that the student government is a do-nothing body.

It is the third recall attempt in the memory of principal Raymond J. Bell, who has been at the school for 21 years, but is the first involving more than one student body officer. The other two attempts, which were successful, Bell said, also were based on allegations that the officers were not doing their jobs properly.

Enevoldsen, who ran against Cohen for sophomore class president last spring, charged that Harris, White and Cohen "don't take their jobs seriously, and they don't represent most of the students at the school."

He said White, who presides over the 12-member executive council's weekly meetings, "gets started on one thing, and doesn't finish but goes on to something else," resulting in what Enevoldsen believes is a waste of time.

In response, White said he would be the first to admit the student government "hasn't done everything that could have been done" but has been gaining momentum since school opened in September and is now beginning to accomplish things.

He cited the executive council's stout defense of fired English teacher Kenneth A. Anderson, ousted by the Tamalpais High School District board in the spring of 1970 after principal Bell accused him of fostering antisocial attitudes among students.

The executive council yesterday passed a resolution endorsing "less stress on competition, less resemblance to the military" and a program by which students could get physical education credits for sports activities on their own time.

As for not taking their jobs seriously, White said, "We en-

Campaign Funding For 1972 Killed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House-Senate conferees today scuttled a Democratic plan for taxpayer financing of the 1972 Presidential election campaign but voted a proposal that would affect the 1976 race.

The tax negotiators, facing a threat that President Nixon would veto his own tax relief bill, if it contained any form of the election financing scheme, drastically changed the Senate-approved plan.

They did vote for a similar plan, but it will not affect next year's races —only presidential elections thereafter.

The basic plan remains the same. It would allow taxpayers to designate on their tax returns $1 of their taxes to the presidential campaign of the party of their choice, or check a nonpartisan box.

Under the original plan, the financially hard pressed Democrats and the Republicans, with no apparent worries about funds for next year, would have been eligible for up to $20.4 million each in 1972. Republi-

Historic Stinson Beach Hotel Destroyed By Fire

By GEORGE NEVIN

The old Sea Beach Hotel on Shoreline Highway in Stinson Beach, built in 1915 but more recently converted into a private residence, was destroyed today by a flash fire that threatened to spread to the remainder of the community.

"We came close to losing the whole town," said Asst. Fire Chief James V. Stevens.

As it was, the 24 to 30-room hotel, closed to guests since 1946 and more recently called the Grand Hotel, sustained between $40,000 and $50,000 damage.

Firemen responding to the first alarm at 2:20 a.m. found the old structure "completely involved in flames," Stevens said.

"By the time we got there the fire had spread to the third floor and the building was doomed," Stevens said.

Heat from the intense fire shot burning two-by-fours and sparks into the air and several small grass fires were ignited on a hill behind the hotel.

Stevens said 12 members of the Stinson Beach Volunteer Fire Department, aided by about 100 spectators, concentrated on saving the Stinson Beach Motel next door. Three units of the 10-unit motel were scorched by flames.

Firemen later today were unable to determine the cause of the blaze, but Stevens said it was thought to have been started by someone sleeping in the building, used as an informal hotel by itinerants.

The hotel's owners, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Peppart, were not at home. Investigators today were sifting the ashes to determine if anyone perished in the blaze.

Many property owners were routed from their beds to protect their homes from sparks and embers, which were carried many hundreds of feet by strong southwest winds. The owner of the nearby Sand Dollar restaurant, Albert K. Engel, hosed the roof of his eatery while firemen battled the blaze.

Stevens said the fire was under control in 45 minutes.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Proposal Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has rejected a proposal to require more informative labeling of food products, it was announced today by five law students who campaigned for the idea before the FDA, Congress and the public.

After more than six months of consideration, the FDA told the students it lacked legal authority to issue the proposed regulation. The agency said it would ask Congress to pass a new law requiring the labeling information, and in the meantime would urge food processors to list ingredients voluntarily.

Most foods are now required to list ingredients on the label. The students' proposal would have extended the requirement to standardized foods — products with recipes fixed by FDA regulation. These products account for about 20 per cent of the American food supply and range from cola and mayonnaise to bread, peanut butter and jelly, all without label-listed ingredients.

Gunman Wounded

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — British troops shot and wounded a gunman in Londonderry today. In Belfast, thousands of Northern Ireland families invited British soldiers to spend Christmas with them, an army spokesman said.

An army spokesman said soldiers shot and wounded the gunman when a car pulled out of the Roman Catholic Bogside area on Londonderry, screeched past an army roadblock then reversed in an attempt to ram the soldier who flagged down the vehicle.

Troops at the roadblock fired rubber bullets at the reversing car and smashed the rear window. A soldier fired two shots into the car when a gun barrel poked through the jagged edges of the smashed car window and a passenger slumped forward, the spokesman said.

NAACP Figure Dead At 93

NEW YORK (UPI) — Arthur B. Spingarn, a member of the white family which helped found the NAACP and its president for 25 years, died in his sleep at his apartment Wednesday. He was 93.

Spingarn

Spingarn, regarded a militant when the NAACP was founded in 1909 but viewed as an old-fashioned traditionalist by many young civil rights activists in recent years, served as president of the nation's largest and oldest civil rights organization from 1940 until 1965. When he retired at 88, declaring he was getting too old, he was named honorary president for life.

A prominent lawyer, Spingarn became chairman of what was then the NAACP National Legal Committee in 1911. One of his early victories was in 1927, when the Supreme Court ruled in favor of the NAACP in a challenge against an all-white election primary in Texas.

My Lai Witnesses

FT. MEADE, Md. (UPI) — The jury trying Col. Oran K. Henderson on My Lai coverup charges will hear two witnesses of its own choosing Friday and a third one on Monday.

This was announced Wednesday after the panel of two generals and five colonels deliberated all day long in private. The court-martial, now in its fourth month, was in recess today. Henderson, 51, former brigade commander in Vietnam, has been on trial since Aug. 23 on charges of inadequately investigating the 1968 assault on the hamlet of My Lai 4, failing to report to superiors, and making a false official statement.

The jury's request to hear the three new witnesses could delay final deliberations on Henderson's guilt or innocence beyond the Dec. 10 target completion date set by the military judge, Col. Peter S. Wondolowski.

Queen's Upkeep

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II should get a 106 per cent pay hike and the nation should pay out a total of $2.5 million a year on the upkeep of its royal family, a parliamentary committee said today.

The committee, headed by Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber, recommended the queen's present pay of $1.187 million should be boosted to $2.45 million.

It also recommended big boosts for her husband, Prince Philip, Queen Mother Elizabeth and other members of her family.

Crucifixion Told

MANILA (UPI) — Defense Secretary Efren Plana said today he had received reports that Moslem insurgents had crucified a Christian teacher in another incident of the growing violence between the two religious groups in the Southern Philippines.

Plana said the reports came from Gov. Aresenio Quibranza of Lanao del Norte province and the Rev. Thomas Callanan, a Roman Catholic priest.

Plana said he had asked authorities in the area, 450 miles south of Manila, to confirm the incident.

POW Demand

PARIS (UPI) — The United States demanded today at the Vietnam peace talks that the Communists give "decent treatment" to U.S. prisoners and allow them to write to their families.

An allied negotiator said Hanoi ignored the issue.

Pham Dang Lam, South Vietnamese ambassador to the talks, told newsmen after the four-hour 137th session that the Communists again refused to discuss either the prisoner of war question of the standing U.S. proposal for an immediate cease-fire.

Menzies' Stroke

Pakistani Jets Strafe India Town

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Three Patkistani F86 Sabrejets today strafed the airfield at the Indian border town of Agartala after a night of artillery shelling which killed five persons and wounded 45, in the town, spokesmen reported in Calcutta and New Delhi.

Agartala, the capital of Tripura territory, is 56 miles northeast of the East Pakistani capital of Dacca and has a population of 60,000. The air attack there was the first time Pakistani aircraft have been reported firing on Indian territory.

A military spokesman in announcing the attack said the local Indian army commander in Agartala has been ordered to take appropriate defensive action. In the past, such "defensive actions" have meant Indian army forays into Pakistani territory.

There have been several instances in which Pakistani planes have been reported flying over Indian territory and in the most serious of these the Indian air force said it shot down three Pakistani Sabrejets on Nov. 22. But those were more or less reconnaissance missions and no fire was directed at Indian positions.

Indian spokesmen said Indian antiaircraft guns opened up on the Pakistani planes which flew back into East Pakistan. One Sabrejet was reported hit and was last seen flying back into East Pakistan at a low altitude.

Military spokesmen said the air attack on Agartala followed eight hours of "unprovoked" shelling during the night and this morning. They said the town had been placed under a curfew by local authorities and that the shelling continued.

An Indian spokesman said East Pakistani rebels had surrounded a government airstrip in the Sylhet area and that Indian forces still held control of a major north-south Pakistani railway in the Dinajpur area of the frontier.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, in an address to political workers today, said the world's major powers should mind their own business and let India find its own solution to the crisis with Pakistan.

"The times have passed when any nation sitting three or four thousands miles way could give orders to Indians on the basis of their color superiority to do as they wished ... today we will do what is in our best national interests and not what these socalled big nations would like us to do," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Mrs. Gandhi made her remarks to a group of political workers

U.N. Middle-East Debate Is Postponed

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— Debate on the tense Middle East situation, originally scheduled to begin today, was postponed until Friday until the latest peace delegation to the troubled area could arrive from Africa.

Presidents Leopold Senghor of Senegal and Maj. Yakubu Gowan of Nigeria, Foreign Minister Mario Cardoso of Zaire and State Minister William Eteki of Cameroon met with both Arab and Israel leaders recently to try to work out a peaceful solution to the problem.

Some U.N. sources said unofficially another reason for the postponement —requested by Egypt —was to prevent a conflict with publicity from Israel Prime Minister Goldo Meier's talks in Washington with President Nixon.

Nixon's Pledges To U.S. Oldsters

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon pledged today to work for a minimum annual income for older people and to press for programs to reverse the "growing sense of isolation and insecurity" among people over 65.

In an address to the White House Conference on Aging, on the last day of a five-day meeting, Nixon also promised the 3,500 delegates to seek tax relief for the elderly.

Other pledges were improvement of private pension systems, upgrading of nursing home care, and expansion of programs to allow the elderly to continue contributing to society after retirement.

Moments before Nixon addressed the conference, the delegates approved resolutions asking for a minimum annual income of $4,500 for an aged couple.

The President told the delegates: "As we consider your suggestions, we will be guided by this conviction: Any action which enhances the dignity of older Americans enhances the dignity of all Americans. For unless the American dream comes true for our older generation, it cannot be complete for any generation.

"This country will have to be at its best if we are to meet the challenge of competition in the world in the 1970s. And we cannot be at our best if we keep our most experienced players on the bench.

"Yet in recent years a gulf has been opening between older Americans and the rest of our people. This gulf is the product, in large measure, of a great social revolution which has weakened the traditional bonds of family, neighborhood and community. For millions of older Americans, the result has been a growing sense of isolation and insecurity.

Arizona's Miss X Gets Her Man

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI)—Marie Savinon, the 18-year-old "Miss X" who advertised for a husband so she could keep her brothers and sisters together, has chosen a Lebanese premedical student for her mate out of hundreds of proposals received since Monday.

The pair tried to get married Wednesday at a chapel at Winterhaven, Calif., but the girl did not have the required birth certificate.

"He is not well to do," Miss Savinon said of her future husband, Imond "Bob" Katton, 22. "But he is the most honest one, the one person who is right for me."

Miss Savinon, and Katton, a foreign exchange student living in Phoenix, obtained the required blood tests at a Yuma laboratory Wednesday morning.

However, the wedding chapel refused them a license because the girl had only a baptismal certificate instead of a birth cirtificate.

Katton, a pre-med student at Phoenix College, said the delay was only temporary.

The plight of "Miss X" was disclosed in a Phoenix newspaper Monday. She said she had been told by an attorney the only way she could keep her family together was to get married.

Miss Savinon's father is dead, her mother severely ill, and she has heen forced to care for her sisters, ages 2, 4, 13, and 16. She said she wanted to marry a man with "means and good character" who would take care of them.

Since the newspaper article appeared, along with her telephone number, the girl has received a continual stream of calls from all over the country.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Ruby Savinon, said Katton chose reading selections which he recited to the girl as his proposal.

"Marie was enthralled by his reading," he said. "Her face glowed as he read to her. He told her in his heavy accent, 'When I finish this, this is a proposal. Tell me your answer.'

"When he stopped reading, he said 'I've finished my proposal. What do you say?'"

Mrs. Savinin said her daughter answered "yes ... yes."

Rogers In Paris

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers will arrive Sunday to prepare for President Nixon's meeting with French President Georges Pompidou and to discuss the international drug problem, government sources said today.

McCloskey Ads Respond To Spiro

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backers of Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., who is challenging President Nixon for renomination, charged today that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew had labeled McCloskey a traitor.

In advertisements placed in newspapers across the country, a group called "McCloskey Volunteers" also sought money to help McCloskey's campaign.

The ads are in reference to Agnew's comment Nov. 18 in French Lick, Ind., at a meeting of GOP governors that McCloskey was so low on money that he "has had to sell his favorite painting, Benedict Arnold crossing the Delaware."

"Agnew shouldn't get away with that," the advertisement says. "What does Agnew mean? Is Pete McCloskey a Benedict Arnold because he won't put his party before his country, because he won't let party loyalty keep him from disclosing deception and misrepresentation in government?"

A. E. Toffel, listed on the ad as chairman of the McCloskey Volunteers and also McCloskey's campaign manager, said the ads were paid for by California industrialist Norton Simon "and a few of his friends."

"Mr. Simon feels deeply that honest debate is vital to the health and future of the Republican Party and deplores the tasteless tactics used by Mr. Agnew," Toffel said.

Two Dead, Nine Missing In Fire

HAMMOND, Ontario (UPI)—Two adults and nine children were missing and presumed dead today after fire destroyed a farmhouse in this community 25 miles east of Ottawa.

Provincial Police said the two parents and their children apparently were trapped in the wood farmhouse when fire broke out about 2 a.m. EST.

Two children, aged about 11 and 12, escaped and were reported in satisfactory condition at Monfort Hospital in Ottawa.

The fire burned until after dawn.

Police said they were trying to determine whether all 13 members of the family had been in the house when the blaze broke out.

'Fantastic Detail' In Phobos Pictures

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A photograph showing "fantastic detail" of the 16 by 13 mile Martian moon Phobos was hailed by scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory Wednesday as a "fantastic" achievement for Mariner 9.

Phobos appeared like a bizarre human skull with a huge, misplaced eye socket. The clarity of the photograph was in striking contrast to those of Mars itself which has been cloaked in a dust storm since Sept. 21, well before Mariner went into orbit Nov. 13.

JPL revealed that it received late Tuesday on the "hot line" from Moscow details of the orbit of the Soviets' Mars 2 probe, the 10,000-pound spacecraft which joined Mariner in circling the planet last Saturday.

The Russian message gave details on the farthest and nearest points that Mars 2 was circling from the planet and the time of orbit.

However, there was not yet any information on any scientific data that might have been gathered so far.

Scientists at JPL were intensely curious about the article in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia indicating Mars 2 and its following twin, Mars 3, were equipped to scoop soil from the Martian surface and study it for life forms.

American experiments of that nature have been limited principally to observations made from orbit about the presence of water or water vapor on the surface of Mars— considered essential to support any form of vegetable or animal life known to earth.

Cambodia Suffers Worst Defeat Of Present War

By KATE WEBB

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Communist troops chopped up a 10,000 man Cambodian government task force north of Phnom Penh yesterday and sent it fleeing in disarray with 5,000 civilian refugees, government spokesmen said today. It appeared to be Cambodia's worst defeat of the war.

The force was part of a 20,000-man government campaign aimed at opening Highway 6 north of the capital but spokesmen said the northern half abandoned the towns of Baray and Kompong Thmar, 66 and 72 miles north of Phnom Penh, and fled on foot and in trucks under heavy fire.

The Communists cut the 20,000-man force in two last October when North Vietnamese captured the town of Romlong, six miles to the south, inflicting an estimated 2,000 casualties. The southern force of 10,000 men was reported under attack today.

Collapse of the government positions at Baray and Kompong Thmar dealt a major blow to the Cambodian efforts to blunt a Communist dry season offensive. Military sources said the Cambodians lost the equivalent of nearly a division in teams of combat effectives in the three towns.

U. S. fighters and bombers were called in to destroy tanks and other war material abandoned by the Cambodians so the arms would not fall into the hands of the Communists. U. S. air support had failed earlier to stem the Communist drive.

Military sources said the route of the Cambodians meant that a substantial portion of the 10,000 man northern half of the Highway 6 column had been destroyed as a fighting force although survivors were expected to make their way along the dirt roads to other areas.

The northern group had been under two days of sustained mortar, rocket, automatic and recoilless rifle fire and hand to hand combat was reported Wednesday. Unconfirmed reports reaching Phnom Penh today said the Communists had attacked the towns of Tiang Kauk, Prakham and Skoun where the southern half of the task force is quartered.

The government issued no casualty reports on today's operation but said at least eight battalions and possibly 10 were involved in the retreat—an indication all of the Cambodian troops in that immediate area were in flight.

Field reports said the troops at Baray and the civilians fled west and north of the town. The high command said the retreat at Kompong Thmar was ordered "to save the wounded." The wounded included Lt. Col. Oum Savouth, the brigade commander at Kompong Thmar.

There was no report on the number of wounded but field reports said the two towns came under intense attack from freshly reinforced Communist troops on Monday and that the Communists have since hit the position day and night with rockets, mortars, recoilless rifles and automatic weapons.

Both towns had been cut off from all but air drop resupply since the fall of Romlong. Field reports today said between four and six battalions that fled Kompong Thmar were headed for the town of Taing Krasaing, six miles to the north.

The ill-fated government push which tied up 20,000 troops for 15 months was aimed at cutting across Communist infiltration and supply routes. At one point last September the government said the Cambodian column stretched through Communist occupied territory all the way to Kompong Thom and that the road was in government hands but "not yet safe for travel."

In Vietnam, four Americans were killed and four injured, two seriously, when two helicopters collided on landing 150 miles southwest of Saigon.

The accident occurred soon after the choppers had landed a force of South Vietnamese soldiers in the U Minh Forest.

As renewed warfare exploded on both sides of the Vietnamese-Cambodian border, South Vietnamese forces reported capturing the town of Dam Be in the Cambodian rubber country Wednesday but ran into stiff fighting on the Vietnamese side of the frontier in the Central Highlands.

On the civilian front, the Viet Cong threw a grenade into a crowd watching a play in the marketplace of Thuan Luan, 42 miles northwest of Saigon, killing 11 villagers and wounding 37.

As if to mark the suddenly increased tempo of the war, the U.S. command today announced that nine Americans were killed in action last week, the heaviest death toll in two months, and 78 wounded.

The death toll was the highest since the week ending Oct. 2 when 21 GI's were reported killed. But it was far less than South Vietnamese and guerrilla battle deaths for the week, which totaled 439 and 1,331, respectively.

American battlefield deaths for nearly 11 years of Indochina warfare now total 45,613, compared to 130,155 South Vietnamese killed in action and 784,762 guerrillas.

TAXES

cans served notice they would refuse it.

The issue set off a hot exchange on the Senate floor this morning with Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott accusing Democrats of "being partisan without principle" in pushing the plan. He made the statement in a shouting match with Sen. Fred R. Harris, DOkla.

The exchange erupted when Scott sarcastically noted that fewer than half a dozen senators were present for the final round of debate on the nomination of Earl L. Butz to be Agriculture secretary. He compared this to almost unanimous attendance during consideration recently of the public financing program pushed by Democrats.

"You get a far bigger crowd for the sweet smell of green money," Scott remarked. Harris demanded if Scott was accusing foes of Butz of partisanship.

"No, we're not accusing you of being partisan," Scott shouted. "We're accusing you of being partisan without principle. We're accusing you of being partisan in raiding the U.S. Treasury —of the clear, cold ruthless, sharply cutting effect of being able to slice enough funds from the Treasury to finance yourselves."

Scott continued that President Nixon would veto his own tax reduction bill if it contained — as it did while House-Senate conferees were continuing to work on a compromise bill — the $1 per taxpayer checkoff authorization for campaign financing.

Harris yelled back, "Well, let me tell you, if he does veto that bill, there's not going to be any tax bill this year."

The chairman of the conferees, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Wednesday that the compromise bill being worked out by conferees would contain the Democratic financing plan. Nixon had objected to more than $12 million in additional tax cuts added by the Senate and the conferees eliminated most of those.

But the administration insisted that Nixon would stand by a threat he made Monday to veto the bill if it reached him with the financing feature still in it.

For the fourth consecutive day, the White House said today Nixon would veto the bill if it included "any form" of the plan. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the conferees had "moved closer to the ball park" in removing the additional Senate tax cuts but added:

"The President does not favor the tax check off and will veto any form of the bill that comes down."

Scott told Harris, a former Democratic National Chairman and a recent, brief aspirant for the party's 1972 presidential nomination, that Nixon would not sacrifice his economic program "on the altar of Democratic rapacity and avarice." Of Harris' threat that Democrats would not pass another tax bill if this one were vetoed, Scott said:

"Well, you just try to get away with that —you just try it. Stand up, stand up and say to 1.3 million car buyers who think they are going to get a $200 rebate on the excise tax once the tax bill is passed. You just stand up and tell them that 'We Democrats are the party of the people and so we'll just take your 200 bucks away from you' ... Try it, try it, and watch what happens to you in the next election."

As for the charge that he goes from one subject to another at meetings, White said the council often tables matters that come before it in order to give the body more time to study the proposals, but the matters always come back for council action later.

Under an amendment to the school constitution adopted by the executive council yesterday, recall requires a vote of a majority of the constituents of a student officer, rather than a majority of what is called the general assembly.

The general assembly consists of the students who attend a monthly meeting at which actions of the executive council are discussed and overturned if they're not popular. White said attendance at the assemblies recently has been about 30.

Instead of leaving the recall question up to this bare fraction of Tamalpais High's 1,800 students, the council voted yesterday to hold the election during school hours next week instead of at a general assembly meeting.

Enevoldsen, who on Tuesday handed in his recall petition bearing 25 signatures, yesterday withdrew the document and then resubmitted it so that next week's recall election will be held under the amended constitution.

If any of the officers is recalled, the council decided yesterday, replacements will be elected Dec. 16.

Enevoldsen declined to say whether he'd run for any of the positions in the event of a successful recall, but said he thought he could do a better job than Harris, White or Cohen.

FIRE

The Stinson Beach department was aided by members of the Bolinas Volunteer Fire Department and the Marin County Fire Department.

An automobile parked behind the hotel was destroyed, but by a fluke the left front tire remained untouched by flames and was still inflated when firemen found it.

Dubbed the Grand Hotel in 1963 but known to old-timers as the Sea Beach, the structure was built in 1915 by the Airey family of Stinson Beach. It was closed in 1937 but reopened during World War II to house servicemen and their families stationed near Stinson Beach.

It was closed again in 1946 and sold by the Airey family in 1963. Plans to reopen the hotel never materialized, and the Pepparts had been converting the building to a home for themselves.

For many years the hotel was the headquarters of the Dipsea Indians, a group of hikers from the San Francisco Olympic Club who founded the Dipsea race from Mill Valley Stinson Beach.

The hotel was the second historic West Marin hotel to burn down this month. On Nov. 5 the 93-year-old Marshall hotel was destroyed by an early morning blaze that routed guests.

'Delivery Man' Is A Robber

MIAMI (UPI) — Detectives are searching for the "flower delivery man" who, instead of sending flowers by wire, robbed the wire office with a flower.

The man appeared in a Miami Western Union office Tuesday night with a box, saying he had some flowers to deliver.

Miss Marsha Kazienk had locked herself in the office, because a few weeks ago a gunman took a delivery man hostage and robbed the office.

But when she opened the door and let the flower man in, he then pulled a gun, ordered her to drop to the floor, and looted the safe of about $2,000 with which he fled.

When Miss Kazienk opened the flower box she found a rose and a thank-you note.

Homing Pigeon Far From Home

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) —Cattleman Jim Tuite said today he found an exhausted homing pigeon which had a Hanover, Germany, address strapped to its leg.

Hanover is about 10,000 miles from Tuite's ranch at Tilbooroo, Cunnamulla, 500 miles west of Brisbane.

"I found the bird in the stables at the back of the homestead," Tuite said. "It looked ready to drop dead it was so exhausted."

He said the pigeon was blue with a fine blue sheen sloping down from its neck.

Movie House Plan Approved

The Novato Plan Review Committee last night approved plans by Kenneth Rosenberg for a 150-seat motion picture theater at Nave and Marin Valley drives.

Terms Which Face Kraemer

Because of a dropped line, a story in yesterday's Independent-Journal gave false information about possible sentences faced by a Bolinas attorney who pleaded guilty to marijuana charges in San Francisco.

Attorney Harry J. Kraemer faces maximum sentences of a year in prison and a $5,000 fine on a marijuana possession charge and of five years and a $15,000 fine on a felony conspiracy complaint.

reported seeing a pale green flash and hearing a loud noise as the power went out at 5:46 a.m. Ted Fuller, a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. spokesman, said the flash may have been an arc on the line similar to the flash when a light bulb blows out. .

Fuller said service was restored to 1,600 customers at 6:32 a.m. and the remaining 400 customers had power back at 9:30 a.m.

Rainfall reported for the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. in other Marin communities included .45 inches at Tiburon, .80 at Terra Linda, .81 at both San Anselmo and Marinwood and .83 at Woodacre.

Small craft warnings were lowered and gale warnings were flown from Point Sur northward.

Travelers warnings were posted for heavy snow, blowing and drifting in strong winds covering the Sierra Nevada mountains by tonight. Snow level was expected to reach as low as 2,500 feet in the north and 4,500 feet in the southern mountains.

Strawberry Robbery Plea

Judge Robert A. Smallman set the preliminary hearing for Dec. 14.

Luncheon Tomorrow To Honor Bagley

Marin Supervisors will host a special luncheon tomorrow for Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, in recognition of his legislative efforts for Marin County.

The luncheon will be held at noon at the West End Villa in San Rafael and will be attended by various city officials as well as supervisors.

of transcripts and other legal documents, amassed during the months of pretrial proceedings in Marin, and the evidence in the case, including the guns used in the shoot-out.

A sheriff's escort accompanied a county clerk in delivering the documents to San Jose, according to County Clerk George H. Gnoss.

Miss Davis's clothes and the piles of books and legal documents she kept in a work cell in the Marin jail were picked up last night by her attorneys, according to sheriff's officers.

No new court date has been set in Palo Alto, but prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr. said today he expected one "very soon." He also said he anticipated the long-delayed trial will get under way in January.

Ocean Liners Sale Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House has passed and sent to the Senate legislation which would authorize the sale of five mothballed U.S. ocean liners which were built with the aid of federal subsidies.

The ships, which would be sold to foreign buyers, include the Constitution, Brasil, Argentina, Santa Paula and the Santa Rosa. In addition, the Commerce Department would be allowed to purchase the SS United States and add it to the National Defense Reserve Fleet. The House estimated that sale of the six ships — to whose construction the government contributed $112 million — would net $25 million, which would be reinvested in construction of new cargo ships.

No Drinking For 18-Year-Olds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate has slammed the saloon door on 18-year-olds by defeating a proposed constitutional amendment permitting them to drink.

But the Assembly has voted final legislative passage to a bill enabling teen-aged girls to get contraceptives without parental consent.

The proposed amendment by Assemblyman Robert Cline, R-Canoga Park, was overwhelmingly rejected on a 9-14 vote, only one-third of the number needed to place it before voters.

Foreign Aid Ceiling Accord

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A House-Senate conference committee reached tentative agreement Thursday on a foreign aid ceiling of about $2.8 billion.

The House originally authorized appropriations of $3.4 billion and the Senate $2.6 billion.

But Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, R-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and spokesman for the House conferees, acknowledged that a key stumbling block remained —a Senate rider to establish as "national policy" the withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Indochina in six months.

OBITUARIES

Sampson W. Olsen Dies At 73

Funeral will be held Saturday for Sampson W. Olsen, former partner in Sam's Anchor restaurant in Tiburon, and a resident of the Tiburon Peninsula for more than seven decades.

Olsen died Tuesday in a San Leandro rest home at the age of 73.

He was a second-generation native of the Tiburon area, born in the old California City neighborhood. He and his family lived until two years ago on the shore at San Rafael Avenue off Tiburon Boulevard. Family members operated a shipbuilding business and docked fishing vessels there for many years.

After leaving the restaurant business 20 years ago, he worked as a carpenter until his retirement. He was a member of Carpenters' Union Local 35 of San Rafael.

He is survived by two stepdaughters, Betty Ann Cretser of San Lorenzo and Maxine Heppler of Bellevue, Wash., four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Grissom's San Lorenzo Chapel, followed by private inurnment.

MRS. PAGANETTI

Funeral for Carol Paganetti, 46, lifelong San Rafael resident and descendent of Marin pioneers, has been held in San Rafael. Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

Mrs. Paganetti died Sunday at her home following a long illness.

Mrs. Paganetti, who lived at 7 Bayview Street, was the wife of Orlando P. Paganetti, an employee of the McNear Co.

Her grandfather, Charles Burkhart, was one of the first expressmen in San Rafael, and built the building now occupied by Crockett's Van and Storage Co. on B Street.

Although Mrs. Paganetti had no children, she was devoted to her six nieces and nephews.

New Marriage Rule Is Near

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The vatican is preparing a new set of rules which would enable Roman Catholics to get married in the eyes of their church without the presence of a priest, Vatican sources said today.

They said Pope Paul VI is expected to issue the document in the new year.

Marriage is one of the church's seven sacraments, but even now is administered by the wedding partners rather than by the priest, who acts merely as witness.

The new rules, according to the sources, are intended mainly for isolated areas where priests visit infrequently or not at all.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by her mother, Zada Hackman, and four sisters, Nona Shipley, Muriel Burd, Gloria Taylor and Laverne Pareto, all of San Rafael.

ADAM INFANT

Funeral for Dieter John Adam, infant son of Dieter and Inge Adam of Corte Madera, will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the Chapel of Light at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

The child died Tuesday in a local hospital at the age of 22 months. He was born in San Francisco.

He also is survived by four sisters, Sabine, Michaela, Brigitte and Monique Adam of the family home at 25 El Camino Drive, and two grandfathers, Fritz Neidhard and Walter Adam, both of Karlsruhe, Germany.

Friends may call at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, until 9 p.m. today.

Geothermal Plants' Operational Date

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Four geothermal power plants to be built in Sonoma County will be in operation by 1973, Thermal Power Co. predicted Wednesday.

Thermal president Dan A. McMillan, announcing construction permission had been granted by the State Public Utilities Commission, said operations on one unit are scheduled to start Aug. 1, 1972.

Another is slated to start Nov. 1, 1972, and the others in the next year.

Each unit is to produce 55,000 kilowatts.

Construction authority, which was granted to the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., had been protested by the Northern California Power Agency, which represents 11 cities that own and operate their own electric distribution systems.

The NCPA objected to rights obtained by PG&E to purchase geothermal steam power at the Geysers field from its owners, which are Thermal, Magma Power Co. and Union Oil Co.

As a result, the State Supreme Court referred the matter to the PUC for a determination of whether state anti-trust laws had been violated.

The PUC found that there was no monopoly since there are fields of geothermal steam which are not subject to the contract between PG&E and the Union-Magma-Thermal joint venture.

Legislators Draw Threats

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Five state legislators who voted for a state income tax earlier this year have received anonymous letters threatening them with "guerrilla violence ... and indiscriminate assassination."

The letters, hand printed in block letters, read in part: "If the legislature unhappily persists in these belligerent attempts to raid the wages of middle-income workers, it will provoke warlike reaction against the legislators."

"Since we lack political machinery and weapons, we must resort to guerrilla violence along with proscription and indiscriminate assassination if need be," the letters continued.

The letters were sent to House Speaker Charles F. Kurfess, R-Bowling Green, and four state senators, one a woman.

New Buses To Be Seen At Centers

The Golden Gate Bridge District's new buses will be displayed this weekend at five Marin shopping centers.

On Saturday, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., the displays will be in Mill Valley in front of the downtown bus depot, in San Anselmo at the Red Hill Shopping Center and in Belvedere at the Boardwalk.

On Sunday, also from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., displays will be at the Fair-Anselm Shopping Center in Fairfax, and the Bon Air Shopping Center in Greenbrae.

Local service in Marin will start Dec. 13, and commuter service to San Francisco is scheduled to begin on Jan 3. The district has 154 buses in its fleet.

Information on routes and schedules will be distributed by district officials at the displays.

A Telephone For The Handicapped

NEW YORK (UPI)—A device that dials telephone numbers when it "hears" spoken commands is being developed for the motion-handicapped by Bell Labs, it is reported in "The Sciences," journal of the New York Academy of Sciences.

Integrated circuitry converts the sound waves from the words into electrical pulses that open and close the electromechanical switches necessary for obtaining dial tone, dialing and terminating a call.

VANDALS' LEGACY

An abandoned Nike radar installation in the Black Canyon area of San Rafael is being ripped apart by vandals making unauthorized visits. Accoustical tiling and its wooden framework has been ripped from the ceiling (above) of a building stripped of salvagable materials when the Army moved out in May. A fence to the site (above left) has been bent from its closed position to allow easier access for marauders and a view of a smashed window through a smashed door (left) is indicative of the damage inflicted on the facility. The installation has been declared excess by the Army and the federal General Services Administration is beginning a survey of other federal agencies to see if any are interested in the site. If they aren't, it may be possible for the City of San Rafael to add it to an adjacent 539 acres acquired by the city as open space last year.

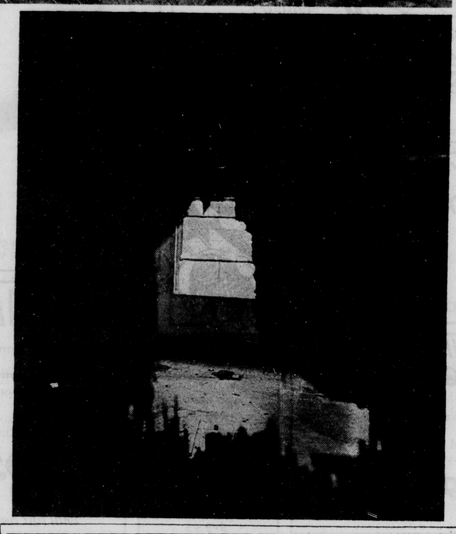
Parolee Pleads Innocent To Theft Of Auto

Kenneth Harvey Hicks, 39, a San Francisco artist and prison parolee, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of car theft.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set a preliminary hearing for Dec. 14.

Hicks was stopped on Highway 101 near Marinwood by California Highway Patrol on Nov. 24 because the car he was driving was weaving. Officers said they discovered the vehicle was reported stolen in San Francisco.

Patrolmen said Hicks's car was filled with paintings he had done in seven years of prison life. According to the patrolmen, Hicks said he was paroled in September and has been living in a halfway house for former inmates in San Francisco.



'Wry Catchers' At Boardwalk

The Wry Catchers, strolling singers in Renaissance dress, will inaugurate the Christmas season on the Belvedere Boardwalk on Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m.

The group has been heard in Marin at the Pleasure Faire, specializing in English catch songs. Their Boardwalk appearance Saturday and again on Dec. 18 will include seldom-heard English Christmas carols and holiday music.

Subsequent musical events on the Boardwalk will include the Del Mar School Choral Ensemble on Wednesday, the Street Musicians, Ken and Claire Cramer of San Francisco, on Dec. 11, and the Del Mar Chrous on Dec. 14.

Boardwalk Christmas events are sponsored by Boardwalk merchants.

ART REVIEW

Photographs Present Stunning Look At The Canada Seasons

By LAURA DEVENDORF

"Canada: A Year of the Land," seems much too spartan a line to describe the photographs which were shown last month at the Marin Civic Center and are being shown this month in the new county library at 707 Meadowsweet Drive in Corte Madera. Yet, their magnificence defies anything other than the simplest summation.

There's just too much to say — more importantly, to feel — about these stunning photographs which describe Canada's seasonal changes in both towns and in the open land. The Canada they show is vast, both in space and challenge, with nature much more personally intertwined with life than merely happening outside a steamy window glass or heard dimly through insulated walls and traffic.

Canada is very real and its summer is blue-cool. Horses graze, hay fields are worked, fishing boats put out to crystalline seas surrounded by a white whir of gulls, birds hatch, a polar bear splashes, a child reaches for a shrub and flowers bloom butter yellow by a misty lighthouse.

Then the colors grow more intense. They burn in red barns and autumn leaves set against blue skies, or in fallen leaves floating on black water. Dawn's sun warms a weathered barn to pink and later burns the edges of clouds and trees before it sinks at night over a black, cold, watery marsh.

By now the gathering chill is almost visible. The light thins and plays with a tugboat's smoke and churning wake. Then it casts a pale haze over steamy waterfalls and lakes where mist softens the calligraphy of spine-bare branches. Later, moonlight seems as cold as the stone monolith it silhouettes against the deep blue night.

Winter comes with ice-coated forests and towns lighted against the snow. The same hot-colored leaves of fall now are sugared with frost or stilled in their watery progression beneath a sheet of ice. Horses nuzzle the frozen ground looking for a missed blade of grass. Barns which seemed charmingly weathered in other seasons now seem set in bleak resistance to the ravages of winter. While frozen "longjohns" swing defiantly on a backyard line. Life moves heavily. So the stationary parts take on new interest such as the nightlighted factory gleaming like a Christmas tree, or the darkness broken by a lighted ball of igloo, or by the brief glint of light-struck train tracks.

In spring, turbulent freed waters, newborn fawns, birds' eggs, wet roads, mist and succulent, green, tender things growing out of it all, tell of the season change. And it is much too full and felt, as are the others, either to be adequately described or to be missed.

The award winning book, "Canada: A Year of the Land," for which these photographs by some of Canada's largest talents were made, was produced by the National Film Board of Canada. A copy will be presented to the Corte Madera library by the Canadian consul at the dedication, Dec. 11.

Life Will Cut Staff By 90

NEW YORK (UPI)—Life magazine, which plans to cut its circulation by 1.5 million in January, will eliminate approximately 80 to 90 jobs this week in an economy move.

Managing Editor Ralph Graves told a hastily called staff meeting Wednesday that about half the jobs would be editorial and the other half would be in circulation, advertising and noneditorial fields.

Life is facing an economic squeeze and has decided to cut its circulation from 7 million to 5.5 million beginning with he Jan. 14 issue.

More Males Are Wearing Hairpieces

NEW YORK (UPI) — An estimated 2.5 million American males wear hairpieces, according to a research company.

This is only 5 to 10 per cent of the nearly $1 billion wig market, but interest is steadily growing as embarrassment declines, says Arthur D. Little, Inc. About 80 per cent of today's wigs are made of human hair. Synthetic fibers, however, are making rapid inroads.

College Trustees Approve Plans For Kentfield Classroom Center

The center would contain classrooms for the social sciences, such as history, political science, the humanities, etc. The board was given the preliminary plans at its Nov. 17 meeting.

Board member Frances Compton questioned the concept of a classroom complex when the college is going into a different concept of cluster colleges. She wanted more time to study the plans and cast the only dissenting vote against them.

The Marin Community College District board also:

LECTURES — Approved concert-lecture series on: "Preservation of Wild Life," "Family of Man," "John Biggs Consort" and the third annual College of Marin Writers Conference.

APPLICATION — Approved a $32,144 application to the federal government for laboratory equipment with each paying $16,072 if approved.

SURVEY — Authorized spending $6,200 on survey of the Indian Valley Colleges site.

POSTPONED — Postponed until next Thursday renewal of the district's insurance and granting Marin County a 10-foot easement on property which the district has an option to purchase from Phillips Oil Co. for the widening of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

COURSES — Approved new adult courses in computer workshop for teachers, fantasy and science fiction and career decision for women.

PERSONNEL — Approved hiring chemistry and physics laboratory technicians at $706 per month each, a custodian receiving clerk at $656 per month and Alexandra Hall at $596 per month as independent study laboratory assistant.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. next Thursday.

Santa Rosan Implicated In Shoplifting

A Santa Rosa man was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of concealing stolen property after his two companions were arrested for shoplifting.

San Rafael police said they were called to the Emporium at Northgate Shopping Center at 6:45 p.m. yesterday to take custody of two women, aged 21 and 31, who had been caught shoplifting by an Emporium security guard.

As police were driving the women to jail, they asked if they could leave a note on Duncan's car in the Northgate parking lot to tell him they had been arrested.

As a police officer went to the car to leave the note, Duncan arrived at the car and police found more items taken from the Emporium and Roos Atkins stores in the car.

Therapist Found Dead Of Gunshot

San Rafael psychologist Martin Cohen, 31, of 109 Forrest Lane, was found dead last night with a gunshot wound in the head, apparently self-inflicted.

Marin County Deputy Coroner Donald Cornish said Cohen left no notes but a book entitled "Theory of Suicide" was found on the nightstand next to the bed on which he lay dead. The coroner said Cohen had been despondent since his separation from his wife, Marcia S. Cohen, now of 934 Lea Drive, San Rafael.

Cohen worked at the Family Therapy Institute of Marin in San Rafael. When he failed to show up for work yesterday, he friends called his wife, and together they went to Cohen's home and found him dead on his bed.

The deputy coroner said a .32-caliber revolver lay next to him. A bullet had entered the right temple.

Nixon Will Meet With Top Aides

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon decided to fly today to Florida for a weekend of conferences with top advisers on the forthcoming 1973 federal budget.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon and his aides expect to wrap up major budget decisions in three or four days.

Budget planning has been going on for six months and has now reached the stage where all the federal departmental and agency requests are in, Ziegler said.

The party with the President includes Budget Director George P. Shultz, Deputy Director Caspar Weinberger and the presidential counselor on domestic affairs, John D. Ehrlichman, and others.

"They have completed most of the process of consultation and now they will review the various departmental programs," Ziegler said.

He said "this is a key weekend," adding: "These are very important sessions and he (Nixon) will be working most of the time."

The new budget will be submitted 15 days after the start of the next session of Congress.

Against The Law

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) —It is against the law in Texas to report false information about a person's credit worthiness. The legislature enacted a law this year making it a misdemeanor for anyone to knowingly report false information to a credit rating bureau or to knowingly furnish false information regarding a person's credit status to a third party. Violators can be fined up to $200.

Senate Confirms Butz As Head Of Nixon's Agriculture Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Earl L. Butz won Senate confirmation today as President Nixon's new agriculture secretary. The vote was 51 to 44.

Butz, 62, dean of Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., will succeed Clifford M. Hardin, one of Nixon's 12 original Cabinet appointees.

Butz is returning to the department where he served as an assistant secretary under Ezra Taft Benson in the Eisenhower administration while Hardin accepted a top job with Ralston-Purina Co.

Some Democrats charged Butz would favor corporate agribusiness interests over family farmers and show little sympathy for programs to feed the hungry.

Butz responded with pledges of action to help improve sagging corn and wheat prices which have produced escalating unhappiness in some farm areas. In a personal round of lobbying with uncommitted senators, Butz promised to "work vigorously to protect and preserve the family farming system" and gave assurances of support for anti-hunger programs.

In closing Senate debate, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said: "I believe that net farm income in 1972 will improve measurably. This is President Nixon's goal. It is also Dr. Butz' objective.

Democrats continued in the final debate to charge that Butz' appointment foreshadowed hard times for farmers. The GOP counter-charged that Democrats were playing politics.

Previewing a possible Democratic campaign theme in 1972, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said Butz' appointment was bad

The Computer Must Be Taught Kindness

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — People talk about computers, with great respect, as though they were people.

But computers seem sometimes to treat people with contempt as though they were inferior machines.

At least, that is what Alphonse Chapanis seems to be saying.

Chapanis is professor of psychology at the Johns Hopkins University. He recently completed a series of experiments that convinced him people and computers are poorly matched when it comes to communicating with each other.

Man-machine exchanges are hampered, he says, because computers are "almost completely unforgiving of the many simple errors people make in ordinary communication."

Dr. Chapanis used teams of Baltimore area high school and college students in his experiments. One member of each team represented an information seeker — the computer user. Another took on the roll of the information source — the computer itself.

They tested among other things the effectiveness of four common ways of communicating: handwriting, typewriting, voice, and person-to-person contact.

Chapanis concluded that the teletypewriter, the chief means of man-machine communication now, is the least efficient mode.

His findings, according to the university, "shows that if computers are to be made more interactive, more responsive to people, the capacity to forgive such human frailties as misspelling, use of incomplete sentences, slips of the tongue, mispronunciations and the like will have to be designed into the machines."

In person-to-person communication such slight errors are seldom noticed and don't keep the message from getting across. But even the most minor slip by a human being can put the computer's back up and cause it to turn off, so to speak.

The experiments showed that in people-people communication, the voice is far more rapid and effective in conveying information than written communication.

The man-machine link is now the teletypewriter keyboard which, says Chapanis, is "not only slow but unnatural and even disruptive of the communication process."

So, according to Chapanis, "we will almost certainly have to snow computers with the ability to receive information and commands by voice — even in idiomatic language — and to respond in kind."

Then, the inference seems to be, computers will be less uppity and more forgiving.

At the turn of the century, one in every 500 Americans died annually of typhoid fever and cholera; today these diseases are practically unknown in this country.

Young Tiburon Cyclist Injured

Marin General Hospital reported today that Marc Horwitz, 17, of 4376 Paradise Drive, suffered concussion and a lacerated forehead, but was in good condition.

Larkspur police had been unable to complete a report on the accident, which happened on Magnolia Avenue at Skylark Drive, pending more information from the motorist involved. The driver took the youth to the hospital.

Vehicle Stolen From Montecito Park Lot

A 1966 white Volkswagen bus, with license plates VPS191, was stolen from the Montecito shopping center parking lot between 4 p.m. and 6:45 p.m. yesterday, San Rafael police reported today.

Larkspur Residency Clause Wiped Out

The Larkspur City Council last night unanimously wiped out the city's two-year residency requirement for public housing.

A the same time, however, the council went on record in favor of granting first preference for such housing to elderly persons.

Removal of the residency requirement came on the heels last month of a request by Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Department. He had noted the residency barrier had been declared discriminatory by a federal court.

With Larkspur's action, San Rafael is the lone city in Marin still to have a residency stipulation.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority, said Larkspur would now be eyed for leased housing units.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

HOSPITAL — Named a committee of Mayor Earl J. O'Grady, Councilman William G. Fleckles and City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst to meet with Marin Hospital District officials to explore annexation of Marin General Hospital to the city.

CATV — Approved sending a letter to Tele-Vue Systems of Marin expressing hope for new and improved cable television service to the city, and heard a resident of Hillview subdivision chastise the company for failing to respond to neighborhood complaints.

COMPOST — Decided against a proposed ordinance regulating organic composting, based on a letter from county health authorities saying they were inadequately staffed for inspection purposes. The proposal grew out of a city variance bid two months ago by an organic gardener.

LIBRARY — Named Edward Allen, principal of Greenbrae School, to the Larkspur Library Board, replacing Samuel T. Huey, who has moved to Ross.

SAFETY — Was given a plaque by the American Automobile Association for having no pedestrian fatalities in the city in the last 20 years.

DOWNTOWN — Deferred until its Jan. 5 meeting discussion of establishing a special downtown district for the purpose of maintaining a "Western-Victorian" architectural character.

APPEALS — Upheld for the time being city planning commission denial of fence variances for Pierre Josephs of 125 Locust Avenue and for Jean LaBlanc of 117 Locust Avenue, agreeing to review of fencing regulations, and upheld a decision by the park and recreation commission to permit removal of three city trees in danger of toppling on a home at 11 Bayo Vista Avenue.

INTERSECTION — Granted a 30-day extension for completion of the Magnolia Avenue-Doherty Drive improvement project because of a delay in utility installation, and asked for bids Feb. 2 to landscape the intersection.

CLOSED — Went into closed session to discuss the status of suits involving the city, including the battle with the One World Family commune and litigation over a ruptured main allegedly caused by flood control work.

FIRE ENGINE — Gained lease of a fire engine from a most unlikely source — the Sports Car Club of America. The engine, to be rented for $1 a year, is equipped especially for car fires and used by the club only for races it sponsors.

BILL — Voted to oppose AB 1098, by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, which would increase the cost of public safety pension benefits to municipalities and beneficiaries alike. Bathurst advised the legislation would cause a financial hardship on Larkspur.

Farm Employment Drops In California

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Farm employment in California stood at 252,300 in mid-November—a decrease of 54,900 from the previous month, the state Department of Human Resources Development reports.

In a report prepared for the state Board of Agriculture, the department said Wednesday most of the decline resulted from the near completion of the grape harvest with 31,000 pickers laid off.

No Free Rides At BART Opening

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Bay Area Rapid Transit District isn't going to offer free rides to celebrate the system's opening next March.

The Public Information Committee decided Wednesday to scrap plans for the inaugural bonus when the Fremont-to-Dakland line begins service.

Bathurst's Pay Hiked; No On Aide

Larkspur City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst won a pay raise last night from the city council, but his right-hand man didn't fare as well.

By unanimous vote, the council increased Bathurst's monthly pay from $1,667 to $1,750 — a boost within the new federal 5.5 per cent wage hike guidelines.

Councilman Neil Brixon noted the raise was "almost the same increase as other city employees got — 5 per cent." Those raises were voted at budget time, but Bathurst's was deferred.

While Bathurst moved up in pay, however, the appointment of his chief aide, Harlan Barry, to the proposed new post of assistant city manager and combined increase of his salary from $1,155 to $1,213 a month was deferred.

Mayor Earl J. O'Grady said he had asked that the matter be placed on the agenda, although Councilman Neil Brixon pointed out sharply that the council had agreed not to discuss Barry's elevation until it considered next year's budget.

Brixon also convinced the council — again at O'Grady's behest — to drop from the agenda consideration of including on the April ballot a request that councilmen receive salaries. A council election is scheduled in April.

Bathurst noted that pay for councilmen might conflict with new federal enconomic guidelines.

Kosygin Arrives For Denmark Talks

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived in Copenhagen today to plug the Kremlin's proposal for a European Security Conference. He made no comment.

Denmark's new Social Democratic Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag and his actress wife, Helle Virkner, greeted Kosygin and his daughter, Mrs. Ludmilla Gvishiani, as they flew in aboard a special Aeroflot flight to begin an official four-day visit to Denmark.

Greenbrae Service Area Idea Delayed

Amid a tangle of problems, the Larkspur City Council last night withheld a decision on whether to support formation of a service area in Greenbrae to maintain community landscaping.

A handful of residents — some supporting the special taxing district and others against it — turned out in the council chambers last night to debate the plan.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission endorsed the formation last month, but the city must consent under state law before the matter goes to the county board of supervisors.

The council grappled with several uncertainties before referring the issue to a special study committee composed of Greenbrae residents and city officials. One unknown was whether the city could contract with residents to provide landscaping of median strips and community entrances — a possibility raised by Councilman William G. Fleckles.

Two of his colleagues, Neil Brixon and Alfred Malvino, were firmly opposed to that, Brixon noting most of the landscaping would be required in Greenbrae's unincorporated portion. And Asst. City Atty. Robert B. Breckhus questioned the legality of the plan, although he said he would research the matter and report back at a special meeting on Dec. 15.

Further, the council was unclear over what effect its consent would have on the outcome of the plan. Breckhus said he would look into that, too.

Residents in the audience were split between those who disdained formation of another taxing agency and those who viewed as inadequate funds currently gained from property liens for landscaping purposes.

The board of supervisors will be asked at a hearing Dec. 28 to form the district, thus relieving the Greenbrae Property Owners Association of the landscaping task. The work formerly had been done by Greenbrae developer Neils L. Schultz Jr., but he bowed out under an option afforded him when the development was built in the 1940s.

Formation can be forced to a vote by signatures from at least 10 per cent of Greenbrae's 2,036 registered voters, or stopped entirely if the board of supervisors is presented with letters of protest from at least 50 per cent of the homes in the community.

About $14,000 a year is currently collected for landscaping purposes, and proponents say it is not enough. Opponents say they fear the fiscal consequences if the service area, whose directors would be the board of supervisors, is formed.

Larkspur May Relent And Keep Youths On Panel

The Larkspur City Council, in an abrupt change of heart, indicated last night it may keep youths on the city park and recreation commission after all.

The council was about to adopt an ordinance amendment deleting two seats for youths from the city agency because of absenteeism and other reasons, but was persuaded to table the measure.

Charles Brouse, chairman of Larkspur's town meeting group, read letters from Redwood High School faculty, a Marin County Youth Commission official and a Larkspur clergyman urging retention of youths on the panel. The letters cited the need for youth involvement in government.

City staff, with Brouse's support, raised the possibility of keeping the commisson at seven members, but reducing the quorum requirement to three. It was pointed out the youths' absence often made it impossible to obtain the current quorum of five members.

The council asked staff to discuss the plan with the commission and report back Jan. 5.

In addition to absenteeism, a lack of continuity in service and insufficient participation by teen-age members were cited as reasons for dropping the two seats. Two youth members most recently on the commission have departed for college.

The city council created the youth posts a year ago amid considerable fanfare.

First Day's Crab Haul Small One

EUREKA (UPI)—The Northern California crab season opened Wednesday with scant hopes of a good catch.

As fishermen put to sea for the first day of the official season, Angela Kntersimone of Lazio's Seafood Co. noted test pots had drawn only a few crabs.

Fishermen and wholesalers agreed on a price of 35 cents a pound for crabs landed at Humboldt Bay, reported manager Bud Thomas of Eureka Fisheries.

(UPI Telephoto)

First Lady Practices What President Preaching

WASHINGTON (UPI) —First Lady Pat Nixon and her younger daughter shopped at Sears Roebuck Wednesday and came away with a popcorn popper, a necktie and a pair of sneakers.

The purpose of the shopping trip, monitored by a crowd of photographers and reporters, was to spotlight stores that have voluntarily "kept the lid on" prices in support of President Nixon's economic program.

The administration's Committee for a New Prosperity has started a drive to enlist the help of large retail outlets to voluntarily keep prices down.

Mrs. Nixon bought the popcorn popper, paying $6.88, and said she would present it to her son-in-law, Ens. David Eisenhower.

Julie Eisenhower, who accompanied her mother, paid $5 for a blue and yellow diagonal striped tie for her husband and then purchased a pair of sneakers for her mother, paying $3.99, saying Mrs. Nixon could wear the shoes on the beach, at Camp David and on other casual occasions.

The shoppers also looked for a bag in which the President could carrry his golfing attire on short trips but did not find one they wanted.

Inverness Man Wins Honors

An Inverness man has been awarded a senior fellowship in the humanities by the National Endowment for the Humanities at its 21st national council held in Washington, D.C.

Arthur E. Gordon, retired professor of Latin in the department of classics at the University of California at Berkeley, received the fellowship in classical archaeology.

The fellowship, one of 84 awarded by a group of 26 citizen-humanists appointed by President Richard M. Nixon, carries a maximum award of $18,000 prorated at $1,500 per month.

Gordon now is teaching Greek at Ohio State University.

Reagan Knows Why His 'Popularity' Dips

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan blames his decline in the popularity polls, if any, on the legislature and "government in general."

"People are disgruntled," he said in a television interview. "They are unhappy about what has been done and hasn't been done. They don't draw many lines between the executive and legislators. It's just government in general."

He added, "It's in spades this time. I think the people of California are sick and tired of (legislators) hanging around Sacramento and would like to see them go home. So would I."

Reagan made the remarks in response to questions during the taping of the Public Broadcasting System's "Thirty Minutes With ..." The interview will be broadcast tonight.

In response to a question by interviewer Elizabeth Drew about his slip in public opinion polls, the Republican governor said he hadn't "noticed any great deterioration or fall away" in popularity.

He also was asked about a recent California poll which showed that of the leading Republican vice presidential candidates, he was the "least likely" to receive the electorate's votes.

Reagan, who denies any vice presidential ambitions and strongly supports Vice President Spiro Agnew for renomination, said that "maybe the people of California want me to stay where I am."

He repeated his support for Agnew, saying many Republican conservatives would object if President Nixon did not again select the incumbent vice president as his running mate.

Asked whether he wants to run for the U.S. Senate in 1974, Reagan said his position still is: "I don't know. I'm not ruling it out. I'm a little hesitant about predicting what I might do three years from now."

He spurned going back to movies: "No, I'm too old to take my clothes off."

Door-Sale Of Candy Illegal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The little boy or girl trying to sell candy at your door is operating illegally, according to George W. Milias, state labor commissioner.

Milias warned Wednesday that investigation by his office has shown that only Boy Scout, Girl Scout and Campfire Girl candy or cookie sales activities fall within legal bounds in California.

He said promoters, often using the guise of a charitable-sounding organization, violate a number of child labor and workmen's compensation laws in utilizing children to sell candies. Some of the promoters even take the tips, or nuisance payoffs the children sometimes pick up on their rounds, he said.

UC Therapists Fired Again

BERKELEY (UPI) —Eight of 10 therapists suspended then rehired at the University of California psychiatric clinic were abruptly fired again Wednesday.

Dr. Harvey Powelson, head of the clinic, had ordered the therapists back to work only last Saturday.

He said the eight employes fired for the second time had returned to work after he sent them a series of letters stating they could return upon acceptance of his supervision and if they abided by rules of the student clinic.

When the therapists—psychiatrists, psychologist and psychiatric social workers—returned, he said, they informed him they would agree to supervision, but not from Powelson. "Not your kind" of supervision he quoted them as saying. "We can't live with it."

Miss Liberty overlooks . . . er, is overlooked by . . . the world's tallest building — the twin-tower World Trade Center in lower Manhattan. Rising 110 stories (1,350 feet), the towers are part of a $700-million complex of buildings. Both towers have been "topped out," but completion is more than two years away. Tenants already occupy the lower floor of the left tower. The Statue of Liberty, by the way, stands 151 feet, one inch. (UPI Telephoto)

U.S. Throws Out Hypothetical Question On Dollar Devaluation

ROME (UPI)—The United States asked the rest of the world's richest non-Communist nations what they would be willing to concede to help solve the free world money crisis in return for a 5 per cent dollar devaluation, delegates to the conference of the "Group of Ten" said today.

They said Treasury Secretary John B. Connally raised the possibility of devaluation for the first time Wednesday before the finance ministers of the 10 nations adjourned negotiations for two weeks.

The United States put forth a "hypothetical" question as to what would happen if America devalued the dollar by more than 5 per cent. It was enough to make the French run for the telephone then join the rest of America's nine major trading partners in asking for more time.

West Germany Finance Minister Karl Schiller Wednesday disclosed what kind of "nuts and bolts" monetary situations the non-Communist world's 10 wealthiest nations discussed.

The Group of 10 wound up two days of talks on the monetary crisis with Connally telling newsmen "we did not reach any decisions and we did not solve any problems." However, he said some "hypothetical situations" had been discussed and that "definite percentages" had come under consideration by the delegates.

But Schiller, speaking later, said that "one country made an offer which was bigger than some countries expected (and) this caused some embarrassment to the others."

Meanwhile, reports that the United States might be considering devaluation of the dollar sent dollar prices plunging on world money markets and brought the dollar to its lowest ebb in Frankfurt and Tokyo since creation of the postwar German and Japanese currencies.

In Frankfurt the mark was quoted at 3.2875 to the dollar, a devaluation of 11.3 per cent from the old rate of four marks to the dollar —the lowest rate since the deutschmark was created 22 years ago.

In Tokyo the dollar dropped 10.17 per cent—the lowest since the Japanese postwar yen was pegged at 360 to the dollar 20 years ago. It had slid downward since Japan allowed the yen to float last August and reached 326.77 to the dollar today.

About 65 per cent of this world's sugar output is cane and 35 per cent beet.

A Good Steak Is Hard To Find

Most Americans probably would be surprised to learn that their much less affluent grandparents could afford steak for dinner several times a week. Today it's an expensive dish but the industry is doing something about it.

An association of cattle breeders is introducing the Alpine Simmental beef cattle into the United States for cross-breeding with Herefords, Shorthorns and Angus in order to produce bigger steers faster. A half-blooded Simmental bull recently weigh ed in at 1,705 pounds on his first birthday, a record for any breed. Simmental cross-bred slaughter steers average 1,100 pounds at 12 to 13 months. There are now more than 20,000 cross-bred Simmentals for breeding purposes in the United States and in several recent contests, Simmental calves have outperformed other breeds in daily weight gaining tests.

"Moreover," says Gordon Philip, a native Scot who manages the herd of International Simmental Co. near Kansas City, beef from the Simmental cross-breeds not only grades choice but has fine flavor equal to the best black Angus, Hereford or Shorthorn beef."

The Simmental, which looks a lot like the red and white Hereford but is bigger, has been bred in the high pastures of the Swiss Alps for 1,000 years or more. They always have been entirely grass and hay fed because Switzerland grows no grain. According to D. M. Lorenz, president of International Simmental, many a Swiss family derives its whole living from a herd of eight or 10 Simmental cows because they give a lot of milk as well as beef.

In fact, said Lorenz, the high milk production is what makes the calves grow so fast. Lorenz started three years ago to phase out a herd of purebred Herefords by crossing them with Simmental.

He had to inseminate his cows artificially because U.S. quarantine law forbids the direct importation of bulls. But Simmental admirers have established quarantine stations on islands in the St. Lawrence River where imported bulls are stationed and their semen shipped to U.S. breeders by air. The first two of these bulls, Cyr and Parisien, each have produced more than $1 million sales of semen and calves of their get in three years.

Although crosses between the Simmental and other breeds have produced much of Europe's beef for nearly a century the Simmental didn't reach North America until 1968, because of the U.S. quarantine laws and American cattle breeders, preoccupation with the problem of finding cross breeds that could withstand drought and heat on western ranges.

In the 19th Century the Sonora or Texas Longhorn was imported for that reason. But the picturesque Longhorn was actually a poor beef producer and went his way long ago. The humpbacked Brahma bull from India has been brought in this century and crossed with Hereford and the Shorthorn, fine beef breeds that originated in Britain.

With modern water supplies and feeding pen methods, the North American cattle grower is in position to pay more attention to the consumers' desire for more and better steaks and roasts. "The big, fast growning Simmental with his proven record in Europe could be the answer," says Lorenz.

Ecologist: Monitor Insecticides

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dr. Jack McLeod, Canadian Department of Environment ecologist, said Wednesday the effect of chemical insecticides should be carefully monitored in order to make decisions on their continued use.

"This especially includes facts on the long-term effects of chemical insecticides on populations of pest insects and on their environment," he added.

McLeod told members of the Entomological Society of America that recent attacks on the use of insecticides have produced "massive efforts" toward the development of biological controls.

"But workable and effective biological control methods are still a thing of the future," the scientist said.

McLeod told of a 15-year study he made which showed the use of an organophosphate insecticide — Phosphamidon — was an acceptable way to cut down the Swain Jack Pine sawfly population in a Canadian forest.

In the Jack Pine pulpwood forests of Quebec where outbreaks of this insect regularly occur," McLeod said, "the sawfly's populations are already tightly regulated by a large number of interacting natural enemies, but the regulation is at too high a level and damage to the forests results."

After spraying the chemical, he added, the sawfly population thinned out to a level that was easily controlled by natural predators. McLeod said the most successful apsect of the program was that it was ecologically justified.

Air Collision Warning Bill May Be Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Industry disagreement over what type of warning system should be used to help pilots of airliners, military aircraft and small planes avoid in-flight collisions may delay its adoption, congresional testimony suggested Wednesday.

Because of the expected delay, a spokesman for the nation's airline pilots urged that the Federal Aviation Administration at least start by requiring flashing strobe lights on all aircraft to make them easier to see.

Capt. John J. O'Donnell, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, also urged the FAA to establish special corridors through which airliners would approach for landings at major airports.

Spokesmen for aviation equipment manufacturers told the Senate aviation subcommittee that they could come up with collision avoidance and pilot warning devices at reasonable cost.

However, they were divided over which of two basic systems should be used. To be effective, all the devices would have to be compatible with each other no matter who manufactures them.

The proposed devices were described at hearings called on a bill by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, to require installation of collision-avoidance or warning devices on all aircraft within five years.

For small planes, a lower-cost pilot warning system would be required to tell the pilot where to look for another nearby aircraft.

For airliners and other heavier aircraft, a collision avoidance system would be required not only to tell the pilot where the other airplane is but to provide instant information on what action he should take to avoid it.

CORTE MADERA STEWARDESS

Playing With Children Gave Her An Idea To Help People

By PAT BALMES

While playing with neighborhood children, Nancy Haugen of Corte Madera had an idea. The idea, now mushrooming was to place some 500 flight service personnel into creative volunteer jobs in eight cities. It is Pan American Airlines Community Action Program, and it draws on resources of stewardesses and pursers who give their time between flights to help other people.

The stewardesses and pursers counsel youngsters on probation, man telephone hotlines to lonely people, take school children on visits to exotic places, guide foreign visitors, help handicapped and act as big sisters to troubled girls.

It all started in April 1970 when Nancy, a former stewardess who was injured in an industrial accident, was playing in San Francisco with her neighborhood's children. She was using Japanese coins she had collected to help them learn arithmetic, and she began to tell them about Japanese customs. It struck her that stewardesses could help in schools, so she contacted the San Francisco Educational Auxiliary and spent the summer investigating the idea with schools and teachers to see if they were interested in using the stewardesses to enrich class units on foreign countries or other subjects. Soon she was speaking in classrooms about kimonos, passports, how an airplane flies, and how to serve food attractively.

SHE BEGAN to recruit her stewardess friends.

Then Nancy took three weeks to write a minithesis on resources an airline has that could be useful and mailed it to an airline vice-president. The executive, responded, saying the airline was strongly behind her concept and asked what help she needed.

She was given control of the new program — called CAP — and was told that it wouldn't be censored or "bureaucratized." Last January, Pan American president NeJeeb Halaby appointed stewardess coordinators in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Miami, Honolulu, Seattle and Washington, D.C. Their average 70-hours-a-month flying time each was trimmed so they can operate at a desk and phone, keeping track of volunteer projects and assigning volunteers.

STEWARDESSES DON'T realize their worth, according to Nancy, the San Francisco coordinator of some 100 volunteers. Stewardesses work long hours, care for 250 passengers and keep the cabin in order during long flights. Almost all have undergraduate college degrees and have flown around the world. But they feel cut off from things at home and in the community by their chaotic schedules of missed birthdays and big dates.

"They can't take a course, follow an interest or even do regular volunteer work," says Nancy, who knows if there is a typhoon in Tahiti, the stewardess will not arrive for her volunteer job.

Nancy seeks specific volunteer work which will allow Kirsten individual growth; something she is good at or will grow in. Giving her time must be a rewarding experience for the stewardess.

"Then I go shopping in the community to find a creative work which can absorb a girl with an erratic schedule," says Nancy. And she finds an opportunity to share Kirsten's intensive training on how Pan American personnel cook with a home economics class. Even her experience serving so many aloft will interest students. There is a special way of carving, two strokes for each slice. All meals served by Pan American are from "scratch," she says.

Nancy makes out a file card about Kirsten which joins the 100 others. Among them are information about a national champion baton twirler, a Japanese napkin-folding expert, a stewardess who can lecture about France in French, a Norwegian-born Sausalito woman who can tell about her homeland, and a Mill Valley stewardess who allows school children to play her collection of musical instruments from around the world. All personnel speak a second language.

The coordinator arranged for Spanish-speaking mechanics to lead an airport tour for a special class of Spanish-speaking children who can speak no English. Then the mechanics showed a pilot-trainer film of a pilot's view of Mexico City at those children's school.

NANCY USES photographs of volunteers doing their after-hours jobs to attract new volunteers. Posters are hung in airport briefing rooms, blurbs put in stewardesses' mailboxes, pictures sent to the airline's newspaper and photographs of San Francisco volunteers sent to the seven other coordinators.

A native of Philadelphia, Nancy was graduated from Illinois's Northwestern University. She majored in speech education.

"Then I went to fly. Flying internationally would give me the opportunity to see the world and still work with people."

When she applied to be a stewardess she was told it is tough.

"You say 'sure' but you never realize how hard it is until you are airborne, in turbulence, and cooking scrambled eggs for 120 passengers," says Nancy, who flew to Hawaii, Tahiti, Tokyo and Vietnam.

Last December, she married Pan Am pilot Paul Haugen and moved to Corte Madera.

The Complete Costume Will Make Reappearance In Spring Fashions

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fashion designers help the woman "put it all together" in the new spring collections.

The "do your own thing" gives way to the more traditional planning of the entire costume by the style experts. This usually includes the shoes, hat, and the other accessories that add up to the total look.

Part of the unified look comes through suit, dress and jacket or dress and sweater combinations for layered dressing, now more important than the former disordered mix of separates which confused many women and which they found hard to cope with.

THE SUIT with the skirt is more in fashion than the pantsuit, although it too goes right into spring. Full length coats will be worn less, giving way to the three-quarter length coat with a shirt and skirt or pants. And the blazer jackets are thick.

These were some of the trends outlined as the American Designers Group (ADG) opened a week of ready-to-wear showings for visiting fashion reporters from newspapers, television and radio. Another organized group, the New York Couture Business Council, will hold its spring showings early in January.

Styles have a slicked-up look, cleancut shapes, very few geegaws.

"It's smart to be tidy," said Eleanor Lambert in the ADG forecast. "Elegance has recaptured its full dictionary definition; esthetic, refined, polished, finished with distinction, good taste, restraint, purity and luxury."

THE STITCHED down hipline on pleated skirts continue a favorite, although some designers introduce full-gathered skirts. One of the newest cuts is the godet, a bias pyramid of fabric set in below the hips.

Whatever the cut, all skirts flare at the hem. But there's a vast span in hemline lengths—from the top of the kneecap to two inches above the ankle, even on daytime dresses. For the time being, the hemline length hassle has been put to rest.

President Nixon's projected trip to Peking has set off a whole flurry of Chinese or other oriental motifs among designers. You'll be able to buy coolie coats, copies of the coolie's wide-brimmed hat, the Mao tunic, the worker's smock, the cheongsam, embroidered mandarin robes and some designers speak proudly of dresses made up in China silk. Copies also are the high-rising Chinese collars and sideclosings with frogs (corded loops).

DESIGNER DONALD Brooks brings back two major fashion trends — ruffles for the soft look and taffeta — in a bare-shouldered evening dress from his spring ready-to-wear collection. The look is part of the back-to-sanity-dressing trend running through New York spring collections.

She Really Digs The Guy — But He Has Another Girlfriend

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

There's a guy in my class I really dig. Bill has been having a lot of problems lately: school, job, money —and his girl doesn't help a bit. These troubles are tearing him up inside, and it seems she just doesn't care about them. She just wants him around to help her out of jams, etc.

Is it okay to lend him a hand in solving his problems, even if he's got a girl? Also, how can I step over the line and be more than a — FRIEND WITH A HELPING HAND

DEAR FRIEND:

You really care about this guy, so go ahead and listen out his problems — but only as a good friend. Let him step over the "friendship" line first — after he stops digging the other girl. That way you won't make a fool of yourself. — SUE

DEAR FRIEND:

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

What do you think of today's far-out weddings? A big wedding with lots of attendants and a banquet at an exclusive country club featured the wealthy young bride (not a divorcee or widow) in a black velvet gown. Reminded me of Morticia in that old TV series.

Another recent union between a big city girl and a boy from a proper "first family" of Virginia was a study in contrasts. The groom's family dressed in excellent taste, but the bride's jersey gown looked for all the world like a lounging robe, and her mother wore an evening gown at 2 o'clock in the afternoon!

I don't mind garden ceremonies and guitars instead of organs, but brides in mini skirts or hot pants, weddings on water skis? These things I can't abide. Am I being stuffy? — SOMEWHAT TRADITIONAL

DEAR SOMEWHAT:

Traditions are fine, but they get worn out after a while.

A wedding is individual and personal and I think it should be whatever the guy and girl want — not what has always been considered "proper."

. . .Even if it's eloping from a basement window. — SUE

DEAR SOMEWHAT:

A wedding is "theirs" not "ours." If they want a barefoot ceremony at dawn in a meadow, with wreaths of wild flowers and dancing later in the dew, so be it.

I too enjoy anything different and unusual, but don't feel badly, " S.T.": most people still agree with you. It's just that big formal "traditional" weddings have always turned me slightly off. — HELEN

DEAR HELEN:

Did you ever hear again from "El Fin," the girl who wouldn't give her name and address and was about to overdose because she thought nobody cared? — ???

DEAR ALL OF YOU WHO HAVE WONDERED AND WORRIED ABOUT "EL FIN":

I'm tremendously glad to report that "El Fin" is alive and well, back in school, relating again to her parents, headed for college —and dating a great guy. In a recent letter (she sent her name and address this time) she tells me that an undiagnosed physical problem had produced extreme depression —which she tried to "cure" with drugs.

She says in part, "Helen, I'd really like to thank and hug you, and all those who wrote me through your column, for showing me I wasn't alone."

Perhaps these column-letters were the turning point, giving El Fin courage to level with her parents. A hurry-up trip to the hospital revealed that her troubles came primarily from a disease that can be controlled with proper treatment. And she's getting it — plus mental therapy too.

She adds, "No drugs, no booze, no Jesus-freaking — just me and my guy and life to believe in. And that's more than enough . . ."

Ah, happy endings. Aren't they great? — HELEN

Scalloped Tunic Summer Favorite

The scalloped tunic over pants will be a summer favorite for mothers-to-be, according to Women's Wear Daily.

It's popularity is predicted by the apparel trade newspaper because "the long, sleeveless style is the kind of easy moving shift expectant women like to wear over short or long pants."

Traditional Holiday Program Is Set

The Dominican Garden School will present its traditional Christmas program on Dec. 12 at 3 p.m. in Angelico Hall on the Dominican College campus.

Choir boys will present six Christmas greeting scenes, and Christmas angels will be featured in six scenes around the Christmas crib.

A Flat Bread Becomes Cake

Gingerbread was probably a snap when it was first made by a Greek from Rhodes several thousand years ago, according to the Sugar Information Bureau. The original flat, cookie-kind of spicy bread was an instant success.

It traveled through countries and towns, changing little in centuries until about Chaucer's time, 14th Century England.

Then gingerbread appeared in sometimes funny shapes as men, birds and animals, or houses, frosted fancifully, when sugar supplies increased in the late 1500s.

Gingerbread did not remain flat and hard. With added ingredients, it rose, tenderly soft, to the height of cakes.

What's New In Window Shades

In window shades what's new includes stripes in colors to zing up any room decor. Imagine apple green, azalea or tiger lily stripes on window shades with a woven look.

New cabana striped shades are of vinyl-impregnanted cloth which resists fire, never fades and protects the room from the sun's destructive rays. The shades can be washed with soap or detergent.

Two Gingerbreads In Early Salem

From recipes arriving on the Mayflower, gingerbread was made and sold from a bake shop in early Salem, in two varieties. "Lower Shelf" gingerbread was mixed with molasses, flour, butter, milk, ginger and saleratus, a forerunner of baking powder.

"Upper Shelf" gingerbread, with sugar and eggs added, was richer, lighter and more tender too, from creaming air into the butter with the sugar, before adding the eggs.

Dinner Starter

Fabric Strain

Jumping into panty hose may seem like the quickest way to put them on, but, unfortunately, research indicates that such agility puts an unreasonable strain on the fabric and frequently starts runs, snags and tears. No matter how late you are, it pays to sit down, while you settle one foot at a time in the panty hose and pull them slowly up to your knees.

A Break At Last In Pay For Women

Women in retailing who have been paid less than their male counterparts can take heart from federal government crackdowns on such retail firms, reports Women's Wear Daily.

The Labor Department in the last few months has successfully sued three retailers in federal district court on the equal pay issue — Robert Hall, J. M. Fields and Loveman's —and a suit against the May Co. is still pending.

Ben Robertson, assistant administrator of the Employment Standards Administration and who has been the key figure on the equal pay issue, told Women's Wear retailers "must forget their historic practices and see the tenor of times."

He believes that sex discrimination in pay is widespread in retailing and that it must be ended, the apparel trade newspaper reported.

Yule Decorations May Be Harmful

The Council on Family Health urges parents to warn children about the dangers of playing with Christmas decoration of all types and to use caution and good sense in decorating the home.

Lighted candles, for instance, should never be placed in a window. Using candles as decorations when children are involved is considered a danger since most children are attracted to the brightness, and the younger the child, the more eager he is to see what makes the candle glow.

MUSIC REVIEW

A Flamboyant Season Opener

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Seiji Ozawa opened the 60th season of the San Francisco Symphony last night at the sold out Opera House with a program realizing to perfection his sure instinct for dramatic contrasts.

For a flamboyant season opener what better choice than works by Berlioz and Stravinsky, those masters capable of producing thunder and lightning, balanced with the serenity and joy of Haydn.

This Ozawa accomplished by starting with the rarely heard overture to "Les Franc-Juges," all that remains of a youthful Berlioz opera, following with the Haydn Symphony No. 90 in C Major and closing with Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" as a smashing climax.

With many players having just completed the San Francisco Opera season, the orchestra was in good form and except for some minor imprecisions in several instruments in the overture, played brilliantly. It was apparently inspired by the almost visible force radiated from their youthful maestro.

Still wearing the neck brace necessitated by a last season's infirmity, he was as always the master of rhythmic motion, whether in explosive or gently flowing tempos. If he had the physical stamina, what a ballet dancer he would make!

The major work of the evening was, of course, the "Rite of Spring" — a salute to the late composer — in a reading full of blazing daytime light and mysterious night shadows. Even with today's toleration of and high threshold for noise this shocker that rocked the musical world at its 1913 premiere in Paris still has plenty of punch. Somehow, though, unlike many contemporary works, its cacophony is meaningful and fully expressive of its subject — savage pagan rituals ending in a sacrificial death dedicated to the God of spring.

In comparison with the Stravinsky, the overture of "Les Franc-Juges" — considered terrifying when it was first heard in 1826 — now seems almost laughable.

IGOR STRAVINSKY
Late composer saluted

Inspired by the medieval German tribunals held by self-appointed judges to condemn heretics and witches to death — revived during the Third Reich — this work still has a powerful impact, especially in its magnificent orchestration for trombones and other brass. Ozawa's strong rhythmic emphasis made parts of it dance-like. It was a very good opening number.

Between these two earth shakers, the Haydn was like the sun breaking through the clouds of a storm just before its greatest fury. It was 18th Century courtly elegance, highlighted by some exceptionally fluid and melodic woodwind passages, particularly flute solos.

In view of acoustics at the new Veterans Memorial Building being possibly superior to those of the Opera House, Marin Symphony music lovers can look forward with excitement to the San Francisco Orchestra's Marin series that starts Jan. 22.

'Oldest Speed Cop' To Retire

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sgt. Carl E. Perscheid, 69, credited with being the "oldest speed cop in the world," announced his retirement Wednesday after 47 years with the Police Department.

Perscheid, who will go off duty officially in February when he reaches 70, said he has outlasted 11 morotcycles since joining the first team of cycle officers in the department.

He said he has had his share of spills but nothing serious.

Asked how he has been able to stay fit over the years, he said he did not worry and he added, "Stay away from doctors if you can."

Wire Service Errs On Mars Tabulation

A United Press International account of the placing of a capsule on Mars in Tuesday's Independent-Journal erred in calculating the distance from Mars to the satellite which ejected the capsule.

According to Soviet news agency Tass, Mars 2 was orbiting the planet at a distance of 1,250 kilometers. UPI incorrectly computed the distance in miles at 570. The figure should have been 776 miles.

Sausalito Art Festival Opening Set

The Sausalito Art Center will be transformed into an ancient Greek agora this weekend when the Sausalito Arts Association holds its first winter indoor art festival.

More than 150 artists and craftsmen from Marin will exhibit their works at the event, scheduled for 7 to 10 p.m. tomorrow and from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Theme for the festival, which the association hopes will become an annual activity, is "Joy of the Muses."

A variety of media will be represented, including paintings, creative crafts, sculptured candles and experimental art forms. There will be demonstrations of glass blowing and an opportunity for visitors to try their hand at drawing figures from life, according to Dan O'Connor, festival co-director.

Mime, exotic belly dancing, Javanese and Scottish dancing and wandering minstrels all will be part of the event. The Greek motif will be carried out in banners and other decorations designed by Diane Brewer, association president. Toga-clad girls will greet the public and answer questions, according to O'Connor.

Greek foods, including meats, cheeses, fruits, and pastries, will be served.

A baby-sitting service will be provided for those who attend, with youngsters given the chance to draw and paint while waiting for their parents.

According to Shelagh Considine, art center director and codirector of the event, the winter festival came about because of the absence this year of the traditional Sausalito Art Festival, which has been held on Labor Day weekend for the past 15 years.

Mrs. Considine said the September festival was not held this year because the center was facing eviction from the old Bayside School (a lease agreement on the building, with the Sausalito School District, was worked out last month).

The only difference between the winter and September festival, according to Mrs. Considine, is that the winter festival will be indoors, while the fall event is usually held outside.

Soft-Drink Case Figures Give Up

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Six persons indicted in the Bubble Up soft drink investigation, allegedly the biggest stock fraud in California history, surrendered in Superior Court Wednesday.

Bail was set at $2,000 each and their cases continued to Dec. 27 for arraignment and plea. The remaining 14 defendants were expected to surrender later this week.

The charges are grand theft and violation of state security laws. The alleged fraud involved sale of unregistered stock in the soft drink company. Investigators said the total money involved could be as high as $4.5 million.

Burglary Case To Youth Court

Robert Andrew Kraft Jr., 19, of Larkspur, accused of burglary, has been certified to Marin Juvenile Court.

He appeared Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court, where Judge Robert A. Smallman turned him over to juvenile authorities.

Heiress Teaches Museum Lesson — Takes Sculpture

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mrs. Ileana Lindt, flanked by two deputy sheriffs and her lawyer, walked into the Guggenheim Museum Wednesday. A few minutes later she walked out with a sculpture insured for $80,000, climbed in her limousine and drove away.

The surprise action ended an 11-year court fight by Mrs. Lindt to regain possession of the sculpture "The Muse" by Constantin Brancusi which she had bought at auction in 1955 for $7,000.

The Romanian-born heiress said she took the action because the museum refused to return the sculpture even though a New York Supreme Court had ruled it was hers two years ago.

"They (museum officials) were very rude to me and didn't want to give it up," she said. "But what could they do? I had the sheriffs with me."

The museum would not comment on the episode. The Guggenheim, a modernistic, spiral-shaped museum overlooking Central Park, has had "The Muse" since 1958.

Mrs. Lindt bought the sculpture in 1955 when she was married to Arde Bulova, board chairman of the Bulova Watch Co. Bulova died in 1958 and after unsuccessfully trying to get a share of pis $10 million estate, Mrs. Lindt tried to get possession of the sculpture.

The lower courts ruled against her, saying although she bought it at auction, her husband had paid for it. Finally, after 40 judges had handled the case, the supreme court ruled in her favor in 1969.

"The Muse," a 17 ½-inch high white marble head cradled on a hand, was done by Brancusi in 1912. It was insured by the museum for $80,000 but some estimates put its worth at up to $200,000.

Brancusi, a Romanian who worked in Paris, was considered the grand old man of abstract sculpture and was best known for his "Bird in Flight." Mrs. Lindt said she was a longtime friend of the artist and was at his bedside when he died in 1957.

Mrs. Lindt, 46, the estranged wife of Auguste Rudolph Lindt of the Swiss chocolate family who she married 10 years ago when he was ambassador to the United States, said she plans to exhibit the art work in museums.

"If the museum (Guggenheim) had been nice about it, I might have left it there on loan," she said. "I intend to exhibit it at museums, but not at the Guggenheim. They certainly had nothing to gain by being rude."

Sex, Money And The Generation Gap

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sex and money keep the generation gap wide and very much alive, says Lester Rand, president of the Rand Youth Poll, an organization which surveys trends among this nation's young people.

"Parents never have been able to adjust to high teen-age spending and youth's resulting lifestyle," he said.

Paralyzed Officer Given Valor Medal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Police Department awarded its gold medal of valor Wednesday to a special officer who was paralyzed from the waist down by a shot fired during a holdup.

In addition, the department retired the badge of Donald W. Fatooh, 29, who was flown from his new home in Fresno to San Francisco in a Navy airplane.

Artificial Proteins For Food Eyed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Producing artificially grown proteins suitable for human food may soon become possible but getting them eaten will be much more difficult, two chemists agreed Wednesday.

The scientists were interviewed during the closing session of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers meeting.

Dunlop said nutritious bacteria can be grown from waste cellulose of sugar cane stalks in a process that can be adapted to straw from rice and wheat or corn stalks.

At present the artificially grown protein can be used successfully in feed for chickens and rats, he said.

Morgan noted, however, that the source of human protein instead probably will come from rice, wheat and soybeans.

Smog Official Ouster Is Sought

his firm may someday represent industries before the district, and wanted to avoid any possible conflict of interest.

The personnel committee, the Independent-Journal learned, instead has asked the state attorney general's office to provide legal service in the hassle over Walker. The attorney general has not yet responded to the request.

Demands that Callaghan, not Walker, be fired came from Ralph Warner, an attorney representing black neighborhoods in Richmond, and Jean Siri, representing the West Contra Costa Conservation League. Both were key leaders in the citizens' campaign last year that toughened district regulations.

Warner declared that the dispute between Callaghan and Walker was not a personality clash, but a difference over philosophy on enforcing district regulations.

The young attorney said Callaghan has "outlasted his usefulness" and no longer has "the confidence of his staff." He added that "a lot of us feel the wrong person may be fired," and called for an analysis of the district's procedures "before there's a bloodbath."

Mrs. Siri said that her group never had confidence in Callaghan's "efforts for the public interest or the public health."

The Stop Smog Committee's chairman, Katherine Lord, urged the board — as it later did — to seek professional management consultants to scrutinize district operations. The consultants, she said, should spot "breakdowns in the chain of command, tell us where the bottleneck lies and advise us how to eliminate it."

She urged that the legal department be recognized as the district's best instrument for fighting polluters.

Board members, dropping their customary defense of the district and its staff, did not comment either way on the demands that Callaghan be fired. Several instead commended the citizen groups as needed spurs to keep the district alert.

Only director Robert B. St. Clair, a San Mateo County supervisor, took exception. He especially objected to an advertisement by Mrs. Lord's group in Monday's Richmond Independent. It asserted: "After so many years of playing pat-a-cake with polluters, top district officials can't seem to bring themselves to get tough with their old pals."

St. Clair pressed her unsuccessfully to back the assertion with specific examples.

The point, however, brought an observation from Callaghan that the district had collected $23,103 in fines against polluters last fiscal year. The figure brought cries of "peanuts" from the audience of some 40 persons.

The suggestion of a conflict of interest was raised by Mrs. Feinstein after Warner noted that progress by a district advisory subcommittee had been delayed because its chairman, Joseph D. Coons of San Rafael, was too busy as a consulting engineer for industry. Warner said the subcommittee often had to wait six weeks between meetings on proposed new limits on industrial emissions.

The charge of lying was leveled against Callaghan by director William R. Jelavich, a Mountain View city councilman. He asked Callaghan why the press had not been notified in writing of the personnel committee's frequent closed door meetings as required by state law.

Callaghan claimed that his failure to notify the press of the committee's meeting yesterday before the regular board meeting was "an exception," and that he had not learned until Monday that it was even scheduled.

Jelavich, insisting that Callaghan had known of the meeting "long before," angrily countered "that's a damn lie. I'm sick and tired of that kind of shenanigan going on about here. Somewhere, something is drastically wrong... I am no longer going to tolerate this kind of relationship with the news media. If it means taking off the kid gloves, so be it."

He also ripped into the chairman of the personnel committee, Pleasanton City Councilman Bernard T. Gerton, for refusing to tell newsmen the purpose of the closed door sessions. Gerton replied that sometimes he could not tell newsmen the purpose because he himself did not know what would be discussed.

In that case, suggested Jelavich, "there's not much point in meeting."

Jelavich also exploded when he discovered the board's meeting was being tape recorded by a district employee — a discovery he made moments after being assured by Callaghan that board meetings were not taped. "Someone ought to know what's going on around here," Jelavich declared, adding the tape recorder "didn't just walk in and hook itself up. To say this is slippery is very mild."

Kevin Maloney, an aide to Callaghan, explained that he had ordered the taping because board meetings were getting too long and detailed for the minutes clerk to get everything down. The clerk, Mabel Harder, however, acknowledged under a question from Jelavich that she had not asked for the taping.

Criticism also came from director Nevin K. Hiester, Portola Valley city councilman. He objected to the personnel committee's order barring from its half dozen closed sessions directors who were not on the committee.

A member of the committee, Napa County Supervisor Joseph G. Peatman, said other directors had been barred "just because it's very difficult to bring up to date anyone who has not been sitting in on our meetings."

About the only "positive" statements heard all day came from R. J. King of San Rafael, plant manager for Chevron Chemical Company's Ortho Division in Contra Costa County. Objecting to "a lot of negative talk here today," he noted that his company was spending $3.5 million to meet the district's new regulations. He said that industry had taken "a lot of positive action."

The long board session ended with an unsuccessful proposal by Jelavich that a confidential questionnaire be circulated among district employees to determine the truth of reports he had heard of "low morale."

The Air Pollution Control District board also:

LOBBYIST — Rehired Jerome Desmond as the district's Sacramento lobbyist for the 1972 legislative session at an annual fee of $10,000.

SMOKING — Banned smoking at board meetings, Jelavich commenting that the ban at least would improve air quality in the board room.

FEDERAL — Voted to impose district regulations on federal installations, which under federal law must comply with the regulations unless exempted by presidential order.

Employee Pay Hike Advances

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Ways and Means Committee reversed itself yesterday and approved a 5 per cent pay hike for state employees which would cost $46.8 million.

The committee also reversed itself on another bill providing a 6 per cent, $1.8 million pay boost for Division of Forestry firefighters.

Both bills were defeated on a split voice vote Nov. 24, but were sent to the Assembly floor today along with a third which would give a $5.4 million, 6 per cent salary increase to California Highway Patrolmen.

Convention Going Knocked

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Mayor J. Bracken Lee says the taxpayers could be saved a lot of money if public officials just stopped going to conventions.

Lee said most conventions for office-holders are just glorified vacations.

Referring to the current municipal government conference in Honolulu, Lee said, "Going to these conventions is just an indoctrination course ... where so-called experts from Washington figure out schemes to take more money from the over-taxed taxpayer."

Priest Facing An Elk Charge

MIDDLEBORO, Mass. (UPI) —A secret four-man panel has been chosen by the Middleboro Lodge of Elks to hear charges brought against a Roman Catholic priest for opposing a "whites only" membership restriction.

Lodge Exalted Ruler Arthur E. Parent Jr., who brought the charges of "conduct unbecoming an Elk" against Rev. William R. MacKenzie, said Wednesday night a date for the so-called "subordinate forum," or trial, will be set "in not less than five days, but no more than 10 days."

Parent would not disclose the names of the jurors but did say they were selected from a list of 25 names drawn from a box containing the names of 100 of the lodge's 1,200 members.

Chance For Women's Equality — Only $1

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A women's lib group is offering husbands a chance to give their wives an unusual Christmas gift for $1—legal equality in handling the family finances.

In newspaper advertisements, the "Women's Equalization Committee" offered "husbands who want to do something very special for their wives this Christmas" the legal forms for giving their wives a 50 per cent share in control of community property.

The committee's advertisement said that under California law, although husband and wife share ownership of joint property, except real estate, husband has the legal right to sell it without his wife's knowledge or consent.

"The law also gives the husband the exclusive power to choose where the family will live and the wife has to agree," the committee said. "Once a wife's separate earnings are mixed in (a joint) bank account, with her husband's earnings, she loses all control over what she has herself earned," it complained.

"If you as a husband trust and respect your wife as a truly equal marriage partner," the ad urged husbands, "we will send you a simple form which a husband and wife can execute in the privacy of their own home ... to give your wife an equal voice in deciding how to use the property which is hers as much as yours.

"We must ask you to enclose one dollar to cover our mailing and printing costs.

Innocent Plea To Robbery

Three men, accused of attempting to rob a Tamalpais Valley restaurant on Nov. 29, have pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court.

Larry David Adams, 22, of Marin City; Bernard Jerome Stringer, 25, of San Francisco and Keith James Jackson, 19, of San Rafael, entered pleas Tuesday.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set Dec. 14 for a preliminary hearing.

Sheriff's deputies said they caught the three crouching behind the La Camembert restaurant about 12:30 a.m. with nylon stockings on their heads and a loaded carbine rifle lying on top of a box nearby.

Water District, Seeger In Partial Victory On Order

Marin Municipal Water District directors and Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger did not intentionally violate a court order prohibiting them from campaigning for the water district's Measure B in last month's election, a Marin Superior Court judge has ruled.

However, a claim for refund of public funds which the water district allegedly used in pushing for the bond issue is still being weighed by Judge Joseph G. Wilson. A decision on this claim is not expected until late December or January.

The contempt charge was argued before Judge Wilson on Nov. 19. Douglas P. Ferguson, representing plaintiff Huey D. Johnson, declared that Seeger had appeared before the Marin County Board of Supervisors on Oct. 26. At that time, he said the supervisors had copies of a brochure urging the passage of Measure B. This was in violation of an Oct. 8 injunction against such campaigning, said Ferguson.

Attorneys Robert W. Elliott and Peter Brekhus, representing the water district and Seeger, argued that Seeger had specifically ordered that such brochures not be distributed.

Judge Wilson found Seeger did not provide the brochures to the supervisors, and held that a brochure given to the Independent-Journal at the newspaper's request did not constitute contempt.

The judge asked both sides to submit legal arguments on these two pending claims by Johnson:

1. The water district spent $19,500 illegally on the 1970 water bond issue, and this should be refunded.

2. The water district should be penalized $3,000 for violating the election code requiring the reporting of campaign expenses.

The legal arguments by both sides are due on Dec. 19, and the judge is expected to rule sometime after that date.

Johnson, who brought the legal action, is western regional director of Nature Conservancy and lives in Mill Valley. He contended that the water district had no right to use funds collected from water users to advocate passage of bonds or urge a yes vote on Measure B, which would have allowed the water district to participate in financing the Marin-Sonoma Aqueduct.

House Banking Panel Is Stalling Nixon Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Banking Committee refused today for the second time to approve a bill to extend through April 30, 1973, President Nixon's power to control the economy. But a compromise was reported in the offing.

The committee voted 18 to 15 against sending the measure to the House floor, with four members voting "present". The committee voted 18 to 18 Wednesday in failing to agree on a bill.

The Senate approved a control bill Wednesday 85 to 4 despite some misgivings of both Democrats and Republicans.

Following today's vote, the House committee began working on a compromise measure that committee members hoped would break the deadlock.

The compromise, sponsored by Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, was similar to the Senate bill and was considered more acceptable to the administration than the committee's original version.

As passed by the Senate, the bill carried a number of provisions only reluctantly approved by the White House. Among them, it would give government workers and servicemen a 5.5 per cent pay raise on Jan. 1 — at a cost of about $2 billion a year —instead of delaying it until July 1 as Nixon wanted.

It also would allow nongovernment workers to regain contracted wage boosts due but not allowed during the 90-day wage freeze that started Aug. 15 — provided the raises are not "unreasonably inconsistent" with the pay board's guideline.

The Senate bill would extend until April 30, 1973 Nixon's powers — unprecedented in peacetime —to control almost all aspects of the economy through whatever machinery he sets up. In addition to direct price and wage controls, he is given standby power to limit interest rates and profits.

Over administration and chiefly Republican opposition, the Senate by a 50 to 36 vote exempted from controls the prices charged and wages paid by the newspaper, news service, book, magazine and radio and television industries.

In a long battle to change or defeat the bill, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said that the Democratic-controlled Congress would come to regret giving Nixon such vast powers for so long a time.

He was bitter about defeats of proposals to exempt small businesses and to make interest rate controls mandatory.

"What we've done," he said, "is exempt the Chase Manhattan Bank, the Bank of America, CBS, NBC, The New York Times ... and we've included every little mom and pop shop."

Low Bidder Would Save $1.4 Million

Golden Gate Bridge District officials opened bids yesterday from seven firms competing for a contract to replace suspender ropes and repair floor beams on the span.

The lowest bid, for $2,799,537, was more than $1.4 million below the $4.2 million estimate bridge district engineers had calculated for the job. It was submitted by Allied Structural Steel Co. of Hammond, Ind. High bidder was Gordon Ball, Inc. of Danville, Contra Costa County, at $5,014,450.

Dale W. Luehring, bridge district general manager, said three of the bids were within the estimate range, and that he was "very pleased" at the chance to save more than a million dollars on the work.

District staff will check the bids for compliance, before submitting them to district directors for contract award later this month.

Prosecution Ends Case In Pot Smuggling Trial

I-J Special Report

PHILADELPHIA — The prosecution wound up its case yesterday against three men charged in the alleged smuggling of $3 million worth of marijuana, and agreed that the case against one of the defendants was "thin at best."

Two Marin men in the same case already have pleaded guilty.

One, Leonard Glassberg, 31, of Novato, changed his plea before the trial opened and took the stand for the prosecution. The other, David Miller, 34, of Corte Madera, pleaded guilty last week, along with Thomas B. Vallejo, 28, of Langhorne, Pa., to three of five charges.

The remaining three men on trial, Charles C. Cornet, 44, of Las Vegas, Norman Keim, 34, of Pendel, Pa., and Edson Whipple, 45, of Duncan, Ariz., are charged in connection with the alleged importing of a ton of marijuana to a small airport here last March.

Whipple failed to show up in court last Friday and his $123,000 bail was ordered forfeited by the judge, who issued a bench warrant for him and ordered him to continue to be tried in absentia.

Robert Finkel, an attorney for Cornet, argued there should be a directed verdict of acquittal on the grounds the government presented no evidence that his client knew about the marijuana flight.

Prosecutor Jeffrey Miller, who completed his case after calling 22 witnesses during the three-week trial before a jury of eight women and four men in U.S. District Court, said he agreed the case against Cornet was "thin at best."

Dyk Marriage Is Dissolved

The marriage of former Sausalito Mayor Jan Paul Dyk and his wife, Eugenia, was dissolved yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Judge Thomas F. Keating granted the dissolution on grounds of irreconcilable differences. The Dyks lived at 122 Crescent Avenue in Sausalito.

They were married Sept. 23, 1955, in Sausalito and separated this past Sept. 16. They have no children.

Dyk, an executive with Holland-American Lines in San Francisco, was a Sausalito city councilman from 1962 to 1970, and served as mayor in 1964 and 1965.

PITY POOR SANTA

If you think you have a hard time getting ready for Christmas, pity poor Santa. The 30-foot Santa greeting passersby from the roof of the Kentfield Fire Station at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and College Avenue already has gone through a severe identity crisis and suffered a broken arm. Fireman Rodney Biddleman (left in left photo) and Lt. Ronald Darrington performed the first aid yesterday. First aid actually amounted to major surgery as Santa's mechanically operated left arm, knocked off somehow Tuesday night, had to be hoisted up (center photo) and reattached by Darrington. Santa endured the identity crisis more than a week ago when he was a guest star at St. Raphael's annual Mission Holiday Festival in San Rafael. He was featured on the front page of the Independent-Journal several days before the festival when volunteer workers were having trouble getting his bottom half into the parish auditorium. As it turned out, they never did. Santa, who weighs about 350 pounds, was acquired by the Kentfield Fire Department when Macy's declared him surplus. He was repaired and repainted by the Kentfield Association of Firemen and barring further illness or injury, will preside over the Kentfield scene through the Christmas season.

Relatively Cool Session On Firemen's Pay Hikes

Novato fire department headquarters, expected to heat up last night over firemen's demands for increased wages and fringe benefits, remained comparatively cool as talks were postponed until Jan. 5.

A standing room audience of about 35 persons, many of them firemen, were on hand expecting to hear the demands discussed.

The Novato Fire Protection District board, which felt the demands were premature, and required study, held off.

The Board voted to create a committee board members, possibly the entire board, to negotiate with representatives of the Novato Firemen's Association, at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 5 at fire headquarters.

Director Joseph F. Silveira cast the lone vote against forming the committee. Director Dante Panfiglio was absent.

The board deadlocked 2-2 on whether the negotiating session should be closed, and as a result it will be open.

Directors Henry V. Alvernaz and Richard W. Price voted for a closed session, while chairman Peter J. Ferrarese and Silveira voted for an open session.

Firemen, who received a 4 per cent pay hike in October, want the pay range, $718-915 a month, hiked to $794-954, the work week reduced from 70 to 63 hours, 11 holidays instead of 8 and increased vacation time.

Alvernaz said the "timing was bad" on the demands since they normally are brought before the board "just prior to preparation of the district budget."

Ferrarese said the board set a policy several years ago to discuss such matters once a year, at budget time.

Attorney Richard H. Breiner, representing the firemen, said this "apparently was one of the problems" since the board had denied some association requests "without negotiation. . . and the association felt it's not getting a fair shake."

Breiner proposed that the directors then discuss other demands, such as a dental plan, a switch to the state retirement system and adopting a civil service ordinance, which would provide a personnel committee to hear appeals and grievances.

These matters, the board agreed, could be brought up at the Jan. 5 meeting.

Dougherty said there were 29 members out of 33 eligible in the department. There are 35 men in the department overall, but two are ineligible, Chief Jack Kidder and a probationary fireman.

Ferrarese wanted to know how many firemen voted to present the demands and hire an attorney to represent them.

Dougherty estimated that "at least 16" were present when the vote was taken, none objecting, and this meant a majority favored the association's bid.

Directors clashed with Breiner on the matter of funds available to the district.

Breiner said a district audit showed that on June 30, 1971, there was $400,000 in an "investment fund," which earned more than $27,000 in a year.

Silveira said: "You better check those figures," and Ferrarese said it wasn't an "investment fund" but an allocation for "capital expenditures."

Breiner asked if the district had any plans for making capital expenditures. Ferrarese said directors have discussed some, but haven't any final plans.

"My feeling is men come first, before expansion or equipment," Breiner said.

When the meeting ended without any discussion of the issues, there were murmurs of discontent from some of the audience, who had come expecting some action.

'Wise Guy' Testimony At Murder Trial Of Baron

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI)— A New Bedford, Mass., waiter testified Wednesday that accused murderer Joseph Barbosa Baron was a "wise guy who needed straightening up."

Lawrence P. Hughes was a witness for the prosecution in the Sonoma County Superior Court jury trial of Baron, 39, an underworld enforcer, charged with killing a mechanic in a dispute over $250,000 in stolen securities.

Clay Wilson, 26, was shot to death on July 7, 1970, and his body was buried in a creek near Glen Ellen. The securities were stolen from the Petaluma home of Victor DeCarlo in 1969.

Hughes testified that there was a discussion about the securities in his home in the spring of 1970. He said he, his brother, Leonard and Baron were on hand.

Hughes said the securities were at the home of a newspaperman identified as James Southwood.. He said Baron told his brother "to get on with them, to move them" because there was a large amount of money involved.

Hughes said he ultimately came into possession of the securities and at the suggestion of Boston Police Inspector John Doyle made photostatic copies of them.

College Trustee Shifts Stand On Second Campus In Novato

Construction of Indian Valley Colleges in Novato may have taken a step backwards last night when one member of the Marin Community College District board came out flatly against it.

Vice president Charles W. Gray said he was against the construction and urged spending all construction money on the Kentfield campus.

His position was opposed by the other members present, but with board president Donald K. Felt and clerk Theodore C. Wellman absent, the board adjourned to 8 p.m. next Thursday to discuss the matter further.

Grace Mitchell, co-chairman of the recent bond drive, presented the board a resolution asking that the Indian Valley Colleges be given first priority. It was not acted on, however.

The board had just taken up the item of alternatives to capital financing in the district when Gray read a prepared statement.

In it, he said he had changed his mind since November election defeat. He blamed the cutbacks in the state universities and colleges as throwing the burden of education of young people on the community colleges.

He said that citizen support for expansion of the college facilities and the accompanying enlargement of the property tax bills simply does not exist.

Gray urged better utilization of the Kentfield campus facilities, a reexamination of the college calendar, giving first priority to all Marin County high school graduates and a reexamination of community service and adult education.

Winifred Frederick and Sarah Nome, directors of the Irate Taxpayers of Marin, who attended the citizens advisory committee meetings, endorsed Gray's stand.

Herbert Cook, representing the North Marin Federation of Home Owners, suggested that the board not develop the campus as planned, but rent space in the Nave Shopping Center, buildings on the east side of Grant Avenue, or at Hamilton Air Force Base to get the college located.

Board member Martin J. Dean said that the people of Novato did not envisage the college in a store. He moved that the board increase the construction tax from 32 cents as voted on Nov. 22 to 43 cents, but it died for lack of a second.

In setting its adjourned meeting to next Thursday, the board cut out the workshop meeting schedule for Tuesday.

In parting, Gray urged the other board members to go over his statement to see if they would change their minds. If they did not, he said, he would stand alone if necessary in opposing the construction of the second campus.

Time Now To Begin Evaluation Of Barrows

When the Marin County Board of Supervisors named John F. Barrows county administrator on Aug. 31, it was with proviso for review and evaluation in six months.

That was the motion by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., seconded by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, which passed 3-2 with Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis dissenting.

There was a reason for this.

THE BOARD HAD SET in motion a recruiting and screening procedure for a replacement for County Administrator Alan Bruce. There was, however, pressure from some quarters for an "in-house" appointment. Using dissatisfaction with the screening committee as a pretext, the majority of the board on Aug. 31 appointed Barrows — subject to the evaluation in six months.

We recite this history because it is about time to start thinking about that evaluation and what it should involve.

PART OF THE SUPPOSED task of the screening committee was to have been to delineate just what the duties, responsibilities and powers of the county administrator should include. While these are set forth in general terms in the ordinance creating the job, the recurrent conflicts between Bruce and the board indicated that they need to be spelled out more specifically.

When the screening committee was disbanded, this project died with it. But if the supervisors are to evaluate Barrows' performance after six months in office, they need criteria by which to evaluate it. Therefore, the duties, responsibilities — and powers — should be spelled out, in fairness to the supervisors themselves, to Barrows, and to the citizens whom the county government is intended to serve.

The board also should draw up a list of criteria by which, as those responsible to the electorate, they can judge the performance of the administrator in specific areas.

Additionally, the evaluation process should include feedback from the citizenry. The supervisors are to some extent insulated from their constituents by the bureaucracy they have created. They should invite comments — which would not be subject to screening by the office under evaluation — from all segments of the public, including organizations and individuals.

ALL THESE PROCESSES should begin now — not the day before the evaluation is to be concluded.

Ordinarily, such extensive evaluation might not be necessary. But Barrows' appointment was not ordinary. It was made in rapid-fire order after three of the supervisors had decided to junk the careful selection process on which they had previously agreed. And because it was made in that manner — and by 3-2 vote — it "put Barrows under a cloud," as Supervisor McInnis said at the time. And it left the electorate unsatisfied that the board had acted with the deliberations and care due such an important appointment.

Therefore, the six-month evaluation should be as thoroughing as the selection originally was to have been — until three supervisors decided otherwise.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Pension Fund Runs Short And Nobody Knows Why

By MARY K. SHELL

SACRAMENTO (Capitol) — If the 500,000 employees of the State of California and local agencies are nervous about their pension fund they have good reason.

Even the state auditor general has thrown up his hands and filed a "disclaimer of personal opinion" after attempting for two years to determine the financial condition of the fund.

In a report filed recently by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, it is estimated the Public Employees Retirement System had a $602 million reserve deficiency in mid-1969. It can be assumed the condition is worse now, with rising ularies and rising retirement benefits.

What this means is that somebody (the state, the employees, or both) isn't putting enough money into the kitty each month to cover future obligations.

AFTER HIS TWO-YEAR examination of the PERS fund, Auditor General William E. Merrifield says it is impossible to make an analysis of the pension fund as a whole because of the inadequacy of financial reports of the system, which administers public pension programs for the State of California and local public agencies.

He says the known deficiency in actuarial reserves for state employees was $602 million as of June 30, 1969 and he has no idea what the shortage might be for local agency employees covered under the system.

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, chairman of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, says, "The report ... "raises more questions than it answers."

NOBODY SEEMS TO KNOW how the pension fund for state employees came to be in arrears to the tune of some $602 million, and Merrifield says no recommendations, financial plans or timetables are offered as to how the state should make up the deficit.

He also reported there are no plans for determining the actuarial deficiency of local agencies to the pension fund or suggested plans for repayment.

The Public Employees Retirement System is not just a little savings account tucked away for a rainy day. PERS assets of $4.5 billion are within a few hundred million of those of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph and are larger than Pacific Gas and Electric, Wells Fargo Bank and Crocker National Bank resources.

The system is managed by an eight-member board of administration, consisting of a representative from the State Personnel Board, the director of the Department of Finance, a representative from the University of California, one each from a life insurance company and a bank (appointed by the governor), and three members elected from the active membership of the system.

This board has exclusive control and administration of the Public Employees Retirement Fund, administers the Legislators' Retirement Fund, the Old Age and Survivors' Insurance Revolving Fund, and the State Employees' Contingency Reserve Fund.

WHAT HAPPENS NOW is anybody's guess. The audit report could be shelved by the legislature to gather dust, which has happened before to audit reports. The condition of the fund could be duly "viewed with alarm" each year only to be corrected when there's no money left for retirement benefits.

Thomas, however, says his committee doesn't intend to let the matter drop.

School Site Taxation Hits Two Districts

Assemblyman LeRoy Greene (in his address to the Marin County School Boards Association) made certain statements about AB 2628 (taxation of school sites) which appeared to be in conflict with a recent article in the I-J about the bill. Greene gave the impression that AB 2628 applied only to selected districts under certain specified conditions (unnamed).

I have examined AB 2628 again, and reviewed Article XIII, Section 1 of the California Constitution, and read Government Code section 15490 — all being involved in AB 2628's operation ... I am unable to find any restriction whatsoever in the new section which would make it apply to some districts and not others. Thus, I can only conclude that the I-J article correctly reported the bills effect. From the copy of the bill I have attached you can see from where the remark of Mr. Greene's may have originated: apparently, at an early stage, there was language aimed at confining the bill to those sites where allocations of state money had been made. The conditioning language was amended out of the bill, and Mr. Greene may not have been aware of the change.

I have some serious reservations about the bill. Whether it is constitutional deserves abundant thought. Additionally, the policy consideration that as much land as possible ought to be on the rolls, reflected by AB 2628, seems to conflict with the Legislature's recent enactment of bills designed to grant tax exemption to those who will hold unused land for "open space" purposes.

The Tam District and the Reed Union School District will be affected by AB 2628 and the subject will undoubtedly be discussed in the near future by the respective boards ...

On-Duty Veterinary System Valuable

Yesterday (Thanksgiving) we had something extra to be thankful for; namely, Marin County's Veterinarian Medical Association and one of it's members, Dr. Tom Mehloff, in particular!

Last Sunday night the combination of an unsecured gate with an unguarded moment allowed our lovable, gawky, 10-week-old, 40-pound St. Bernard puppy, "Barney", to tumble into a freshly chlorinated pool! Miraculously he managed to claw his way out but you've never seen a wetter, unhappier, retching "baby". Hours later, we had a desperately sick pup on our hands.

A frantic call to our regular pet clinic brought a prompt call-back from Dr. Mehloff with instructions where to take "Barney" without delay. This was the veterinarian who through the special arrangement of the Marin County association was "on emergency duty" at the East San Rafael Animal Clinic. Have you ever tried to get hold of a doctor of any kind over a weekend or holiday?

No human received better attention or more sophisticated examination on being admitted to an emergency ward. ...

We called at 8 a.m. the next morning prepared for "the worst" but what a happy surprise to learn from the same young lady that "Barney" had rallied in the morning after they'd both worked on him all night! What a joyous reunion at 11 a.m. with "Barney" weak but "wagging"!

Yesterday — while waiting for the turkey dinner — I had the occasion to drive a sobbing neighbor of my daughter's, together with her equally distraught teen-age daughter holding their 10-month-old minipoodle pup who had just been hit by an auto. Again an "on duty" vet had been located and in minutes the pup was out of shock and improving steadily.

Yes, indeed, fellow residents of Marin County, we all have something unique and extra special to be thankful for!

Museum Flea Market 'Smashing Success'

The first annual flea market of the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science and Children's Zoo was a smashing success.

It will no doubt take its place as another annual fund raiser for the museum.

Everywhere You Look: More Tam Junipers

Recently, a gentleman from the county came to the house and asked to inventory our Tam junipers. I didn't get all the particulars, but it seemed the agriculture department was checking on blight.

Well and good. However, in driving around Marin, I became aware of juniper bushes. Everywhere I looked I saw Tam junipers. For a week or so it became a game, or an obsession if you will. I couldn't believe there were that many plants of any species in a given area. There must be a million bushes on every block of Terra Linda.

I'm sure the man who called on me had his work cut out for him, and I'm sure there were others from his office doing the same work. So, my question: What was the final result of the survey? In the interest of pure trivia for myself and your other readers, could you furnish the answer?

School Ship Headed Straight For Iceberg

This is your 8 p.m. newscaster, Miss Jones, with an instant on-the-scene report of the Mill Valley School Board meeting.

The ship of Mill Valley schools is going a full 35 knots straight toward an enormous iceberg.

Mr. Bodovitz, on lookout in the prow, is shouting, "All clear, all clear."

Mr. Eliot, atop the mast, is yelling, "Hoist the mainsail, hoist the mainsail" — his foot, unfortunately jamming the track for the sail, is out of his sight as he cannot see past his boom.

Mr. Robinson, seated amidships, is shouting, "Check the charts, check the charts."

Mr. Everts is struggling, trying to hoist the mainsail.

Mr. Collins is weaving a lifeline out of millions of words, unfortunately not waterproof.

Mr. Cutler is manfully controlling the tiller, his view hopelessly obstructed by the other bodies on the boat.

Tune in in two weeks for your next full report.

Japan Struggles To Recapture Past Devoured By Progress

KYOTO, Japan — In the garden of the Nanzenji Temple the cut-leaf maples have turned every shade from russet and orange to scarlet. Against the dark conifers they are reflected in the still pond-like slow-burning fires. On a holiday thousands idle along the gravel paths, schoolboys and schoolgirls, uniformed members of the defense force, old women in stiff formal kimonos, their men in solemn black.

It is Japan in search of the past with a growing awareness that ancient roots are being lost to sight. Today identification with the landmarks of history has a new significance.

The overpowering drive of the last 25 years must count not just for affluence and success as measured by every economic index. With the prop of American patronage and protection suddenly pulled out, the Japanese are in search of their own reason for being. Here in Kyoto and nearby Nara the shrines and temples from the earliest centuries attract an endless pilgrimage from all the islands.

THE DRIVE that has pushed Japan to third place in the world's economy assaults the visitor like a force of nature. The great motorways linking the cities run night and day with a river of traffic. The rice paddies are being so rapidly pre-empted for buildings, rising on every side, that Japan has become an importer of rice.

In the rush of achieving a miraculous recovery from defeat and ruin there was no time to think about zoning and orderly development. So much was overrun in the fierce drive to build and produce. But now troubling questions are being asked about the threatened heritage of a time that formed the character of the Japanese people.

Will the Honda totally eclipse the tea ceremony? Does television — a saturation second only to the United States, 90 per cent of homes with one or more sets —mean the end of the arts of the geisha? That is becoming the stuff of partisan politics.

In the federal budget last year was $750 million to restore the 8th Century Heijo Palace in Nara. The plan calls not only for restoration but for buying up surrounding land threatened by developers in a 25-year program. Sharp debate in the diet preceded what economy-minded critics felt was an unwarranted extravagance.

AS MIRACULOUS as the recovery itself is the survival of pieces of the past. Thanks to American authorities on Japan's shrines, Nara and Kyoto were off-limits to U.S. bombers during the war. One remarkable survival is Hokke-ji, a Buddhist nunnery not far from Nara's famous deer park. It was first built by the Empress Komyo in the 7th Century as the mother house for all national nunneries.

The abbess, called the Monzeki, traditionally comes from the imperial or a noble family. The present monzeki, 45th in the line of succession, is a daughter of the house of the Marquis of Kuga. She gave up her name when she shaved her head to become the principal nun with duties that include a monthly visit to supervise each of Japan's leper colonies.

Her private apartment looks out on what is surely one of the most beautiful amal gardens in the world. It is a masterpiece of greens in every shade from the ground cover of moss to the ancient gnarled pines. Beside a curved stone bridge over the pond is a camellia tree with white blooms and against one wall are chrysanthemums extraordinary in size and range of color.

The monzeki, in a kimono of imperial purple, has a serenity that is more than detachment. It is part of the peace and quiet of the Hokke-ji. The padding feet of the nuns who come bringing tea are the only sounds that break the stillness.

A short distance away is the roar of the traffic, the crowded narrow streets, the shops that never seem to close, the blare of the radio prophesying still another Asian war. Here is one of the contradictions eluding not just the visitor of a few days or weeks but even westerners who have given long and devoted study to the phenomenon of a Japan that has known the heights and the depths of our time. Surviving shock after shock, an inward-turning society is determined to preserve and re-create the past as a core of strength and resolve.

India, Pakistan Head Obstinately Into War

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Hatred between Moslem and Hindu inhabitants of the Indian subcontinent has flared into two India-Pakistan wars since independence in 1947 and seems on the verge of a third.

And, partly because this hatred goes so deep that it permeates both governments as well as the populace, efforts toward a peaceful settlement so far have been exercises in futility.

Despite repeated warnings from Secretary General Thant, the United Nations has done nothing, presumably because neither India nor Pakistan is sure of what support they might be able to muster, because neither the United States nor Russia has adopted any specific attitude beyond a warning of caution to both sides and because China remains a new and relatively untested influence in the U.N.

OFFICIALLY, PAKISTAN'S President Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan is attempting to put down a secessionist movement and thus preserve the integrity of Pakistan.

Officially, India regards settlement as an internal matter and says her troops have crossed into East Pakistan only as a matter of self defense.

KHAN'S HARSH suppression of a democratically expressed desire for autonomy in East Pakistan has fallen most heavily on East Pakistan's Hindu population. They make up the bulk of the reported nine million refugees now crowded into India.

It has been made clear that Khan does not want them back.

On the other hand, India's open support of Bangla Desh (an independent East Pakistan or East Bengal as the Indians see it) is something less than unselfish.

A broken up Pakistan would remove what the Indians always have regarded as a threat and leave India the clearly dominant power on the subcontinent.

This clearly is an Indian objective in the present conflict, to be obtained as quickly and cheaply as possible and preferably, of course, without full scale war.

BOTH COUNTRIES are suffering economic damage which neither can afford.

The attempt to put down the East Pakistan rebellion is said to be costing the Pakistan government $60 million a month, which, over a year's time, comes nearly to the total of Pakistan's entire budget of something over $800 million.

Foreign trade and aid are falling off, capital is fleeing the country and joblessness is mounting.

The same goes for India. Costs for aid to Pakistan refugees have been set at well over $500 million to which must be added hundreds of millions more in costs attributed to cyclones and floods.

Transportation facilities in both countries have been disrupted widely.

Who Says Our Supervisors Don't Eat High On The Hog?

The county supervisors' "test" night meeting in October was a long one.

However, all that moaning may not have been due to the lack of sleep they suffered (as was assumed), but rather indigestion.

It seems that during the meeting's 6 p.m. dinner break, each supervisor managed to wolf down $11.35 worth of food at the West End Villa in San Rafael.

That figure does not include any liquid fortifiers which might have been consumed.

Judging from the prices, it must have been an especially enjoyable dinner. A dinner made all the more enjoyable since they didn't have to pay for it.

UNDER COUNTY regulations, if an employee is forced to work past his dinner hour, the taxpayers pick up the tab.

Thus, our five hungry supervisors — who already have their noses in the public trough for $12.000 per year each — were able to write off the dinner to Marin's "affluent taxpayers."

During the three-month period from August through October, county property owners picked up the tab for $206.24 worth of meals by the supervisors.

Some $90 was spent by the supervisors and their "county administrator selection committee" during their July meeting to which the public was not invited.

The remainder can be divided up among supervisors attending various dinner and luncheon meetings, such as Supervisor Arnold Baptiste's bill of $7.56 for dinner at the regional criminal planning meeting.

SPEAKING OF BEING HAD — Youths attending Saturday's rock concert at the new Veterans Building have every right to think they've been had. They were.

Responding to advertisements promising two shows by three rock groups, a sizable number paid $3.50 and $4.50 for tickets to attend the late show.

At the appointed time (10:30 P.M.) they arrived full of expectations.

For the next hour or so they listened to the sounds of Delaney, Bonnie and Friends — the featured group.

Then, at about midnight, the lights came on and the announcement was made: "That's all folks."

"What's going on?" the late comers asked. "What about the other groups?"

They were told that due to poor attendance, the promoter of the shows had decided to give one long show (with each group performing once) instead of two not-so-long shows.

Those who purchased tickets for the early show got more than they figured, while those who purchased tickets for the late show got less — much less.

Marin Peace Officers Nominate Lafferty

Lt. M.D. Lafferty of the Novato Police Department has been nominated for 1972 president of the Marin County Peace Officers Association, to succeed Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales.

A slate headed by Lafferty was proposed by the nominating committee at the association's meeting Tuesday night at San Quentin Prison. Election will be Dec. 17 at the San Rafael Elks Club, with installation Jan. 22 at Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club.

Besides Lafferty, the nominating committee's slate includes Sgt. Stan Laffsa of San Quentin, for first vice president; Officer Arthur Olson of the California Highway Patrol, for second vice president; Sgt. Henry Ingwersen of San Rafael police, for third vice president, and Arthur H. Fellows, former San Rafael police sergeant, to serve another term as secretary-treasurer.

The Olathe Red Cross notified the eight servicemen by telegram Tuesday night. The town brought seven local servicemen home from Indochina for Easter, and flew eight home last Christmas.

No Freeze On Lawyer Fees In Wonderful Phase Two

WASHINGTON — Awhile back I wrote an article in favor of no-fault insurance laws, which provide for people to be compensated for automobile accidents without the expensive process of litigation. To no one's surprise I received about 100 indignant letters from lawyers telling me I was trying to take the bread out of their mouths.

Well, I have good news for the legal profession. Whatever fees they lose on no-fault insurance, they will make up on President Nixon's Phase II economic plan. As a matter of fact, no matter what happens to the economy, lawyers stand to gain the most from whatever Mr. Nxon and his advisers have in store for the country.

THIS REALIZATION dawned on me when I tried for three days to get through to a lawyer friend of mine named Branch Brewmaker. Every time I called the line was busy, so I decided to go over to his office to find out if he was all right.

Was he all right? He was absolutely dancing around his office. "It's beautiful," he cried. "It's a lawyer's dream."

"What do you mean it's a lawyer's dream?"

"Phase II. No one understands it."

"No one?"

"No one," Brewmaker chortled. "My clients don't understand it, I don't understand it, no one in the government understands it. Do you have any idea of what this means in legal fees?"

"I GUESS IT MUST mean something or you wouldn't be bouncing up and down on your couch in your stockinged feet."

"Remember six months ago? How lousy I told you thing were for lawyers? Well, everything has changed. Thanks to Mr. Nxon we will soon own the world."

"Brewmaker, I can understand a certain amount of elation, but why are you throwing $5 bills out your window?"

"I'll show you why," he said, jumping off the couch. He went over to his intercom. "Miss Ramsay, whom do we have on 'hold'? Minow of Minow Earplugs, Inc? Good, put him on . . . Hello Minow, Brewmaker here . . . What's that? You want to know if you can raise the price of plastic earplugs! I can't tell you offhand, but I'll find out for you . . . What's my fee? The usual $100 an hour . . . Right, I'll get back to you as soon as Ihave the answer."

Brewmaker hung up. "Now watch this," he said to me, placing a clock in front of him. He dialed a number. "U.S. government? I wish to speak to someone in charge of raising the price of plastic earplugs . . . No, don't hurry . . . I'll hold on."

An hour and a half later Brewmaker had yet to find anyone in charge of earplugs. He said to me. "It usually takes about three days to get anyone to talk to me." He laughed. "Then it takes another three days to explain the problem. Then they always demand more information. Then I have to go over and see the guy. It takes a half-day to find him and a day to get in to see him. Then when I finally do, it turns out he's the wrong guy, and I have to start all over again."

"AND ALL THE TIME the clock is ticking," I said.

"I've had cases since Phase II started, and I've yet to get an answer out of anyone in the government on what my client can do. My phone is ringing day and night with desperate businessmen askingfor guidelines. The only thing I can do is put them on the meter."

"Nixon's been good to you," I said to Brewmaker.

Brewmaker's secretary came in. "Mr. Saladash f Saladash Corkscrews, Inc. has just hit a Cost of Living councilor on the jaw and wants to know if you'll defend him."

Brewmaker shook his head sadly. "I told Saladash not to appear at the Cost of Living Council without a lawyer. But I guess I can't blame him. If I made corkscrews and tried to find out from the government what I could charge for them, I'd eventually hit somebody, too."

City Employee Bill Rejected

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate yesterday overwhelmingly rejected a bill which would have prohibited charter cities and counties from requiring employes to live in the city in which they work.

The bill was defeated 12-13 after Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, said, "I don't believe it is any of the business of the legislature" where city employes live.

The bill by Assemblyman John Quimby, D-San Bernardino, would not have applied to Los Angeles or San Francisco.

It would have allowed charter cities to regulate how far an employe could live from his place of work. But it would have barred requirements that an employe actually live within the city of employment.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

An Expert Defender Forgets The Principle Of Present Play

"What sort of hand does declarer hold?" is the question you must ask yourself when you are a defender. Forget about all the hands you can't beat and concentrate on the kind of beatable hand that declarer is most likely to hold. An expert defender lost sight of this principle during a national team selection match held in New Orleans a few weeks ago.

WITH ACE

West opened the six of clubs, and East naturally won with the ace. Now East gave his next play only cursory consideration (translation: no thought at all) and returned the queen of clubs to declarer's king.

Los Angeles expert Mike Lawrence, a member of the victorious Dallas Aces team, drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king, hoping that the queen would fall.

LAUNCHES SPADES

Undaunted by the moderately bad break in trumps, Lawrence began on the spades. All would go well if the spades were 3-3 or if West held four low spades.

As it happened, West followed to three rounds of spades, while declarer got rid of a diamond. Lawrence then led a fourth spade from dummy, discarding another diamond while West used up his trump trick. The defenders could then get only one diamond trick.

POOR EXCUSE

"I thought you had a singleton club," East stammered when his partner looked at him accusingly. This was, of course, possible; but it was far more likely that West had the king of diamonds. East should have led the three of diamonds at the second trick.

West would win with the king of diamonds and would return the jack of diamonds. After disposing of the diamonds East could return a club and hope that his partner had opened a singleton.

DAILY QUESTION

♠ - 9 4 3
♥ - 3
♦ - A 10 3
♣ - A Q 10 8 7 5.
What do you say?

Answer: Bid one club or pass.

Experts of the last generation would have opened this hand automatically, but modern experts would consider it a borderline hand.

Newark Schools To Fly New Flag

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—The Newark Board of Education voted late Tuesday night to install the black liberation banner in every city school where a majority of pupils are black.

Hundreds of black students, dozens of whom had criticized the school system and the board during the lengthy, emotional meeting, greeted the resolution with wild cheering.

Lawrence Hamm, the city's newly-appointed 17-year-old board member, made the motion to place the red, black and green flag in Newark schools. The five board members present, four blacks and one Puerto Rican, unanimously approved the proposal.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Not-Fresh Food Could Wipe Out Vending Machine Advantages

Automatic vending machines have many built-in advantages that can be wiped out if the food is not fresh and those who maintain the units are careless. A properly serviced machine protects the user against dirt, insects, sneezes, and unnecessary handling of foods. Fortunately, 50 states are required to follow specific standards set by the vending code of the U.S. public health service. Basically, the safety of convenience foods involves a chain of sanitation. These precautions start at the source of supply, and depend upon conditions during storage, preparation, packaging, transportation, and vending.

CLEAN MACHINES vend quality products. The health of the routeman is as important as the food offered. Neatly pressed uniforms and scrupulously clean hands are a must when handling cups and servicing these machines. An annual chest X-ray protects the routeman and others. Areas in which these machines are located should be adequately lighted, and have trash containers with self-closing lids.

According to the vending code, cold perishables should be stored at 45 degrees Fahrenheit (or below). Hot foods require 140 degrees F. (or above), and frozen items keep best at zero Fahrenheit. Vending equipment should be constructed so that it can be taken apart, washed, sanitized and dried properly. Federally inspected meats and poultry prevent poisoning from contaminated items. Individually wrapped pastries packed in clean boxes with a protective covering, usually come from reliable bakeries.

THE MOST dangerous concoctions are snacks or other edibles that are mixtures of several ingredients, high in mositure content, and foods requiring considerable handling during preparation. Bacteria thrive in low salt, creamy foods, such as ham, chicken, or turkey salads, cream pies, potato and macaroni salad and puddings. Staph and other germs can't multiply in a cold environment. The critters are great hitchhikers — they get into foods via a sneeze, cough, hands, flies, and rats.

It is well to remember that contaminated foods may look and smell all right — tainted foods do not always have a bad odor or change in color.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

ASPIRIN FOR CHILDREN

Mrs. D. F. M. writes: My daughter gives her child aspirin for every little cold and fever. What do you think of this practice?

REPLY

No harm, if she knows that the child's fever is caused by a common cold and not by sinusitis, pneumonia, or an ear infection. This is the main objection to home treatment.

PAINFUL JOINTS

B. writes: Could anemia cause aching joints in various parts of the body?

REPLY

No. Arthritis is a more logical cause for the manifestation. Anemia may coexist with an arthritic condition, but is is not responsible for the joint pain.

BOILS AND SOILS

T.O.H. writes: Is there anything in the soil that would cause a child to have boils?

REPLY

She'd Sue For Non-Arrest

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)— Susan Anne Menge, 23, wants to sue the California Highway Patrol for $35,000 on the grounds a patrolman was too lenient and did not arrest her for drunken driving when he should have.

Miss Menge's case contends that less than an hour after she was stopped by the officer who found her asleep in her car last May 17, her auto hit a tree near Camarillo and she was seriously injured. A blood test determined she was drunk, she said.

She would not have been hurt if the officer had arrested her, she contended.

A hearing will be held Dec. 13 in Ventura Superior Court on Miss Menge's request that she be allowed to sue the Highway Patrol, setting aside the 100-day limit usually required by law for the filing of a lawsuit against a state agency.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Planning Agency Compromise Fails

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A two-house conference committee's proposed compromise on legislation creating a regional planning agency for the San Francisco Bay Area has been rejected by the Senate.

It was the second defeat in the upper house for the measure by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond. The measure was scuttled when the senators rejected the report on a 17-16 vote.

However, Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, told colleagues the proposal may be returned to a second conference panel in an effort to iron out differences.

The main contention in the bill is a provision stricken by the conference committee. It called for a vote of the people next year before the agency could be established.

Instead, the conference plan recommended that the agency become effective Jan. 1, 1973, and that the voters decide in the November 1976 general election whether it should remain alive.

The agency would have planning authority and veto power over ordinances adopted by city and county governments in Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda, Contra Costa, Solano and Napa counties.

It would be empowered to draft development plans for transportation, open space, environmental quality control and parks in the eight-county region.

'Brain Drain'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A retirement bill aimed at preventing a "brain drain" from the legislature reached Gov. Ronald Reagan today, minus a special rider for two former lawmakers.

The proposal by Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, was approved Wednesday by the Assembly 64-4 and by the Senate 22-11.

The bill is aimed at encouraging lawmakers to remain in the legislature instead of taking advantage of generous early retirement benefits during a reapportionment year. Lanterman said this would prevent a "brain drain" of talent.

In the Senate, a special amendment was added which would benefit state Controller Houston Flourney, a former assemblyman, and Don Mulford, who was defeated for reelection to the Assembly last year.

But the amendment was quietly dropped and the bill restored to its original shape. The amendment would have cut the 15 years service requirement of lawmakers to 14.

Aid To Crippled

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A coalition of Assembly Democrats and rebellious Republicans has failed in an attempt to overturn Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of $1.2 million for crippled children services.

The override failed Wednesday on a 46-20 vote despite an emotional plea from the bill's author, Assemblyman Robert W. Crown, D-Alameda.

"From a humanitarian standpoint, I plead with you to vote aye," Crown said, "If there is only one child in need, we should help him."

The override attempt fell far short of the 54 votes needed to reverse the veto. No Democrats voted to uphold the veto, and five Republicans voted against the governor.

No veto has been overridden since 1946.

BILL KILLED

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly committee Wednesday killed legislation incorporating Gov. Ronald Reagan's once-rejected plans for a new environmental agency.

Reaction from the governor was swift. He accused Assembly Democrats of "shameful and cynically partisan tactics" in defeating "one of the most significant environmental protection bills of the year."

The bill by Sen. Gordon Cologne, R-Indio, was held in the Assembly Natural Resources Committee by agreement of its members, committee chairman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, said.

He said the governor's charges were "ridiculous" and accused Reagan of trying to "blackjack" his environmental reorganization proposal through the legislature.

OVERRIDE FAILS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) Democrats failed Wednesday in a move to override Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of a bill requiring manufacturers to label over-the-counter drugs with potency expiration dates.

The override attempt by Assemblyman Robert Crown, D-Alameda, fell short, 41-28. It needed at least 54 votes.

Reagan vetoed the measure insisting that the state law already requires expiration dates for drugs liable to deteriorate. Crown denied this.

GRAND JURIES

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly has rejected legislation allowing 18-year-olds to serve on county grand juries after opponents argued it would create more problems than it would solve.

The measure by Sen. George Zenovich, D-Fresno, failed Wednesday on a 31-38 vote with 41 votes needed for approval.

But its floor sponsor, Assemblyman Robert Crown, D-Alameda, who described the present grand jury system as "undemocratic," kept the bill technically alive by asking for reconsideration of the vote.

BAGLEY BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation aimed at helping California schools achieve peaceful integration and avoid court intervention has been passed by the Senate and returned to the Assembly.

The measure by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, cleared the Senate Wednesday on a 21-5 vote, the bare margin needed, and was sent back to the lower house for concurrence in amendments.

SACRAMENTO SUMMARY

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Governor

Environ — Accused Assembly Democrats of "flagrant disregard" of the public for killing a bill incorporating the governor's plans for a new environmental agency.

Study — Said his fiscal experts are studying the possibility of granting local governments authority to levy their own income and sales tax to raise revenue for property tax relief.

Session — Told a television interviewer that Californians are sick and tired of legislators "hanging around Sacramento" and want them to end their longest session in history.

Sentencing Set On Grand Theft Count

Angelo Allegra, 46, of Novato, accused of grand theft by selling used cars with odometers rolled back, will be sentenced in Marin Superior Court on Dec. 27.

He has pleaded guilty to one count of grand theft in Marin Municipal Court.

Allegra worked for Timothy Daniel O'Donnell, 31, a former San Rafael police officer, who ran I and D Autos in Ignacio until about four months ago.

O'Donnell faces seven counts of felony grand theft in connection with odometer tampering. He is to plead to the charges Dec. 6 in Marin Municipal Court.

O'Donnell and Allegra were arrested last month after an extensive investigation by the state Department of Motor Vehicles. Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas said that O'Donnell bought used cars, rolled back odometers, and resold the cars at high prices on the basis of the low mileage.

Pollution Forms Out In Michigan

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Nearly 30,000 Michigan industries and commercial enterprises have received their first wastewater reporting forms from the Michigan Water Resources Commission to begin enforcement of the "Truth in Pollution Law."

The law requires wastewater dischargers to pay annual surveillance fees for increased state monitoring of the streams and to list each year the toxic and critical materials the company uses or produces in its operation.

BASKETBALL

San Rafael Falls 32-20

By LEW CODDINGTON

The personnel clearly belonged to San Rafael High School, but the game plan must have been borrowed from the San Francisco 49ers — excellent defense, failure to hang onto the ball, and ultimate defeat.

Visiting Washington High from The City defeated San Rafael's basketball team yesterday, 32-20, in a game that matched two fine 1-2-2 zone defenses and produced a 9-9 halftime score.

Originally the game was scheduled for Tuesday night — at least on San Rafael's calendar — but Washington thought otherwise and played St. Joseph's of Alameda instead.

WEREN'T SHOOTING

"I told the team at halftime that I was really proud of the defense," said San Rafael coach Mike Diaz, whose team is now 1-1. "We weren't shooting well, but that was mainly because of their (Washington's) defensive play. We lost the game because of turnovers and because we were out of place on rebounds."

Washington (now 2-2) broke the game open immediately after intermission by a variety of means, including sharp passing by Dave Ota and Dave Pang and good work underneat the boards by Mike Smallpage.

OUTREBOUNDED

Althougn giving away three or four inches per man, Washington outrebounded the Bulldogs for the game, 25-20, including a killing stretch in the third period when the visitors grabbed nine of 11 under San Rafael's bucket.

Harrassed by a press Washington used after getting the lead, San Rafael committed 12 ball-control errors to the Eagles' five.

As a result of all this, Washington seized a 24-11 lead early in the fourth quarter, forcing San Rafael out of its zone and bringing about a rash of fouls.

FARRAR HIGH

Smallpage was the only scorer in double figures. He hit 10 and Pang eight. Mark Farrar, who entered the game late for San Rafael, showed a nice shooting touch and was high with six.

The first half had people wondering if they hadn't wandered into a Green Bay-Minnesota game by mistake. San Rafael's zone was air-tight, but the visitors, who usually like to run, patiently worked their patterns for a couple of minutes at a time.

EARLY LEAD

San Rafael led, 7-2, but Washington gradually inched back into the game. For you statistics buffs, Washington then outscored San Rafael 22-4 over a 13½-minute stretch.

The Bulldogs shot 24 per cent on nine of 37; Washington converted 36 per cent, 13 of 36. Only three fouls were committed before intermission, two by Washington.

SEALS SMASHED — Minnesota North Stars' Lou Nanne (23) slammed the puck past California Seal goalie Lyle Carter enroute to the whiteshirts' 4-1 win Wednesday night. The loss dropped the traveling Seals to fourth place. (UPI Telephoto)

Golden Seals Lose 4-1

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Now that they've lost to the best in the West, maybe the California Golden Seals will figure the Chicago Black Hawks as softer touches.

Paced by Bill Goldsworthy's hat trick, the Minnesota North Stars beat the Seals 4-1 before 15,148 appreciative hometown fans Wednesday night. The Seals now return home for a date Friday night at the Coliseum-Arena against the Black Hawks, second best in the West.

The loss to the North Stars did three things: 1.) put Minnesota three points ahead of Chicago in first place in the NHL West, 2.) dropped the Seals from third to fourth place in the same division and 3.) showed that the Seals have goalie problems.

Lyle Carter started in goal for the Seals against the North Stars but he was replaced by Gilles Meloche after allowing three goals in the opening period, including two by Goldsworthy.

Meloche, who was bombed 5-2 in St. Louis Tuesday night, blanked the North Stars in the middle period but gave up Goldsworthy's third goal of the game in the final period.

California's Gary Jarrett ruined Cesare Maniago's bid for a shutout when he batted in Norm Ferguson's rebound at 7:31 of the second period while Maniago was down.

The last time the Seals and North Stars met in Oakland, Minnesota edged California 2-1 in a close-checking contest.

Tam To Test Road Ability

Tamalpais High School's basketball team will test its poise and its sense of direction against two San Francisco squads this weekend, headlining a schedule that sees all eight Marin County teams in action.

Tomorrow, Marin Catholic travels to face the College of Marin freshmen, 4 p.m.; Redwood entertains Lincoln of San Francisco, 7 o'clock; Drake journeys to Vallejo, 7; Terra Linda meets De Anza in Richmond, 8; San Rafael travels to Healdsburg, 8; and San Marin opens its season by visiting Rancho Cotate, 8:15.

Saturday, Novato treks to Petaluma, 7; Marin Catholic takes on Cardinal Newman in Santa Rosa, 7; and San Marin hosts Analy of Sebastopol, 8:15.

PLAYS RIORDAN

Tam (1-0) plays Riordan at St. Ignatius at 9 tomorrow, and meets St. Ignatius at Riordan at 9 Saturday. That is not a typographical error. Instead, it is a curious round-robin that also involves a fourth school, Lowell. The two schools not playing Tam play each other at 7:30 each evening. Got that?

"Both Riordan and SI are intelligent and experienced," said Tam coach Bernie Schneider. "They think on their feet and they don't beat themselves. We're going to have to go out and beat them."

The Indians won their opener against Petaluma Saturday, 75-58, using their speed and size to good effect and getting 28 points from hot-shooting Will Garner.

NEW COACH

Riordan has a new coach, Kevin Eagleson, who started for the Santa Clara team that nearly knocked UCLA out of the national playoffs two years ago. "He was a little hustling guard for that team," said Schneider, "and his Riordan team reflects his personality."

St. Ignatius gives away a lot of size to Tamalpais, but will challenge the Indians' quickness. "They have good shooters, too," Schneider noted.

"The point is not that we have so much height or so much speed," he went on. "The problem is coping with their intelligence and finesse."

Lincoln, always a power in San Francisco basketball, provides another in a series of early-season tests for Redwood. The Giants (2-0) won close games against Washington and Santa Rosa earlier.

Redwood always bites off large chunks in the early going, and this is the first time in recent history the Giants have won their opening pair. A quick transition from football to basketball by junior guard Mike Connor is one of the reasons, according to coach Dick Hart.

Terra Linda (2-1) is still in the experimental stage, and a dozen or so players are seeing action every game. Coach Bob Corley is gradually discovering who his top reserves are going to be and getting everyone acquainted with his fast-break attack under game conditions.

FACES VALLEJO

Drake (1-2), improving with each game, meets a tough opponent in Vallejo. The Solano Countians already have claimed one local victim, Novato, by a 56-39 count. Drake's John Channell emerges as a shooter Tuesday night in the victory over Analy of Sebastopol.

San Marin (0-0) meets a curious Rancho Cotate team. The Cougars played an awful stretch against Terra Linda Tuesday, getting outscored 44-14, then turned around to generate an effective press and overwhelmed the Trojans' reserves, 34-11.

San Marin gets Analy, Drake's recent victim, the next night. The Sebastopol team trailed most of the way against Drake, but always kept it close and made it almost too close at the end. San Marin's scores over this weekend may give a clue as to how well the Mustangs will fare against some MCAL rivals.

GOOD BALANCE

Marin Catholic (1-0) was more dominant in its 62-58 victory over St. Patrick's of Vallejo than the score showed. The Wildcats had good team balance and defense in their first outing.

San Rafael's Bulldogs will be trying to regain the rebounding (1-1) they showed in their opener against Sonoma and then lost yesterday against Washington. Healdsburg was a Terra Linda victim last Saturday by a wide 72-39 margin.

PETALUMA 'GOOD'

Novato (1-2) takes on the good Petaluma team that harrassed Tam for three quarters before falling. Novato's high-scoring Marty Moroski was in midseason form Tuesday night with 23 points in two quarters of play. Petaluma features a fine guard, Kevin Gilmore.

Perry Trade Prompts Mixed Reactions

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Now about that Gaylord Perry for Sam McDowell trade. It's the kind of thing that takes some chewing on and digesting before opinion is rendered.

My first reaction was one of utter distaste, because Gaylord happened to be one of my favorite Giants. He is gutsy and can be counted upon to take his turn on the mound every time it comes up. He gave 100 per cent, and perhaps 120 per cent when the umpires took away his spitball.

McDowell is said to be capable of becoming a 30-game winner and perhaps has the fastest fast ball in the major leagues. Yes, even faster than Vida Blue. He's a lefthander and Candlestick Park, because of its wind from left to right field, favors southpaws. Gaylord is 33 and the Sudden one from Cleveland is 29. That could total 80 games in the long run.

But on a one season basis, say 1972, the Giants still have only two really front line pitchers. Giving up a pitcher to get a pitcher doesn't add up to another pitcher, unless I've got that new math all wrong. The trade might amount to the difference of two or three wins, but the Giants still must come up with a third pitcher capable of being a consistent winner. You know, a guy like Gaylord Perry.

ACCORDING TO most reports, the Giants are still working on a trade with the Angels for pitcher Rudy May or all-star shortstop Jim Fregosi. With Fregosi on third, the Giants would have some kind of an infield. Fregosi became available when the Angels traded pitcher Dave LaRoche to Minnesota for shortstop Leo Cardenas.

The Angels organization is really looking for infielders, and that is why they traded to get Ken Johnson of Larkspur from the Yankee chain a few weeks back. The Angels have also signed another former Redwood High School baseballer in pitcher Jim LaTorre. Infielder Johnson had been playing for Manchester, N.H. of the Eastern League.

MAKING IT a clean sweep with the wire services, Oregon State defensive end Jim Sherbert, former gridder at Terra Linda High School, was named to the Associated Press All-Coast team. Last week he was named to the UPI All-West squad. Senior tackle Vern Kellerman of University of Pacific, former player at College of Marin, was on AP's All-Coast second team.

ANOTHER UOP player, safety Pete Carroll from Redwood High, a junior, ended the season as the fourth best pass stealer in the nation with eight interceptions in 11 games. Frank Polito of Villanova was No. 1 man in the country with 12 thefts.

According to the UOP sports information office, "Carroll was the defensive unit's most conspicuous player, intercepting eight passes and gaining respect with his vicious tackling. Guard Vern Kellerman was a steady, courageous performer all season — despite a host of painful injuries.

L.A. Gets Robinson; Allen Out

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers today traded slugging outfielder Richie Allen to the Chicago White Sox for two players and also obtained slugger Frank Robinson from the Baltimore Orioles in a six player trade.

In exchange for Allen, who hit .295 with 23 home runs in 1971, the Dodgers acquired pitcher Tommy John and infielder Steve Huntz.

Robinson, a mainstay for the Orioles since 1966, is the only player ever to be named most valuable player in both leagues — with the Cincinnati Reds in 1961 and with Baltimore in 1966.

The 36-year-old first baseman-outfielder has a lifetime batting average of over .300 and was a member of the National League All-Star team six times and the American League All-Star five times.

Sherman White Receives 2 Bear Awards

BERKELEY (UPI) — All-Coast defensive tackle Sherm White received the University of California's top two awards Wednesday night at the school's annual football banquet.

White won honors as the team's most valuable lineman and most valuable player.

Co-captain Ray Youngblood, a defensive back, won honors as the team's most inspirational player and the one with the most playing time, while the most courageous award went to linebacker Sam Garamendi.

Badger Pass Skiing Opens This Weekend

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK — Badger Pass ski area will open for the season Saturday and Sunday. Badger will be operating on a weekend schedule until Dec. 18, when it will go to a daily operation.

There are 22 inches of snow on the ground, with more snow expected today. All facilities, which include Chair Lift, T-Bar Lifts, Snowflake Room restaurant, rental shop, and bar will be open.

Texas Rangers In 8-Man Trade

PHOENIX (UPI)—The Texas Rangers obtained two players from the New York Yankees and then included them in an eight-player swap with the Cleveland Indians today in a burst of trading to open the final day of the winter baseball meetings.

Several other deals were understood near completion as the baseball moguls went through their final session, with third baseman Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs and shortstop Jim Fregosi of the California Angels the center of trade talks.

But it was the Rangers who broke a 36-hour trading logjam in the meetings by:

ALLEN PEDDLED

...trading Jones, Ley, centerfielder Del Unser and pitcher Dennis Riddleberger to the Indians for pitchers Rich Hand and Mike Paul, catcher Ken Suarez and outfielder Roy Foster.

Unser hit .255 with nine home runs with the Senators-Rangers this year and Riddleberger had a 3-1 record and a 3.21 earned run average. Suarez batted .203 in 50 games with the Indians and Foster hit .245. Hand was 2-6 and Paul 2-7 with Cleveland.

SANTO SOUGHT

Santo has been sought since the beginning of these meetings by several clubs and the Yankees are especially hot to get him, offering one of their front line pitchers such as Mel Stottlemyre and Fritz Peterson. Fregosi became trade bait early in the meeting when the Angels obtained another shortstop, Leo Cardenas, from Minnesota.

The formal meetings moved into their final stages after the most important action Wednesday took place off-stage. A blue-ribbon Washington, D. C. group met in a second secret meeting with the assembled club owners to demand a new team by the start of the 1973 season.

Rep. Bernie Sisk (D-Calif.), a leader in the four-man congressional delegation which was part of the Washington group, said the delegation was "pleased by the response" of the owners creating a special committee to work with them to find a way to bring a team to Washington.

CLOUDY SITUATION

However, the possibility of a new team for Washington remains cloudy.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, in announcing the formation of the committee, pointed out, "We did not guarantee a solution—we did guarantee to work to find out whether there is a solution."

One club head, president Mike Burke of the Yankees, called the appearance of the four congressmen and their insistence on the "necessity" of a new team, coupled with their remarks about baseball's legal problems, "a refined power play."

TEAM WANTED

Rep. Frank Horton (R-NY) announced after the Wednesday meeting that the group had presented to Kuhn a petition signed by 238 members of the House of Representatives "supporting a new baseball team for Washington."

Falcons Like Baltimore Says Raiders' Madden

"Like Baltimore, the Falcons like to establish the run and they have outstanding backs to do it," said Madden.

"They start with Jim Butler and Willie Belton, then use Art Malone, Harman Wages and Sonny Campbell. All five play."

Madden said Atlanta was "very physical" on defense while playing a lot of zone coverage in the secondary.

The Raiders meet the Falcons for the first time Sunday at Atlanta. Oakland is favored by three points.

Madden says he still doesn't know the availability of running back Marv Hubbard, defensive tackle Tom Keating, defensive end Harold Rice, tackle Bob Brown, linebacker Gus Otto and wide receiver Drew Buie. All have injuries or are coming off serious hurts.

"Keating probably will play more this week," said Madden, "but I don't know about Hubbard—he's still bothered by a bad shouldar and ankle.

"I won't decide until late in the week on Brown and Otto. I want us to be as strong as we possibly can for this game but it's too early to know if they'll be ready."

Tam Boosters To Sell Trees

Tamalpais High School boosters and athletes will sell Christmas trees in Mill Valley seven days a week until Dec. 23 to benefit the school's athletic program.

Trees will be sold from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the corner of Blithedale Ave. and Camino Alto, said boosters' president Casey Silewicz.

ABC Aide Defends Fight Show

NEW YORK (UPI)—Roone Arledge, president of sports for the American Broadcasting Company today stood firm behind the views taken on last week's Wide World of Sports telecast which ridiculed the Muhammed Ali-Buster Mathis fight.

Arledge answered the threats of Peers, Inc., and its president Jimmy Iselin, who manages Mathis, when he backed announcer Howard Cosell and the format of the show which featured highlights of the fight won by Ali.

"After reviewing the Ali-Mathis fight tape today, ABC is standing both on its presentation of the fight telecast and on Howard Cosell's comments during it," said Arledge. "There is no need to apologize for anything that was said."

49ers, Raiders Picked; Jim Sweeney Honored

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

STATELINE, Nev. — Harrah's Tahoe Racebook yesterday listed both the San Francisco 49ers and Oakland Raiders as slim choices to win their respective pro football games this weekend.

The Lake Tahoe/Reno casino quoted the 49ers as 2½-point choices over Kansas City in their Monday night game, and listed the Raiders as 3 point favorites over the Atlanta Falcons.

Other odds include: Saturday — Dallas over New York Jets by 7; Sunday — Detroit over Philadelphia by 13; Washington over New York Giants by 7; Miami over New England by 12; Cleveland over Cincinnati by 1; Baltimore over Buffalo by 16; Pittsburgh over Houston by 4; Los Angeles over New Orleans by 12; Minnesota over San Diego by 13; Denver over Chicago by 3; and St. Louis over Green Bay by 2.

In two college games, Penn State is a 12-point favorite over Tennessee, and Oklahoma is a lopsided 30-point choice over Oklahome State.

More Football

PULLMAN, Wash. — Washington State University Football coach Jim Sweeney has been named Kodak District 8 Coach of the Year for producing two "miracle" wins despite an overall unimpressive 4-7 season.

The clincher for Sweeney appeared to be his team's victories over Stanford and Oregon.

"This is a great honor for me," Sweeney said, "especially coming from such a large segment of the coaches association."

In 1966, Sweeney was named District Coach of the Year while directing Montana State to an 8-3 record.

BOSTON — Gino Cappelletti's love affair for football has little, if any, room for television and big business.

Cappelletti, who retired this year as the last of the original Boston — now New England — Patriots, told a gathering Wednesday night he was "concerned" that television and big business were becoming dominant in the sport.

"If this is allowed to happen and they take over the game, it will crush the players," said the old American Football League's all-time leading scorer, with 1,130 points.

AMES, Iowa — Ending speculation he would resign and take over the head coaching job at Baylor University, Iowa State head football coach Johnny Majors Wednesday signed a new five-year extension of his contract.

ATLANTA — Georgia Tech Athletic Director Bobby Dodd gave his personal backing today to football coach Bud Carson, seeking to squelch rumors that Carson is on his way out.

Dodd said it seemed "ridiculous that it should be necessary to endorse a coach who has brought his team along as well as coach Carson has this year (but) I know something should be done to stop the many rumors going around."

Basketball

SAN FRANCISCO — Funeral services will be Saturday morning for Pete Peletta, 43, athletic director and highly successful former basketball coach at the University of San Francisco.

Peletta died Wednesday in St. Mary's Hospital. He had been hospitalized Nov. 10 for exploratory surgery.

After coming to USF in 1960 from Monterey Peninsula Junior College, he guided the Dons to an overall record of 114-51. Peletta led the Dons to three consecutive basketball titles in the West Coast Athletic Fonerence and to a berth in the National Invitation Tournament in New York in 1965.

RALEIGH, N. C. — Captain Paul Coder led North Carolina State's basketball team onto the floor to a standing ovation Wednesday night, only hours after marijuana possession charges against him and teammate Bob Heuts were dismissed.

District Court Judge George F. Bason dismissed the charges Wednesday, ruling that police had gained alleged evidence against the two in an illegal search of an automobile.

AFC LEADERS

Dolphins' Trio Tops Statistics

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Conference's weekly statistics offer three good reasons today why the Miami Dolphins have the best record in the National Football League.

San Francisco Leads In Statistical Race

Tight end Ted Kwalick continues to lead the NFC in pass catching with 42, four better than teammate Gene Washington.

San Francisco running backs Vic Washington and Ken Willard are third and fifth, respectively, in rushing. Washington has 697 yards, three more than Willard.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance!

Building From The Ground Up

By LEW CODDINGTON

Other men seem satisfied with coaching champions, but Imants Abers of Drake High School is different. He likes to build them — from the ground up.

The architect of a Marin County Athletic League championship soccer team, Abers now is coaching Drake's first-ever wrestling team. The difficulties are great, but he doesn't appear discouraged.

"The biggest problem is deciding what to teach," he says. "The kids can only absorb so much. You have to teach the fundamentals first, but wrestlers from other schools already know the finer points."

He has had difficulty getting students to try out for the team — only 17 showed up, and five weight classes will be unfilled.

"I don't know what it is," he said. "One problem seems to be that the smaller kids have been pushed around all their life, and it's hard to convince them they have an equal chance on the mat. But really it's very fair, with a weight division every eight pounds.

"Some say another reason is a falling down in hard work among the kids," he went on. "Wrestling takes dedication, and you can't depend on anyone else to help you out, as in a team sport."

Why did Abers get into this thicket? "Because wrestling is a great sport, and it's growing. I'm really enjoying myself coaching. The kids we have are very enthusiastic, and a large number are freshmen, so there is hope for the future."

Abers never coached wrestling before, although he was a physical education major in college, has attended numerous clinics, and claims a good knowledge of the sport.

Certainly his credentials as an architect are impressive. He was the moving force behind Drake's entry into soccer four years ago, when he asked for a signup, got 50 names and assembled a team. But building a wrestling team requires a different approach.

"The students at Drake have never seen wrestling and don't know what to expect," he said. "We haven't been promoting very much, either — it's not like Beverly Hills High School, where they have a 'Wrestling Week' and all sorts of other publicity.

"Also, there's a motivational problem. The kids don't have anybody to look up to. In soccer they had experienced players and stars from former years."

Abers says Drake athletic director Carl "Red" Brown was the main advocate of adopting wrestling. "We didn't do it before because facilities were limited, because nobody was pushing it, and because we had no coach," Abers said.

"But I'm really interested in this sport."

VAGABONDS — Novato High would do well to consider changing its team nickname from Hornets to Nomads. Novato plays its first 12 basketball games on the road this year, and officially won't see the inside of its own gym until January.

EYE IN THE SKY — In case you're wondering about the camera in Terra Linda's gym, the answer is that it's used to video-tape all the basketball games. The Trojans do it for other sports, too. Students in certain physical education classes run the operation. Shoot — you're on candid camera!

Cavs Crush Houston; Trail By 1

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

There's a new division contender in the National Basketball Association —and would you believe the Cleveland Cavaliers?

The Cavaliers had scored one victory in 23 games at this stage of the 1970-71 NBA race and were being ridiculed as one of the worst teams in pro basketball history.

But they moved past the Cincinnati Royals into second place in the Central Division of the Eastern Conference when they defeated the Houston Rockets, 116-106 Wednesday night and are now only one game behind the division-leading Baltimore Bullets. However, the Cavaliers have won five straight games and appear at least capable of maintaining their role as division contenders if not of taking the title.

The Chicago Bulls beat the Royals, 109-101, the Los Angeles Lakers downed the Boston Celtics, 124-111, the Philadelphia 76ers topped the Seattle SuperSonics, 102-98, the Atlanta Hawks defeated the Detroit Pistons, 117-103, and the Phoenix Suns whipped the Portland Trail Blazers, 139-103, in other Wednesday night games.

'MICKEY MOUSE OPEN'

Jack Nicklaus Plans Chase In Fund Race

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Golf great Jack Nicklaus plans to chase his World Cup teammate Lee Trevino down to the wire to try to claim top spot among this season's money winners.

Nicklaus, trailing Trevino by less than $16,000 going into today's start of the $150,000 Walt Disney World Open, said he would enter the Bahamas National Open at Freeport next week if he fails at Disney to overtake Trevino's earnings of $229,552 so far.

"The money tille is an important title," said Nicklaus. But, he added, "I wouldn't burn myself out in any one year in order to win it."

PALMER CONTENDS

Old pro Arnold Palmer also could move into first place among the money winners with the $30,000 going to the winner of this next-to-last stop on the PGA tour. Palmer has collected $200,706 so far this year.

Nicklaus and Floridian Bert Yancey both hit record 65s, seven under par, during Wednesday's pro-am rounds over Disney's Magnolia course, one of two golf tracks at the new $400 million resort center.

Yancey said the 6,924-yard layout is "an easy course" and added:

MICKEY MOUSE

"It's strictly a Mickey Mouse course. But it's ideal for what Disney wants—a place where people can relax. The fairways are wide and the greens are in excellent shape."

Nicklaus rated the Magnolia course, getting its first test under the cleats of pros, as "far better than the average course."

"I like the course," he said. "It's built to take play that comes from the hotels and it adapts reasonably well for tournaments. It does what it's meant to do."

YANCEY PREDICTS

Both Nicklaus and Yancey said the winner probably would come in at least 16 under par.

Nicklaus said the heavily-trapped golf course, carved out of Florida scrubland, offered amateurs an interesting afternoon while still presenting a challenge to the pros.

CHAMPION FIELD

"And that's not easy to accomplish," he said.

The field in this first so-called "Mickey Mouse Open" held all the past Masters champions since 1961, including Charles Coody, Billy Casper, George Archer, Bob Goalby, Gay Brewer, Nicklaus and Palmer.

Trevino has been taking shots to ease an attack of bursitis in his right arm, but he doesn't expect it to affect his play. The happy Mexican was also without the familiar bandage on his arm which covers the tattooed name of a former girlfriend—Ann.

Three strokes behind Nicklaus and Yancey in the pro-am scoring were Tommy Aaron and Dale Douglas, with 68s.

Sam McDowell Finally A Giant

Sam McDowell, now 29, finally is a Giant. When he was 17 he was ready to sign with the Giants. He had just pitched Central Catholic High of Pittsburgh to the Pennsylvania State Championship. He pitched a no-hitter and hit a home run to win the finale, 1-0.

There were lots of major league scouts in the stands that day in 1960. One of them was Charlie Fox. But it wasn't the first game Fox had seen the southpaw pitch. Fox, now manager of the Giants, was a Giant scout in the Pennsylvania-Ohio territory a decade ago. He had followed McDowell since he was a 15-year-old high school sophomore. The scout and high school boy had become good friends.

BUT AFTER McDowell's high school no-hitter and home run that won a state championship, Fox had to tell him: "I can't sign you. I haven't got enough money."

Fox explained to McDowell and his father, Tommy McDowell, a star quarterback at the University of Pittsburg in the 1930s, that the Giants had used all of their budgeted 1960 bonus money to sign two catchers — Randy Hundley and Dick Dietz. Hundley received a $115,000 bonus, Dietz $90,000.

SO HOOT EVERS and Bob Kennedy, a couple of Cleveland Indian scouts who were highly recommended to McDowell and his father by Fox, signed the high school whiz to an $85,000 bonus contract.

"If we hadn't tapped our bonus budget in 1960 Sam would have been with the Giants instead of Indians these past years," Fox recalled in a telephone conversation following Monday's trade in Phoenix of Gaylord Perry and Frank Duffy for McDowell.

Yet, Fox was sorry to see Perry go, as well as Duffy, the ex-Stanford star acquired for George Foster from Cincinnati at the end of May in this year's campaign as a backup shortstop man for Chris Speier.

"PERRY IS A great competitor," said Fox. "And Duffy is a young man with a potentially great future. But we needed a strong southpaw starter, a man like McDowell. I know his background from the time he was a skinny kid in high school. He is as determined a competitor as Perry."

Fox recalled that in 1959 the Giants traded Bill White and Ray Jablonski for Sam Jones who almost pitched the Giants to a pennant that year.

"Jones was a competitive strikeout man," said Fox. "So is McDowell. Candlestick Park fans are going to take him to their heart just as they did Sam Jones."

IS McDOWELL really a you-or-me pitcher against a batter?

"Ask Jack Hiatt," said Fox. "In a Cactus League exhibition game between the Giants and Indians a couple of years ago, Hiatt turned to the Indian catcher and asked 'Is that his fast ball?' The next pitch hit Hiatt in the ribs, felling him. "That's my fast ball,' said McDowell."

THE SKI SCENE

Improvements At Heavenly Valley

By CHARLIE COANE

Heavenly Valley seems to be the only ski area in the Sierra this season which has made any significant improvements on the mountain.

"With the addition of our new East Peak Chairlift," says boss Hugh Killebrew, "we have almost doubled the available skiing terrain for advanced and expert skiers."

The new chair begins on East Peak Mountain at 8,600 feet — the altitude at which most areas' lifts end. The short, steep chair measures 3,600 feet and rises to 9,600 feet. From the top, you can ski in any direction into Nevada or California from this new lift and connect with the other lifts. Advanced or expert skiers, without riding on another lift, could ski to any of three parking lots — the main lot where the lodge is located (West), the new parking area at the top of Kingsberry Grade (North), or the casino areas.

"There are groomed runs to the Kingsberry lot," said Killebrew, "but the runs to the Heavenly Valley West lot and the casino lots involve skiing through some trees and ungroomed areas. I wouldn't recommend that for intermediates, but it can be delightful for good skiers."

Restaurant and ticket facilities are available from either of the Heavenly Valley parking areas.

The men's Olympic downhill run, which begins at the top of East Peak, can be skied 4,000 vertical feet to its end. As yet, there's no chairlift back up, and a car would have to meet you if you ventured all the way down.

When one first arrives at Heavenly Valley, he is staring straight at the face of the famous gunbarrel run — a pretty good workout by anyone's standards.

Heavenly, too, has made the switch to the GLM (Graduated Length Method) of teaching people how to ski. There are 75 instructors on weekends and a learn-to-ski week package of lifts and lessons runs $62.50. Ticket booklets are also offered with 10, 15, 20 or 25 tickets in each book at a considerable savings over the daily $9 adult price. A children's season pass is a particular bargain — $100 for high schoolers on down.

The NASTAR (National Standard Race) is run only on Fridays in conjunction with the ski school. If enough people on weekends express an interest in NASTAR, Killebrew will consider it.

Heavenly Valley will host a World Cup Race Feb. 28 — March 5, including the downhill, giant slalom and slalom for men and women. All three events at one spot in America has not happened in a long time. The finest skiers in the world will compete.

Royals Get Jones

Ranger Romp Over Buffalo, 7-2

The New York Rangers are certainly a stingy lot — just ask the Buffalo Sabres.

The Sabres lost 7-2 Wednesday night to the defense-conscious Rangers. New York, which won the Vezina Trophy last season for allowing the fewest goals, maintained its two-point advantage in the Eastern Division with the win.

Montreal maintained its runnerup position behind New York by overcoming a two-goal deficit to beat the Los Angeles Kings, 5-3, and in other games the Pittsburgh Penguins ended a six-game losing streak by beating the Detroit Red Wings, 4-2, and the Toronto Maple Leafs beat the St. Louis Blues, 4-2.

Floridians Top Dallas; Advance To Third Place

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Floridians moved into third place in the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division Wednesday night—the hard way.

The Floridians jumped a notch in the Eastern standings by winning on the road —a 107-106 overtime triumph over the Dallas Chaps at Dallas, Tex. The Chaps forced the Floridians into overtime when Rich Jones' 15-foot jump shot tied the score at 94-94 after regulation but muffed a chance to tie the score again when George Johnson missed an eight-foot shot with six seconds left in overtime.

Mack Calvin's two free throws with 12 seconds left had given the Floridians their final margin. Calvin had 22 points, No. 2 on the Floridians behind Willie Long's 26 while Steve Jones scored 26 points for the Chaps.

The victory raised the Floridians' record to 11-14, a half-game ahead of the Pittsburgh Condors, who bowed to the Carolina Cougars, 118-117, in the only other Wednesday night game.

Dog Signs Favorable For Amicable Peking Session

HONG KONG (UPI)—President Nixon (Ox) is scheduled to sweep into Peking only six days after the Chinese celebrate the New Year of the Rat, and the signs are favorable for an amicable meeting with Chairman Mao Tse-tung (Snake).

Talks with Premier Chou En-lai (Dog), despite his reputation for affability, may be another matter if the legends of the ancient Chinese horoscope are to be believed.

In olden days, it is likely the crash of cymbals and the sound and smell of firecrackers still would be reverberating in the Chinese capital in celebration of the first year in the 12-animal cycle of the Oriental zodiac.

But the no-nonsense leaders of the People's Repuboic of China have frowned on such frivolity and the New Year celebrations now are considerably more subdued. President Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Chinese people on Taiwan take care of the Dragon dances and the noise.

The Year of the Rat comes in on Feb. 15—Nixon is scheduled to arrive Feb. 21—to be followed by the years of the Ox, Tiger, Rabbit, Dragon, Snake, Horse, Sheep, Monkey, Cock, Dog and Pig.

Chairman Mao was born in 1893, the Year of the Snake; President Nixon was born in 1913, the Year of the Ox; and Premier Chou was born in 1898, the Year of the Dog.

There are wheels within wheels in Oriental mysticism, all mixed up with the relationships between the female symbol of yin and the male symbol of yang and the hour of day a person is born.

According to the signs of the zodiac, an Ox person is calm and relaxed, but self-assured and stubborn. Anger can bring on their downfall. An Ox leads a pleasant early life, in his middle phase he is likely to run into misfortune only to find success and tranquility in the final phase.

The snake people are sly and devious; they trust no one and they are unable to win the trust of others, but they pursue their ooals with absolutely selfless dedication and determination. They are intelligent and ruthless.

The first two phases of the life of a snake person are pretty good, but the final phase is not.

According to the ancient soothsayers the Ox (Nixon) and the Snake (Mao) are compatible. But the Ox should beware of the Dog (Chou), the Horse and the Sheep.

Dog-year people tend to live in luxury (of all the Chinese leaders only Chou was born to the upper class) and win a good reputation. They are dedicated to their tasks.

But their relationship is not good with the Ox, the Cock and worse with the Dragon and the Sheep.

'Harvey' Will Be Presented

A 1940s comedy about an invisible rabbit named Harvey will be presented by the drama department of Marin Catholic High school tomorrow and Saturday.

Performances of "Harvey" by Mary Chase are set for 8 p.m. each night in the school's gym.

Starring in the play are Shree White, Eileen Hicken, Sue Lyon, Lynn Donohue, Bill Larkins, Jeff Minardo and George Brown. The show is produced and directed by Rev. David M. Pettingill, head of the drama department.

The plot revolves around Elwood P. Dowd, played by Larkins, who has visions of a giant rabbit named Harvey.

Hair Length's A Burning Issue

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In the Fire Department, the length of hair still is a burning issue.

Fireman Michael W. Salmon, 25, pleaded guilty Tuesday before the Fire Commission to insubordination and disobedience—failing to get his locks cut as ordered.

Commissioners said they would decide his penalty later.

He previously had been suspended four days without pay, because his hair was too long.

Three other firemen and four officers have been suspended in San Francisco, either for having long hair or failing to enforce hair rules.

A HUG FOR NIXON

President Nixon receives a hug from one man while shaking hands with others as he leaves a Chicago hotel following an address at the 50th National 4-H Congress. The President's quick trip to Chicago yesterday lasted only three hours. In his talk, he told the 3,000 delegates that "young America has passed from the stormy night of recent years into a bright new morning."

Giant Gold Haul Remains Untapped

CHICAGO (UPI) —There's gold in those oceans —and if you can get it out it's all yours.

The total amount of gold in the world's seas, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, has been estimated at billions of tons. But as the concentration is .000006 parts gold per 1 million parts water no one has found an economical method of extracting it from the brine.

Sonoma Physicians's Plan To Ease Doctor's Load

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A proposal to use students refused admission to medical schools to help solve the growing shortage of young doctors was offered Wednesday to the American Medical Association's council on health manpower.

Dr. C. B. Andrews of Sonoma, Calif., said the basic reason for rejection to medical school was low qualifying grades, but "it should be remembered, however, that these are the young people who have a real interest in medicine."

During the three-day 25th annual clinical convention of the AMA, which ended Wednesday, Andrews said, "This pool comprises 53 per cent of all who apply for admission, and is estimated to be some 14,000 young men and women this year alone. The pool of those refused is growing at a rate of almost 40 per cent a year."

"I think that by giving the top section of this pool an opportunity to learn and to help, two worthwhile ends could be accomplished," he said. "The load on the doctors in geographically isolated areas, where assistance is not readily available, would be lessened; and hopefully a substantial portion of the assistants could later on qualify for reexamination for medical school matriculation."

Andrews suggested a program somewhat parallel to the Army's training of medical corpsmen, including two concentrated training periods of three months each.

The two training periods would be separated by nine months of practical clinical experience as trainee-assistants to doctors serving the lower income groups or in geographically isolated areas.

"I feel that after one or two years of this sort of supporting role, young candidates would be encouraged to apply again for re-examination in the medical schools," he said. "Today, these thousands who are interested in medicine are turned away from the profession, discouraged by refusal of admission.

"The screening program is necessarily strict because the laboratory, classroom and technical facilities are simply not able to accommodate all who want to enter.

"As assistants in private practice or in hospitals of the country towns, this bottleneck would be overcome and the better section of the applicants salvaged for future careers in medicine."

Dr. Malcolm C. Todd of Long Beach, Calif., chairman of the AMA council on health manpower, said of Andrews' plan that he was "impressed in that it coincides with some projects we have already going and is in concert with them. He comes from a small community 50 miles north of San Francisco and he wants to have this program where there can be relief in areas where doctors are not readily available."

Todd said Andrews' proposal would be reviewed and that the council could take it up at its meeting in Chicago Feb. 5.

"The medical profession itself looks upon the development of physician's assistants with some degree of caution but feels the concept provides new health manpower," Todd said. "If they are properly educated, they can serve a very vital role."

Thousands Carry TV In Indonesia

DKAJARTA (UPI) —About half of Indonesia's total population of 120 million are carriers of tuberculosis, although only 5 per cent are afflicted seriously enough to be a threat to others, according to a Health Ministry official.

Dr. Kusnadi of the government's tuberculosis eradication program said the largest group of sufferers from the disease are Indonesians between the ages 16 and 45, the most productive age group. The number of persons afflicted is estimated to increase by as much as 180,000 each year, Kusnadi said.

County Rejects Damage Claims

The Marin County Board of Supervisors has rejected damage claims totaling $2 million filed by the families of two San Quentin Prison guards killed during the Aug. 21 escape attempt.

The board's rejection came without comment Tuesday. All such claims are routinely rejected by the board under agreement with the county's insurance agent.

The claims were filed last month by the families of guards Jere P. Graham and Paul W. Krasenes, who were killed along with another guard and three inmates.

Countless List Of Museum Attractions

DETROIT (UPI) —One of the things to do at the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle in the Detroit River is listen to the chatter of ship-to-shore radio.

Or you can view the Detroit skyline through a submarine periscope, or take in the changing exhibits drawn from the museum's various collections such as cale ship models, marine paintings, shipboard relics and navigational equipment.

Novato's Betty Machado Wants Bridge Board Job

Betty J. Machado, twice an unsuccessful candidate for the Novato City Council, is seeking appointment to the Golden Gate Bridge District board.

Mrs. Machado said yesterday she has asked the Marin County Board of Supervisors to appoint her to the at-large seat from Marin, held by Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley, whose indefinite term will be up for review next Nov. 2.

With the bridge district in the transit business, serving North Marin, there should be a representative from North Marin on the board, she said.

Marin has three members on the board, Michael Wornum from the board of supervisors and C. Paul Bettini, San Rafael mayor, who is the representative from cities in Marin.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

Gorsline Associates Plan Move To Terra Linda, Expansion

There is expansion in the plans of Lester Gorsline Associates, now at 1550 Tiburon Boulevard, which will move farther north to a new and larger home in Terra Linda at about the first of the year.

The company, which acts in a consultant capacity for hospitals and health institutions, has taken 5,300 square feet in the Holiday Plaza Building at 1050 Northgate Drive, covering the entire east wing on the second floor.

Lease was negotiated by George Denney of Grubb and Ellis Co., San Rafael, who is official leasing agent for the building. He reports that this will bring the Holiday Plaza up to about 65 or 70 per cent occupancy, with some prime space still available.

SPEAKING OF OFFICE SPACE, building permits for more than 5.5 acres of it have been issued so far this year in Marin County, according to the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

According to the chamber, new projects varied in size from 7,000 square feet to the 72,260 square feet contained in the new La Plaza building complex recently constructed by Johnny Ribeiro Builder at the front of Northgate Industrial Park.

As a result of the flow of new tenants into La Plaza, the tally of occupants at the park has probably risen considerably since the total of 224 that was shown early last September.

RICHARD B. KARNS of Mill Valley, former agricultural specialist for the National Real Estate Exchange in San Francisco, has joined West Coast Investment Associates as a sales representative. West Coast Investment is located at Pleasant Hill and specializes in finding properties for developers and for syndication. His previous associations were with Casale Enterprises as general sales manager, with Capital Funding and with the National Park Service.

THE NATIONAL FOOD INSURERS ASSOCIATION reports that small business concerns in certain California communities are eligible for increased amounts of flood insurance under the National Flood Insurance Program.

This is administered and funded in accordance with the requirements established by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in cooperation with the private insurance industry. Damage from flooding is not covered in standard property insurance policies.

Marin areas affected are said to be San Rafael, Corte Madera and Larkspur.

REGINALD JONES of San Rafael, former president of Pico Graphics Corp., and his partner Dawson Zaug have acquired Corporate Design Center of San Francisco, which previously operated as a division of Pico. Corporate Design, now renamed Unigraphics, will concentrate on graphic design and the production of annual reports. Jones remains a major shareholder and a director of Pico. He has been an art director and corporate designer for more than 20 years.

Jones Cook

ROY L. COOK of San Rafael, president of C.I.T. Financial Services, San Francisco, has been elected president of the California Loan and Finance Association. He joined C.I.T. as a field representative at Knoxville in 1940 and advanced through successive promotions to his present position.

The Electrical Consumption Up

NEW YORK (UPI) —Americans used 18 trillion kilowatt hours of power during the last 90 years and are expected to need an equal amount in the next 10 years, according to an industry source. Included will be large blocks of power to solve ecological problems and conserve resources.

Profit-Taking Brakes Investors' Stock-Buying

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investors continued to buy stocks today, but at a slower pace than in recent sessions. Profit taking acted as a brake on demand.

While there was little concrete news to account for the market's sharp rise, analysts commented that the rally has apparently made investors forget about the recent uncertainties about the economy and Phase Two of the administration's economic program.

Also among the actives were American Telephone, Shell Oil, Pan American World Airways, Eastern Air Lines, United Utilities, and Goodyear Tire and Rubber.

Advice To Kliklok Holder Is 'Sell'

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am interested in Reclamation Systems (OTC) which supposedly has a method of disposing of solid wastes. Could you give me information and advice on whether this would be good for the long term? I know it's probably speculative. — P.S.

A. And right your are. While Reclamation Systems does, indeed, have a solution to the well-pubticized problem of disposing of the nation's growing mountain of rubbish and refuse, the firm has also had some tough problems of its own to solve. The company is just recovering from a near disastrous fire which extensively damaged its sole plant. And, although improvements in the effectiveness of the burned-out facilities augur well for future profits, they may be slow in coming. Thus, with not a cent of revenue coming in right now, four-year-old Reclamation Systems must be regarded as highly speculative.

However, earning power and market potential are there. Output of solid waste may reach 720 million tons a year by 1980 — double today's volume. And, with municipal dumps fast filling up, they simply will not be able to cope with this load. Reclamation Systems' simple yet inventive way to handle this problem is to reduce the waste to very dense blocks which may then be hauled by railway to sanitary landfiils.

Of the roughly 1.2 million common shares outstanding, 200,000 were issued to the public in May 1969.

Q. I have been grimly holding Kliklok (ASE) while it dropped from $32 to its present price near $10. Shall I continue to hold for recovery or sell? — R.N.

A. Since the latter part of 1969, Kliklok's earnings have been either flat or moving lower, a situation accompanied by the stock's decline. Results thus far for 1971 have shown no signs of improvement as per share net for the nine months to September fell 24 per cent to 60 cents on a 15 per cent drop in revenues.

Near term outlook is unexciting; and until Kliklok can turn operations around, shares may remain at or near present levels. Sell.

Rash Of 101 Accidents During Commute Hour

A strong prewinter storm moved into Marin today, causing traffic tie-ups on Highway 101 and knocking out power in a section of San Rafael for up to almost four hours.

The weather front which moved into Northern California about 3 a.m. brought rains whipped by strong winds. The wind peaked at about 6 a.m. with gusts of up to 43 miles an hour reported at Tiburon.

Minor accidents on the Golden Gate Bridge and on Highway 101 near the Highway 17 overpass in San Rafael at about 7:30 a.m. slowed southbound commuter traffic, the California Highway Patrol reported.

A Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. boom truck overturned on Highway 101 about 10 a.m. south of the Greenbrae overpass when its brakes locked on the wet highway.

Sausalito reported .44 inches of rain in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today. Novato had .70 inches in the same period and San Rafael also had .70 inches in the 24 hours ending at noon.

About 2,000 businesses and residences in the northern part of San Rafael were without electricity for a time after winds blew a tree limb into a 12,000-volt power line in the vicinity of Prospect, Chula Vista and Coleman drives.

Ouster Of Smog Boss Is Demanded

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials, bitterly divided among themselves as they groped with a controversial move to fire their legal officer, were confronted yesterday with demands that their top administrator be fired instead.

The all-day meeting of Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors was the longest and most acrimonious in memory. Charges of lying, bad staff morale, coddling polluters, conflict of interest and illegal meetings took up much of the nearly seven-hour-long meeting.

The emotional session erupted over the personnel committee's recommendation of last month that district counsel Matthew S. Walker be fired. He and the district's top administrator, D. J. Callaghan, have feuded for years — and Walker has charged Callaghan with shielding industrial polluters from legal action.

Nothing was settled yesterday, however, and a public hearing previously set for Jan. 5 to air charges against Walker for the first time was postponed indefinitely. The personnel committee had been given until yesterday by the board to prepare the unknown charges, but reported it had been unable to complete its mission.

Quickly stepping into the vacuum left by the personnel committee's failure to come up with charges, however, was a group of directors critical of Callaghan. One of them, San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein, suggested that the district's administrative code did not empower the personnel committee to recommend firing anyone.

The board decided to seek independent legal advice before proceeding further. And several directors reported privately that the first attorney asked to take the job of advising the board on the firing had refused to take the job.

The attorney, Louis Heilbron of San Francisco, reportedly backed out on the ground that

By MARY LEYDECKER

Angela Davis, who had spent almost a year in the Marin County Jail, was whisked in a driving rainstorm before dawn today to a cell in Santa Clara County's jail at Palo Alto.

"It was a routine transfer," said a spokesman for the Marin Sheriff's Department.

Miss Davis rode in an unmarked car and was accompanied by Sheriff's Capt. Harvey Teague, matron Evelyn Gosser and two deputies. Another unmarked car from Santa Clara County preceded the car in which the 27-year-old black militant rode.

Although about 15 of Miss Davis's supporters spent a good part of the night in a vigil outside the Marin Hall of Justice, they had been driven away by the cold and rain before she left shortly before 6 a.m.

Santa Clara County officials said they received a phone call from Marin officials at about 1 a.m., indicating that the transfer, which had been planned for later in the morning, was being moved ahead.

A Marin sheriff's spokesman said the time change was made because of the rain and in order to avoid commuter traffic.

There were no problems during the 75-minute ride, he said.

Miss Davis was taken to a small cell in the north county courts building in Palo Alto. Santa Clara Sheriff James Geary said although he had earlier contemplated "knocking out a wall" to enlarge a cell, he did not now think it was necessary.

He said there were two other women prisoners in the small jail today.

The Palo Alto facility was chosen over the Milpitas jail, where most Santa Clara County women prisoners are housed, because the former has a direct corridor from the jail into the building's only courtroom.

Miss Davis's case was transfered to Santa Clara County on the orders of Judge Richard E. Arnason, who personally inspected courts and jails of three counties suggested by the state Judicial Council.

Although the former university instructor's lawyers had asked a change of venue from Marin County, they have opposed the switch to Santa Clara County, saying residents there were equally or more prejudiced against their client.

They had asked the trial of Miss Davis, charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in connection with the August 1970 shoot-out at the Civic Center, be held in San Francisco.

They filed today for a writ of prohibition in the district Court of Appeals in San Francisco, asking an order barring the proceedings in Santa Clara County. The appellate court is expected to act next week on the request.

Also sent to Santa Clara County today were the huge file

3 Student Leaders Face Recall Ballot

Three student government leaders at Tamalpais High School, accused of not taking their jobs seriously and not representing a majority of the student body, will face a recall election next week.

Students will vote Thursday, Dec. 9, on whether student body president Nicholas Harris and vice-president Matthew White should be removed from office. The next day, sophomores will vote on the recall of Paul Cohen, sophomore class president and president of the Marin County Youth Commission.

The issue, according to sophomore Lars P. Enevoldsen, who is spearheading the recall drive under a provision of the school's 18-month-old constitution, is simply that the student government is a do-nothing body.

It is the third recall attempt in the memory of principal Raymond J. Bell, who has been at the school for 21 years, but is the first involving more than one student body officer. The other two attempts, which were successful, Bell said, also were based on allegations that the officers were not doing their jobs properly.

Enevoldsen, who ran against Cohen for sophomore class president last spring, charged that Harris, White and Cohen "don't take their jobs seriously, and they don't represent most of the students at the school."

He said White, who presides over the 12-member executive council's weekly meetings, "gets started on one thing, and doesn't finish but goes on to something else," resulting in what Enevoldsen believes is a waste of time.

In response, White said he would be the first to admit the student government "hasn't done everything that could have been done" but has been gaining momentum since school opened in September and is now beginning to accomplish things.

He cited the executive council's stout defense of fired English teacher Kenneth A. Anderson, ousted by the Tamalpais High School District board in the spring of 1970 after principal Bell accused him of fostering antisocial attitudes among students.

The executive council yesterday passed a resolution endorsing "less stress on competition, less resemblance to the military" and a program by which students could get physical education credits for sports activities on their own time.

As for not taking their jobs seriously, White said, "We en-

Campaign Funding For 1972 Killed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House-Senate conferees today scuttled a Democratic plan for taxpayer financing of the 1972 Presidential election campaign but voted a proposal that would affect the 1976 race.

The tax negotiators, facing a threat that President Nixon would veto his own tax relief bill, if it contained any form of the election financing scheme, drastically changed the Senate-approved plan.

They did vote for a similar plan, but it will not affect next year's races —only presidential elections thereafter.

The basic plan remains the same. It would allow taxpayers to designate on their tax returns $1 of their taxes to the presidential campaign of the party of their choice, or check a nonpartisan box.

Under the original plan, the financially hard pressed Democrats and the Republicans, with no apparent worries about funds for next year, would have been eligible for up to $20.4 million each in 1972. Republi-

Historic Stinson Beach Hotel Destroyed By Fire

By GEORGE NEVIN

The old Sea Beach Hotel on Shoreline Highway in Stinson Beach, built in 1915 but more recently converted into a private residence, was destroyed today by a flash fire that threatened to spread to the remainder of the community.

"We came close to losing the whole town," said Asst. Fire Chief James V. Stevens.

As it was, the 24 to 30-room hotel, closed to guests since 1946 and more recently called the Grand Hotel, sustained between $40,000 and $50,000 damage.

Firemen responding to the first alarm at 2:20 a.m. found the old structure "completely involved in flames," Stevens said.

"By the time we got there the fire had spread to the third floor and the building was doomed," Stevens said.

Heat from the intense fire shot burning two-by-fours and sparks into the air and several small grass fires were ignited on a hill behind the hotel.

Stevens said 12 members of the Stinson Beach Volunteer Fire Department, aided by about 100 spectators, concentrated on saving the Stinson Beach Motel next door. Three units of the 10-unit motel were scorched by flames.

Firemen later today were unable to determine the cause of the blaze, but Stevens said it was thought to have been started by someone sleeping in the building, used as an informal hotel by itinerants.

The hotel's owners, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Peppart, were not at home. Investigators today were sifting the ashes to determine if anyone perished in the blaze.

Many property owners were routed from their beds to protect their homes from sparks and embers, which were carried many hundreds of feet by strong southwest winds. The owner of the nearby Sand Dollar restaurant, Albert K. Engel, hosed the roof of his eatery while firemen battled the blaze.

Stevens said the fire was under control in 45 minutes.

Santiago Is Under State Of Emergency

SANTIAGO (UPI) — The government of President Salvadore Allende decreed a state of emergency in the capital province today, following clashes Wednesday night between police and rival demonstrators for and against Allende.

The state of emergency and a ban on further demonstrations was imposed hours before Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was scheduled to give a farewell speech in National Stadium after a visit here of 10 days.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Proposal Rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has rejected a proposal to require more informative labeling of food products, it was announced today by five law students who campaigned for the idea before the FDA, Congress and the public.

After more than six months of consideration, the FDA told the students it lacked legal authority to issue the proposed regulation. The agency said it would ask Congress to pass a new law requiring the labeling information, and in the meantime would urge food processors to list ingredients voluntarily.

Most foods are now required to list ingredients on the label. The students' proposal would have extended the requirement to standardized foods — products with recipes fixed by FDA regulation. These products account for about 20 per cent of the American food supply and range from cola and mayonnaise to bread, peanut butter and jelly, all without labellisted ingredients.

Gunman Wounded

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — British troops shot and wounded a gunman in Londonderry today. In Belfast, thousands of Northern Ireland families invited British soldiers to spend Christmas with them, an army spokesman said.

An army spokesman said soldiers shot and wounded the gunman when a car pulled out of the Roman Catholic Bogside area on Londonderry, screeched past an army roadblock then reversed in an attempt to ram the soldier who flagged down the vehicle.

Troops at the roadblock fired rubber bullets at the reversing car and smashed the rear window. A soldier fired two shots into the car when a gun barrel poked through the jagged edges of the smashed car window and a passenger slumped forward, the spokesman said.

NAACP Figure Dead At 93

NEW YORK (UPI) — Arthur B. Spingarn, a member of the white family which helped found the NAACP and its president for 25 years, died in his sleep at his apartment Wednesday. He was 93.

Spingarn

Spingarn, regarded a militant when the NAACP was founded in 1909 but viewed as an old-fashioned traditionalist by many young civil rights activists in recent years, served as president of the nation's largest and oldest civil rights organization from 1940 until 1965. When he retired at 88, declaring he was getting too old, he was named honorary president for life.

A prominent lawyer, Spingarn became chairman of what was then the NAACP National Legal Committee in 1911. One of his early victories was in 1927, when the Supreme Court ruled in favor of the NAACP in a challenge against an all-white election primary in Texas.

My Lai Witnesses

FT. MEADE, Md. (UPI) — The jury trying Col. Oran K. Henderson on My Lai coverup charges will hear two witnesses of its own choosing Friday and a third one on Monday.

This was announced Wednesday after the panel of two generals and five colonels deliberated all day long in private. The court-martial, now in its fourth month, was in recess today. Henderson, 51, former brigade commander in Vietnam, has been on trial since Aug. 23 on charges of inadequately investigating the 1968 assault on the hamlet of My Lai 4, failing to report to superiors, and making a false official statement.

The jury's request to hear the three new witnesses could delay final deliberations on Henderson's guilt or innocence beyond the Dec. 10 target completion date set by the military judge, Col. Peter S. Wondolowski.

Queen's Upkeep

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth II should get a 106 per cent pay hike and the nation should pay out a total of $2.5 million a year on the upkeep of its royal family, a parliamentary committee said today.

The committee, headed by Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber, recommended the queen's present pay of $1.187 million should be boosted to $2.45 million.

It also recommended big boosts for her husband, Prince Philip, Queen Mother Elizabeth and other members of her family.

It would be British royalty's first pay raise since 1952.

Crucifixion Told

MANILA (UPI) — Defense Secretary Efren Plana said today he had received reports that Moslem insurgents had crucified a Christian teacher in another incident of the growing violence between the two religious groups in the Southern Philippines.

Plana said the reports came from Gov. Aresenio Quibranza of Lanao del Norte province and the Rev. Thomas Callanan, a Roman Catholic priest.

Plana said he had asked authorities in the area, 450 miles south of Manila, to confirm the incident.

POW Demand

PARIS (UPI) — The United States demanded today at the Vietnam peace talks that the Communists give "decent treatment" to U.S. prisoners and allow them to write to their families.

An allied negotiator said Hanoi ignored the issue.

Pham Dang Lam, South Vietnamese ambassador to the talks, told newsmen after the four-hour 137th session that the Communists again refused to discuss either the prisoner of war question of the standing U.S. proposal for an immediate cease-fire.

Menzies' Stroke

Pakistani Jets Strafe India Town

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Three Patkistani F86 Sabrejets today strafed the airfield at the Indian border town of Agartala after a night of artillery shelling which killed five persons and wounded 45, in the town, spokesmen reported in Calcutta and New Delhi.

Agartala, the capital of Tripura territory, is 56 miles northeast of the East Pakistani capital of Dacca and has a population of 60,000. The air attack there was the first time Pakistani aircraft have been reported firing on Indian territory.

A military spokesman in announcing the attack said the local Indian army commander in Agartala has been ordered to take appropriate defensive action. In the past, such "defensive actions" have meant Indian army forays into Pakistani territory.

There have been several instances in which Pakistani planes have been reported flying over Indian territory and in the most serious of these the Indian air force said it shot down three Pakistani Sabrejets on Nov. 22. But those were more or less reconnaissance missions and no fire was directed at Indian positions.

Indian spokesmen said Indian antiaircraft guns opened up on the Pakistani planes which flew back into East Pakistan. One Sabrejet was reported hit and was last seen flying back into East Pakistan at a low altitude.

Military spokesmen said the air attack on Agartala followed eight hours of "unprovoked" shelling during the night and this morning. They said the town had been placed under a curfew by local authorities and that the shelling continued.

An Indian spokesman said East Pakistani rebels had surrounded a government airstrip in the Sylhet area and that Indian forces still held control of a major north-south Pakistani railway in the Dinajpur area of the frontier.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, in an address to political workers today, said the world's major powers should mind their own business and let India find its own solution to the crisis with Pakistan.

"The times have passed when any nation sitting three or four thousands miles way could give orders to Indians on the basis of their color superiority to do as they wished ... today we will do what is in our best national interests and not what these socalled big nations would like us to do," Mrs. Gandhi said.

Mrs. Gandhi made her remarks to a group of political workers

U.N. Middle-East Debate Is Postponed

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Debate on the tense Middle East situation, originally scheduled to begin today, was postponed until Friday until the latest peace delegation to the troubled area could arrive from Africa.

Presidents Leopold Senghor of Senegal and Maj. Yakubu Gowan of Nigeria, Foreign Minister Mario Cardoso of Zaire and State Minister William Eteki of Cameroon met with both Arab and Israel leaders recently to try to work out a peaceful solution to the problem.

Some U.N. sources said unofficially another reason for the postponement —requested by Egypt —was to prevent a conflict with publicity from Israel Prime Minister Goldo Meier's talks in Washington with President Nixon.

Nixon's Pledges To U.S. Oldsters

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon pledged today to work for a minimum annual income for older people and to press for programs to reverse the "growing sense of isolation and insecurity" among people over 65.

In an address to the White House Conference on Aging, on the last day of a five-day meeting, Nixon also promised the 3,500 delegates to seek tax relief for the elderly.

Other pledges were improvement of private pension systems, upgrading of nursing home care, and expansion of programs to allow the elderly to continue contributing to society after retirement.

Moments before Nixon addressed the conference, the delegates approved resolutions asking for a minimum annual income of $4,500 for an aged couple.

The President told the delegates: "As we consider your suggestions, we will be guided by this conviction: Any action which enhances the dignity of older Americans enhances the dignity of all Americans. For unless the American dream comes true for our older generation, it cannot be complete for any generation.

"This country will have to be at its best if we are to meet the challenge of competition in the world in the 1970s. And we cannot be at our best if we keep our most experienced players on the bench.

"Yet in recent years a gulf has been opening between older Americans and the rest of our people. This gulf is the product, in large measure, of a great social revolution which has weakened the traditional bonds of family, neighborhood and community. For millions of older Americans, the result has been a growing sense of isolation and insecurity.

Arizona's Miss X Gets Her Man

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI)—Marie Savinon, the 18-year-old "Miss X" who advertised for a husband so she could keep her brothers and sisters together, has chosen a Lebanese premedical student for her mate out of hundreds of proposals received since Monday.

The pair tried to get married Wednesday at a chapel at Winterhaven, Calif., but the girl did not have the required birth certificate.

"He is not well to do," Miss Savinon said of her future husband, Imond "Bob" Katton, 22. "But he is the most honest one, the one person who is right for me."

Miss Savinon, and Katton, a foreign exchange student living in Phoenix, obtained the required blood tests at a Yuma laboratory Wednesday morning.

However, the wedding chapel refused them a license because the girl had only a baptismal certificate instead of a birth cirtificate.

Katton, a pre-med student at Phoenix College, said the delay was only temporary.

The plight of "Miss X" was disclosed in a Phoenix newspaper Monday. She said she had been told by an attorney the only way she could keep her family together was to get married.

Miss Savinon's father is dead, her mother severely ill, and she has heen forced to care for her sisters, ages 2, 4, 13, and 16. She said she wanted to marry a man with "means and good character" who would take care of them.

Since the newspaper article appeared, along with her telephone number, the girl has received a continual stream of calls from all over the country.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Ruby Savinon, said Katton chose reading selections which he recited to the girl as his proposal.

"Marie was enthralled by his reading," he said. "Her face glowed as he read to her. He told her in his heavy accent, 'When I finish this, this is a proposal. Tell me your answer.'

"When he stopped reading, he said 'I've finished my proposal. What do you say?'"

Mrs. Savinin said her daughter answered "yes ... yes."

Rogers In Paris

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers will arrive Sunday to prepare for President Nixon's meeting with French President Georges Pompidou and to discuss the international drug problem, government sources said today.

McCloskey Ads Respond To Spiro

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backers of Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., who is challenging President Nixon for renomination, charged today that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew had labeled McCloskey a traitor.

In advertisements placed in newspapers across the country, a group called "McCloskey Volunteers" also sought money to help McCloskey's campaign.

The ads are in reference to Agnew's comment Nov. 18 in French Lick, Ind., at a meeting of GOP governors that McCloskey was so low on money that he "has had to sell his favorite painting, Benedict Arnold crossing the Delaware."

"Agnew shouldn't get away with that," the advertisement says. "What does Agnew mean? Is Pete McCloskey a Benedict Arnold because he won't put his party before his country, because he won't let party loyalty keep him from disclosing deception and misrepresentation in government?"

A. E. Toffel, listed on the ad as chairman of the McCloskey Volunteers and also McCloskey's campaign manager, said the ads were paid for by California industrialist Norton Simon "and a few of his friends."

"Mr. Simon feels deeply that honest debate is vital to the health and future of the Republican Party and deplores the tasteless tactics used by Mr. Agnew," Toffel said.

Two Dead, Nine Missing In Fire

HAMMOND, Ontario (UPI)—Two adults and nine children were missing and presumed dead today after fire destroyed a farmhouse in this community 25 miles east of Ottawa.

Provincial Police said the two parents and their children apparently were trapped in the wood farmhouse when fire broke out about 2 a.m. EST.

Two children, aged about 11 and 12, escaped and were reported in satisfactory condition at Monfort Hospital in Ottawa.

The fire burned until after dawn.

Police said they were trying to determine whether all 13 members of the family had been in the house when the blaze broke out.

'Fantastic Detail' In Phobos Pictures

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A photograph showing "fantastic detail" of the 16 by 13 mile Martian moon Phobos was hailed by scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory Wednesday as a "fantastic" achievement for Mariner 9.

Phobos appeared like a bizarre human skull with a huge, misplaced eye socket. The clarity of the photograph was in striking contrast to those of Mars itself which has been cloaked in a dust storm since Sept. 21, well before Mariner went into orbit Nov. 13.

JPL revealed that it received late Tuesday on the "hot line" from Moscow details of the orbit of the Soviets' Mars 2 probe, the 10,000-pound spacecraft which joined Mariner in circling the planet last Saturday.

The Russian message gave details on the farthest and nearest points that Mars 2 was circling from the planet and the time of orbit.

However, there was not yet any information on any scientific data that might have been gathered so far.

Scientists at JPL were intensely curious about the article in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia indicating Mars 2 and its following twin, Mars 3, were equipped to scoop soil from the Martian surface and study it for life forms.

American experiments of that nature have been limited principally to observations made from orbit about the presence of water or water vapor on the surface of Mars— considered essential to support any form of vegetable or animal life known to earth.

Cambodia Suffers Worst Defeat Of Present War

By KATE WEBB

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Communist troops chopped up a 10,000 man Cambodian government task force north of Phnom Penh yesterday and sent it fleeing in disarray with 5,000 civilian refugees, government spokesmen said today. It appeared to be Cambodia's worst defeat of the war.

The force was part of a 20,000-man government campaign aimed at opening Highway 6 north of the capital but spokesmen said the northern half abandoned the towns of Baray and Kompong Thmar, 66 and 72 miles north of Phnom Penh, and fled on foot and in trucks under heavy fire.

The Communists cut the 20,000-man force in two last October when North Vietnamese captured the town of Romlong, six miles to the south, inflicting an estimated 2,000 casualties. The southern force of 10,000 men was reported under attack today.

Collapse of the government positions at Baray and Kompong Thmar dealt a major blow to the Cambodian efforts to blunt a Communist dry season offensive. Military sources said the Cambodians lost the equivalent of nearly a division in teams of combat effectives in the three towns.

U. S. fighters and bombers were called in to destroy tanks and other war material abandoned by the Cambodians so the arms would not fall into the hands of the Communists. U. S. air support had failed earlier to stem the Communist drive.

Military sources said the route of the Cambodians meant that a substantial portion of the 10,000 man northern half of the Highway 6 column had been destroyed as a fighting force although survivors were expected to make their way along the dirt roads to other areas.

The northern group had been under two days of sustained mortar, rocket, automatic and recoilless rifle fire and hand to hand combat was reported Wednesday. Unconfirmed reports reaching Phnom Penh today said the Communists had attacked the towns of Tiang Kauk, Prakham and Skoun where the southern half of the task force is quartered.

The government issued no casualty reports on today's operation but said at least eight battalions and possibly 10 were involved in the retreat—an indication all of the Cambodian troops in that immediate area were in flight.

Field reports said the troops at Baray and the civilians fled west and north of the town. The high command said the retreat at Kompong Thmar was ordered "to save the wounded." The wounded included Lt. Col. Oum Savouth, the brigade commander at Kompong Thmar.

There was no report on the number of wounded but field reports said the two towns came under intense attack from freshly reinforced Communist troops on Monday and that the Communists have since hit the position day and night with rockets, mortars, recoilless rifles and automatic weapons.

Both towns had been cut off from all but air drop resupply since the fall of Romlong. Field reports today said between four and six battalions that fled Kompong Thmar were headed for the town of Taing Krasaing, six miles to the north.

The ill-fated government push which tied up 20,000 troops for 15 months was aimed at cutting across Communist infiltration and supply routes. At one point last September the government said the Cambodian column stretched through Communist occupied territory all the way to Kompong Thom and that the road was in government hands but "not yet safe for travel."

In Vietnam, four Americans were killed and four injured, two seriously, when two helicopters collided on landing 150 miles southwest of Saigon.

The accident occurred soon after the choppers had landed a force of South Vietnamese soldiers in the U Minh Forest.

As renewed warfare exploded on both sides of the Vietnamese-Cambodian border, South Vietnamese forces reported capturing the town of Dam Be in the Cambodian rubber country Wednesday but ran into stiff fighting on the Vietnamese side of the frontier in the Central Highlands.

On the civilian front, the Viet Cong threw a grenade into a crowd watching a play in the marketplace of Thuan Luan, 42 miles northwest of Saigon, killing 11 villagers and wounding 37.

As if to mark the suddenly increased tempo of the war, the U.S. command today announced that nine Americans were killed in action last week, the heaviest death toll in two months, and 78 wounded.

The death toll was the highest since the week ending Oct. 2 when 21 GI's were reported killed. But it was far less than South Vietnamese and guerrilla battle deaths for the week, which totaled 439 and 1,331, respectively.

American battlefield deaths for nearly 11 years of Indochina warfare now total 45,613, compared to 130,155 South Vietnamese killed in action and 784,762 guerrillas.

TAXES

cans served notice they would refuse it.

The issue set off a hot exchange on the Senate floor this morning with Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott accusing Democrats of "being partisan without principle" in pushing the plan. He made the statement in a shouting match with Sen. Fred R. Harris, DOkla.

The exchange erupted when Scott sarcastically noted that fewer than half a dozen senators were present for the final round of debate on the nomination of Earl L. Butz to be Agriculture secretary. He compared this to almost unanimous attendance during consideration recently of the public financing program pushed by Democrats.

"You get a far bigger crowd for the sweet smell of green money," Scott remarked. Harris demanded if Scott was accusing foes of Butz of partisanship.

"No, we're not accusing you of being partisan," Scott shouted. "We're accusing you of being partisan without principle. We're accusing you of being partisan in raiding the U.S. Treasury —of the clear, cold ruthless, sharply cutting effect of being able to slice enough funds from the Treasury to finance yourselves."

Scott continued that President Nixon would veto his own tax reduction bill if it contained — as it did while House-Senate conferees were continuing to work on a compromise bill — the $1 per taxpayer checkoff authorization for campaign financing.

Harris yelled back, "Well, let me tell you, if he does veto that bill, there's not going to be any tax bill this year."

The chairman of the conferees, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Wednesday that the compromise bill being worked out by conferees would contain the Democratic financing plan. Nixon had objected to more than $12 million in additional tax cuts added by the Senate and the conferees eliminated most of those.

But the administration insisted that Nixon would stand by a threat he made Monday to veto the bill if it reached him with the financing feature still in it.

For the fourth consecutive day, the White House said today Nixon would veto the bill if it included "any form" of the plan. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the conferees had "moved closer to the ball park" in removing the additional Senate tax cuts but added:

"The President does not favor the tax check off and will veto any form of the bill that comes down."

Scott told Harris, a former Democratic National Chairman and a recent, brief aspirant for the party's 1972 presidential nomination, that Nixon would not sacrifice his economic program "on the altar of Democratic rapacity and avarice." Of Harris' threat that Democrats would not pass another tax bill if this one were vetoed, Scott said:

"Well, you just try to get away with that—you just try it. Stand up, stand up and say to 1.3 million car buyers who think they are going to get a $200 rebate on the excise tax once the tax bill is passed. You just stand up and tell them that 'We Democrats are the party of the people and so we'll just take your 200 bucks away from you' ... Try it, try it, and watch what happens to you in the next election."

As for the charge that he goes from one subject to another at meetings, White said the council often tables matters that come before it in order to give the body more time to study the proposals, but the matters always come back for council action later.

Under an amendment to the school constitution adopted by the executive council yesterday, recall requires a vote of a majority of the constituents of a student officer, rather than a majority of what is called the general assembly.

The general assembly consists of the students who attend a monthly meeting at which actions of the executive council are discussed and overturned if they're not popular. White said attendance at the assemblies recently has been about 30.

Instead of leaving the recall question up to this bare fraction of Tamalpais High's 1,800 students, the council voted yesterday to hold the election during school hours next week instead of at a general assembly meeting.

Enevoldsen, who on Tuesday handed in his recall petition bearing 25 signatures, yesterday withdrew the document and then resubmitted it so that next week's recall election will be held under the amended constitution.

If any of the officers is recalled, the council decided yesterday, replacements will be elected Dec. 16.

Enevoldsen declined to say whether he'd run for any of the positions in the event of a successful recall, but said he thought he could do a better job than Harris, White or Cohen.

The Stinson Beach department was aided by members of the Bolinas Volunteer Fire Department and the Marin County Fire Department.

An automobile parked behind the hotel was destroyed, but by a fluke the left front tire remained untouched by flames and was still inflated when firemen found it.

Dubbed the Grand Hotel in 1963 but known to old-timers as the Sea Beach, the structure was built in 1915 by the Airey family of Stinson Beach. It was closed in 1937 but reopened during World War II to house servicemen and their families stationed near Stinson Beach.

It was closed again in 1946 and sold by the Airey family in 1963. Plans to reopen the hotel never materialized, and the Pepparts had been converting the building to a home for themselves.

For many years the hotel was the headquarters of the Dipsea Indians, a group of hikers from the San Francisco Olympic Club who founded the Dipsea race from Mill Valley Stinson Beach.

The hotel was the second historic West Marin hotel to burn down this month. On Nov. 5 the 93-year-old Marshall hotel was destroyed by an early morning blaze that routed guests.

'Delivery Man' Is A Robber

MIAMI (UPI) — Detectives are searching for the "flower delivery man" who, instead of sending flowers by wire, robbed the wire office with a flower.

The man appeared in a Miami Western Union office Tuesday night with a box, saying he had some flowers to deliver.

Miss Marsha Kazienk had locked herself in the office, because a few weeks ago a gunman took a delivery man hostage and robbed the office.

But when she opened the door and let the flower man in, he then pulled a gun, ordered her to drop to the floor, and looted the safe of about $2,000 with which he fled.

When Miss Kazienk opened the flower box she found a rose and a thank-you note.

Homing Pigeon Far From Home

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) —Cattleman Jim Tuite said today he found an exhausted homing pigeon which had a Hanover, Germany, address strapped to its leg.

Hanover is about 10,000 miles from Tuite's ranch at Tilbooroo, Cunnamulla, 500 miles west of Brisbane.

"I found the bird in the stables at the back of the homestead," Tuite said. "It looked ready to drop dead it was so exhausted."

He said the pigeon was blue with a fine blue sheen sloping down from its neck.

Movie House Plan Approved

The Novato Plan Review Committee last night approved plans by Kenneth Rosenberg for a 150-seat motion picture theater at Nave and Marin Valley drives.

The theater would show current films and "oldtime" movies.

Terms Which Face Kraemer

Because of a dropped line, a story in yesterday's Independent-Journal gave false information about possible sentences faced by a Bolinas attorney who pleaded guilty to marijuana charges in San Francisco.

Attorney Harry J. Kraemer faces maximum sentences of a year in prison and a $5,000 fine on a marijuana possession charge and of five years and a $15,000 fine on a felony conspiracy complaint.

The charges grew out of two cases involving confiscation of large amounts of marijuana in Marin.

STORM

reported seeing a pale green flash and hearing a loud noise as the power went out at 5:46 a.m. Ted Fuller, a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. spokesman, said the flash may have been an arc on the line similar to the flash when a light bulb blows out.

Fuller said service was restored to 1,600 customers at 6:32 a.m. and the remaining 400 customers had power back at 9:30 a.m.

Rainfall reported for the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. in other Marin communities included .45 inches at Tiburon, .80 at Terra Linda, .81 at both San Anselmo and Marinwood and .83 at Woodacre.

Small craft warnings were lowered and gale warnings were flown from Point Sur northward.

Travelers warnings were posted for heavy snow, blowing and drifting in strong winds covering the Sierra Nevada mountains by tonight. Snow level was expected to reach as low as 2,500 feet in the north and 4,500 feet in the southern mountains.

Strawberry Robbery Plea

Judge Robert A. Smallman set the preliminary hearing for Dec. 14.

Luncheon Tomorrow To Honor Bagley

Marin Supervisors will host a special luncheon tomorrow for Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, in recognition of his legislative efforts for Marin County.

The luncheon will be held at noon at the West End Villa in San Rafael and will be attended by various city officials as well as supervisors.

ANGELA

of transcripts and other legal documents, amassed during the months of pretrial proceedings in Marin, and the evidence in the case, including the guns used in the shoot-out.

A sheriff's escort accompanied a county clerk in delivering the documents to San Jose, according to County Clerk George H. Gnoss.

Miss Davis's clothes and the piles of books and legal documents she kept in a work cell in the Marin jail were picked up last night by her attorneys, according to sheriff's officers.

No new court date has been set in Palo Alto, but prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr. said today he expected one "very soon." He also said he anticipated the long-delayed trial will get under way in January.

Ocean Liners Sale Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House has passed and sent to the Senate legislation which would authorize the sale of five mothballed U.S. ocean liners which were built with the aid of federal subsidies.

The ships, which would be sold to foreign buyers, include the Constitution, Brasil, Argentina, Santa Paula and the Santa Rosa. In addition, the Commerce Department would be allowed to purchase the SS United States and add it to the National Defense Reserve Fleet. The House estimated that sale of the six ships — to whose construction the government contributed $112 million — would net $25 million, which would be reinvested in construction of new cargo ships.

No Drinking For 18-Year-Olds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate has slammed the saloon door on 18-year-olds by defeating a proposed constitutional amendment permitting them to drink.

But the Assembly has voted final legislative passage to a bill enabling teen-aged girls to get contraceptives without parental consent.

The proposed amendment by Assemblyman Robert Cline, R-Canoga Park, was overwhelmingly rejected on a 9-14 vote, only one-third of the number needed to place it before voters.

Foreign Aid Ceiling Accord

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A House-Senate conference committee reached tentative agreement Thursday on a foreign aid ceiling of about $2.8 billion.

The House originally authorized appropriations of $3.4 billion and the Senate $2.6 billion.

But Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, R-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and spokesman for the House conferees, acknowledged that a key stumbling block remained —a Senate rider to establish as "national policy" the withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Indochina in six months.

OBITUARIES

Sampson W. Olsen Dies At 73

Funeral will be held Saturday for Sampson W. Olsen, former partner in Sam's Anchor restaurant in Tiburon, and a resident of the Tiburon Peninsula for more than seven decades.

Olsen died Tuesday in a San Leandro rest home at the age of 73.

He was a second-generation native of the Tiburon area, born in the old California City neighborhood. He and his family lived until two years ago on the shore at San Rafael Avenue off Tiburon Boulevard. Family members operated a shipbuilding business and docked fishing vessels there for many years.

After leaving the restaurant business 20 years ago, he worked as a carpenter until his retirement. He was a member of Carpenters' Union Local 35 of San Rafael.

He is survived by two stepdaughters, Betty Ann Cretser of San Lorenzo and Maxine Heppler of Bellevue, Wash., four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Grissom's San Lorenzo Chapel, followed by private inurnment.

MRS. PAGANETTI

Funeral for Carol Paganetti, 46, lifelong San Rafael resident and descendent of Marin pioneers, has been held in San Rafael. Burial was in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

Mrs. Paganetti died Sunday at her home following a long illness.

Mrs. Paganetti, who lived at 7 Bayview Street, was the wife of Orlando P. Paganetti, an employee of the McNear Co.

Her grandfather, Charles Burkhart, was one of the first expressmen in San Rafael, and built the building now occupied by Crockett's Van and Storage Co. on B Street.

Although Mrs. Paganetti had no children, she was devoted to her six nieces and nephews.

New Marriage Rule Is Near

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The vatican is preparing a new set of rules which would enable Roman Catholics to get married in the eyes of their church without the presence of a priest, Vatican sources said today.

They said Pope Paul VI is expected to issue the document in the new year.

Marriage is one of the church's seven sacraments, but even now is administered by the wedding partners rather than by the priest, who acts merely as witness.

The new rules, according to the sources, are intended mainly for isolated areas where priests visit infrequently or not at all.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by her mother, Zada Hackman, and four sisters, Nona Shipley, Muriel Burd, Gloria Taylor and Laverne Pareto, all of San Rafael.

The family prefers contributions to the First United Methodist Church, San Rafael.

ADAM INFANT

Funeral for Dieter John Adam, infant son of Dieter and Inge Adam of Corte Madera, will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the Chapel of Light at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

The child died Tuesday in a local hospital at the age of 22 months. He was born in San Francisco.

He also is survived by four sisters, Sabine, Michaela, Brigitte and Monique Adam of the family home at 25 El Camino Drive, and two grandfathers, Fritz Neidhard and Walter Adam, both of Karlsruhe, Germany.

Friends may call at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, until 9 p.m. today.

WORD-A-DAY

Geothermal Plants' Operational Date

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Four geothermal power plants to be built in Sonoma County will be in operation by 1973, Thermal Power Co. predicted Wednesday.

Thermal president Dan A. McMillan, announcing construction permission had been granted by the State Public Utilities Commission, said operations on one unit are scheduled to start Aug. 1, 1972.

Another is slated to start Nov. 1, 1972, and the others in the next year.

Each unit is to produce 55,000 kilowatts.

Construction authority, which was granted to the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., had been protested by the Northern California Power Agency, which represents 11 cities that own and operate their own electric distribution systems.

The NCPA objected to rights obtained by PG&E to purchase geothermal steam power at the Geysers field from its owners, which are Thermal, Magma Power Co. and Union Oil Co.

As a result, the State Supreme Court referred the matter to the PUC for a determination of whether state anti-trust laws had been violated.

The PUC found that there was no monopoly since there are fields of geothermal steam which are not subject to the contract between PG&E and the Union-Magma-Thermal joint venture.

Legislators Draw Threats

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Five state legislators who voted for a state income tax earlier this year have received anonymous letters threatening them with "guerrilla violence ... and indiscriminate assassination."

The letters, hand printed in block letters, read in part: "If the legislature unhappily persists in these belligerent attempts to raid the wages of middle-income workers, it will provoke warlike reaction against the legislators."

"Since we lack political machinery and weapons, we must resort to guerrilla violence along with proscription and indiscriminate assassination if need be," the letters continued.

The letters were sent to House Speaker Charles F. Kurfess, R-Bowling Green, and four state senators, one a woman.

New Buses To Be Seen At Centers

The Golden Gate Bridge District's new buses will be displayed this weekend at five Marin shopping centers.

On Saturday, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., the displays will be in Mill Valley in front of the downtown bus depot, in San Anselmo at the Red Hill Shopping Center and in Belvedere at the Boardwalk.

On Sunday, also from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., displays will be at the Fair-Anselm Shopping Center in Fairfax, and the Bon Air Shopping Center in Greenbrae.

Local service in Marin will start Dec. 13, and commuter service to San Francisco is scheduled to begin on Jan 3. The district has 154 buses in its fleet.

Information on routes and schedules will be distributed by district officials at the displays.

A Telephone For The Handicapped

NEW YORK (UPI)—A device that dials telephone numbers when it "hears" spoken commands is being developed for the motion-handicapped by Bell Labs, it is reported in "The Sciences," journal of the New York Academy of Sciences.

Integrated circuitry converts the sound waves from the words into electrical pulses that open and close the electromechanical switches necessary for obtaining dial tone, dialing and terminating a call.

VANDALS' LEGACY

An abandoned Nike radar installation in the Black Canyon area of San Rafael is being ripped apart by vandals making unauthorized visits. Accoustical tiling and its wooden framework has been ripped from the ceiling (above) of a building stripped of salvagable materials when the Army moved out in May. A fence to the site (above left) has been bent from its closed position to allow easier access for marauders and a view of a smashed window through a smashed door (left) is indicative of the damage inflicted on the facility. The installation has been declared excess by the Army and the federal General Services Administration is beginning a survey of other federal agencies to see if any are interested in the site. If they aren't, it may be possible for the City of San Rafael to add it to an adjacent 539 acres acquired by the city as open space last year.

Parolee Pleads Innocent To Theft Of Auto

Kenneth Harvey Hicks, 39, a San Francisco artist and prison parolee, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of car theft.

Hicks was stopped on Highway 101 near Mariwood by California Highway Patrol on Nov. 24 because the car he was driving was weaving. Officers said they discovered the vehicle was reported stolen in San Francisco.

Patrolmen said Hicks's car was filled with paintings he had done in seven years of prison life. According to the patrolmen, Hicks said he was paroled in September and has been living in a halfway house for former inmates in San Francisco.

Subsequent musical events on the Boardwalk will include the Del Mar School Choral Ensemble on Wednesday, the Street Musicians, Ken and Claire Cramer of San Francisco, on Dec. 11, and the Del Mar Chrous on Dec. 14.

Boardwalk Christmas events are sponsored by Boardwalk merchants.

ART REVIEW

By LAURA DEVENDORF

"Canada: A Year of the Land," seems much too spartan a line to describe the photographs which were shown last month at the Marin Civic Center and are being shown this month in the new county library at 707 Meadowsweet Drive in Corte Madera. Yet, their magnificence defies anything other than the simplest summation.

There's just too much to say — more importantly, to feel — about these stunning photographs which describe Canada's seasonal changes in both towns and in the open land. The Canada they show is vast, both in space and challenge, with nature much more personally intertwined with life than merely happening outside a steamy window glass or heard dimly through insulated walls and traffic.

Canada is very real and its summer is blue-cool. Horses graze, hay fields are worked, fishing boats put out to crystalline seas surrounded by a white whir of gulls, birds hatch, a polar bear splashes, a child reaches for a shrub and flowers bloom butter yellow by a misty lighthouse.

Then the colors grow more intense. They burn in red barns and autumn leaves set against blue skies, or in fallen leaves floating on black water. Dawn's sun warms a weathered barn to pink and later burns the edges of clouds and trees before it sinks at night over a black, cold, watery marsh.

By now the gathering chill is almost visible. The light thins and plays with a tugboat's smoke and churning wake. Then it casts a pale haze over steamy waterfalls and lakes where mist softens the calligraphy of spine-bare branches. Later, moonlight seems as cold as the stone monolith it silhouettes against the deep blue night.

Winter comes with ice-coated forests and towns lighted against the snow. The same hot-colored leaves of fall now are sugared with frost or stilled in their watery progression beneath a sheet of ice. Horses nuzzle the frozen ground looking for a missed blade of grass. Barns which seemed charmingly weathered in other seasons now seem set in bleak resistance to the ravages of winter. While frozen "longjohns" swing defiantly on a backyard line. Life moves heavily. So the stationary parts take on new interest such as the nightlighted factory gleaming like a Christmas tree, or the darkness broken by a lighted half of igloo, or by the brief glint of light-struck train tracks.

In spring, turbulent freed waters, newborn fawns, birds' eggs, wet roads, mist and succulent, green, tender things growing out of it all, tell of the season change. And it is much too full and felt, as are the others, either to be adequately described or to be missed.

The award winning book, "Canada: A Year of the Land," for which these photographs by some of Canada's largest talents were made, was produced by the National Film Board of Canada. A copy will be presented to the Corte Madera library by the Canadian consul at the dedication, Dec. 11.

Life Will Cut Staff By 90

NEW YORK (UPI)—Life magazine, which plans to cut its circulation by 1.5 million in January, will eliminate approximately 80 to 90 jobs this week in an economy move.

Managing Editor Ralph Graves told a hastily called staff meeting Wednesday that about half the jobs would be editorial and the other half would be in circulation, advertising and noneditorial fields.

Life is facing an economic squeeze and has decided to cut its circulation from 7 million to 5.5 million beginning with he Jan. 14 issue.

More Males Are Wearing Hairpieces

NEW YORK (UPI) — An estimated 2.5 million American males wear hairpieces, according to a research company.

This is only 5 to 10 per cent of the nearly $1 billion wig market, but interest is steadily growing as embarrassment declines, says Arthur D. Little, Inc. About 80 per cent of today's wigs are made of human hair. Synthetic fibers, however, are making rapid inroads.

College Trustees Approve Plans For Kentfield Classroom Center

The center would contain classrooms for the social sciences, such as history, political science, the humanities, etc. The board was given the preliminary plans at its Nov. 17 meeting.

Board member Frances Compton questioned the concept of a classroom complex when the college is going into a different concept of cluster colleges. She wanted more time to study the plans and cast the only dissenting vote against them.

The Marin Community College District board also:

LECTURES — Approved concert-lecture series on: "Preservation of Wild Life," "Family of Man," "John Biggs Consort" and the third annual College of Marin Writers Conference.

APPLICATION — Approved a $32,144 application to the federal government for laboratory equipment with each paying $16,072 if approved.

POSTPONED — Postponed until next Thursday renewal of the district's insurance and granting Marin County a 10-foot easement on property which the district has an option to purchase from Phillips Oil Co. for the widening of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

COURSES — Approved new adult courses in computer workshop for teachers, fantasy and science fiction and career decision for women.

PERSONNEL — Approved hiring chemistry and physics laboratory technicians at $706 per month each, a custodian receiving clerk at $656 per month and Alexandra Hall at $596 per month as independent study laboratory assistant.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 8 p.m. next Thursday.

Santa Rosan Implicated In Shoplifting

A Santa Rosa man was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday on suspicion of concealing stolen property after his two companions were arrested for shoplifting.

San Rafael police said they were called to the Emporium at Northgate Shopping Center at 6:45 p.m. yesterday to take custody of two women, aged 21 and 31, who had been caught shoplifting by an Emporium security guard.

As police were driving the women to jail, they asked if they could leave a note on Duncan's car in the Northgate parking lot to tell him they had been arrested.

As a police officer went to the car to leave the note, Duncan arrived at the car and police found more items taken from the Emporium and Roos Atkins stores in the car.

Therapist Found Dead Of Gunshot

San Rafael psychologist Martin Cohen, 31, of 109 Forrest Lane, was found dead last night with a gunshot wound in the head, apparently self-inflicted.

Marin County Deputy Coroner Donald Cornish said Cohen left no notes but a book entitled "Theory of Suicide" was found on the nightstand next to the bed on which he lay dead. The coroner said Cohen had been despondent since his separation from his wife, Marcia S. Cohen, now of 934 Lea Drive, San Rafael.

Cohen worked at the Family Therapy Institute of Marin in San Rafael. When he failed to show up for work yesterday, he friends called his wife, and together they went to Cohen's home and found him dead on his bed.

The deputy coroner said a .32-caliber revolver lay next to him. A bullet had entered the right temple.

Nixon Will Meet With Top Aides

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon decided to fly today to Florida for a weekend of conferences with top advisers on the forthcoming 1973 federal budget.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon and his aides expect to wrap up major budget decisions in three or four days.

Budget planning has been going on for six months and has now reached the stage where all the federal departmental and agency requests are in, Ziegler said.

The party with the President includes Budget Director George P. Shultz, Deputy Director Caspar Weinberger and the presidential counselor on domestic affairs, John D. Ehrlichman, and others.

"They have completed most of the process of consultation and now they will review the various departmental programs," Ziegler said.

He said "this is a key weekend," adding: "These are very important sessions and he (Nixon) will be working most of the time."

The new budget will be submitted 15 days after the start of the next session of Congress.

Against The Law

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) —It is against the law in Texas to report false information about a person's credit worthiness. The legislature enacted a law this year making it a misdemeanor for anyone to knowingly report false information to a credit rating bureau or to knowingly furnish false information regarding a person's credit status to a third party. Violators can be fined up to $200.

Senate Confirms Butz As Head Of Nixon's Agriculture Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Earl L. Butz won Senate confirmation today as President Nixon's new agriculture secretary. The vote was 51 to 44.

Butz is returning to the department where he served as an assistant secretary under Ezra Taft Benson in the Eisenhower administration while Hardin accepted a top job with Ralston-Purina Co.

Some Democrats charged Butz would favor corporate agribusiness interests over family farmers and show little sympathy for programs to feed the hungry.

Butz responded with pledges of action to help improve sagging corn and wheat prices which have produced escalating unhappiness in some farm areas. In a personal round of lobbying with uncommitted senators, Butz promised to "work vigorously to protect and preserve the family farming system" and gave assurances of support for anti-hunger programs.

In closing Senate debate, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said: "I believe that net farm income in 1972 will improve measurably. This is President Nixon's goal. It is also Dr. Butz' objective.

Democrats continued in the final debate to charge that Butz' appointment foreshadowed hard times for farmers. The GOP counter-charged that Democrats were playing politics.

Previewing a possible Democratic campaign theme in 1972, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said Butz' appointment was bad

The Computer Must Be Taught Kindness

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — People talk about computers, with great respect, as though they were people.

But computers seem sometimes to treat people with contempt as though they were inferior machines.

At least, that is what Alphonse Chapanis seems to be saying.

Chapanis is professor of psychology at the Johns Hopkins University. He recently completed a series of experiments that convinced him people and computers are poorly matched when it comes to communicating with each other.

Man-machine exchanges are hampered, he says, because computers are "almost completely unforgiving of the many simple errors people make in ordinary communication."

Dr. Chapanis used teams of Baltimore area high school and college students in his experiments. One member of each team represented an information seeker — the computer user. Another took on the roll of the information source — the computer itself.

They tested among other things the effectiveness of four common ways of communicating: handwriting, typewriting, voice, and person-to-person contact.

Chapanis concluded that the teletypewriter, the chief means of man-machine communication now, is the least efficient mode.

His findings, according to the university, "shows that if computers are to be made more interactive, more responsive to people, the capacity to forgive such human frailties as misspelling, use of incomplete sentences, slips of the tongue, mispronunciations and the like will have to be designed into the machines."

In person-to-person communication such slight errors are seldom noticed and don't keep the message from getting across. But even the most minor slip by a human being can put the computer's back up and cause it to turn off, so to speak.

The experiments showed that in people-people communication, the voice is far more rapid and effective in conveying information than written communication.

The man-machine link is now the teletypewriter keyboard which, says Chapanis, is "not only slow but unnatural and even disruptive of the communication process."

So, according to Chapanis, "we will almost certainly have to snow computers with the ability to receive information and commands by voice — even in idiomatic language — and to respond in kind."

Then, the inference seems to be, computers will be less uppity and more forgiving.

At the turn of the century, one in every 500 Americans died annually of typhoid fever and cholera; today these diseases are practically unknown in this country.

Young Tiburon Cyclist Injured

Marin General Hospital reported today that Marc Horwitz, 17, of 4376 Paradise Drive, suffered concussion and a lacerated forehead, but was in good condition.

Larkspur police had been unable to complete a report on the accident, which happened on Magnolia Avenue at Skylark Drive, pending more information from the motorist involved. The driver took the youth to the hospital.

Vehicle Stolen From Montecito Park Lot

A 1966 white Volkswagen bus, with license plates VPS191, was stolen from the Montecito shopping center parking lot between 4 p.m. and 6:45 p.m. yesterday, San Rafael police reported today.

The bus is owned by Leaman C. Harvey of 54 South Knoll Road, Mill Valley, police said.

Larkspur Residency Clause Wiped Out

The Larkspur City Council last night unanimously wiped out the city's two-year residency requirement for public housing.

A the same time, however, the council went on record in favor of granting first preference for such housing to elderly persons.

Removal of the residency requirement came on the heels last month of a request by Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the Marin County Human Rights Department. He had noted the residency barrier had been declared discriminatory by a federal court.

With Larkspur's action, San Rafael is the lone city in Marin still to have a residency stipulation.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority, said Larkspur would now be eyed for leased housing units.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

HOSPITAL — Named a committee of Mayor Earl J. O'Grady, Councilman William G. Fleckles and City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst to meet with Marin Hospital District officials to explore annexation of Marin General Hospital to the city.

CATV — Approved sending a letter to Tele-Vue Systems of Marin expressing hope for new and improved cable television service to the city, and heard a resident of Hillview subdivision chastise the company for failing to respond to neighborhood complaints.

COMPOST — Decided against a proposed ordinance regulating organic composting, based on a letter from county health authorities saying they were inadequately staffed for inspection purposes. The proposal grew out of a city variance bid two months ago by an organic gardener.

LIBRARY — Named Edward Allen, principal of Greenbrae School, to the Larkspur Library Board, replacing Samuel T. Huey, who has moved to Ross.

SAFETY — Was given a plaque by the American Automobile Association for having no pedestrian fatalities in the city in the last 20 years.

DOWNTOWN — Deferred until its Jan. 5 meeting discussion of establishing a special downtown district for the purpose of maintaining a "Western-Victorian" architectural character.

APPEALS — Upheld for the time being city planning commission denial of fence variances for Pierre Josephs of 125 Locust Avenue and for Jean LaBlanc of 117 Locust Avenue, agreeing to review of fencing regulations, and upheld a decision by the park and recreation commission to permit removal of three city trees in danger of toppling on a home at 11 Bayo Vista Avenue.

INTERSECTION — Granted a 30-day extension for completion of the Magnolia Avenue-Doherty Drive improvement project because of a delay in utility installation, and asked for bids Feb. 2 to landscape the intersection.

CLOSED — Went into closed session to discuss the status of suits involving the city, including the battle with the One World Family commune and litigation over a ruptured main allegedly caused by flood control work.

FIRE ENGINE — Gained lease of a fire engine from a most unlikely source — the Sports Car Club of America. The engine, to be rented for $1 a year, is equipped especially for car fires and used by the club only for races it sponsors.

BILL — Voted to oppose AB 1098, by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, which would increase the cost of public safety pension benefits to municipalities and beneficiaries alike. Bathurst advised the legislation would cause a financial hardship on Larkspur.

Farm Employment Drops In California

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Farm employment in California stood at 252,300 in mid-November—a decrease of 54,900 from the previous month, the state Department of Human Resources Development reports.

In a report prepared for the state Board of Agriculture, the department said Wednesday most of the decline resulted from the near completion of the grape harvest with 31,000 pickers laid off.

No Free Rides At BART Opening

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Bay Area Rapid Transit District isn't going to offer free rides to celebrate the system's opening next March.

The Public Information Committee decided Wednesday to scrap plans for the inaugural bonus when the Fremont-to-Dakland line begins service.

Bathurst's Pay Hiked; No On Aide

Larkspur City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst won a pay raise last night from the city council, but his right-hand man didn't fare as well.

By unanimous vote, the council increased Bathurst's monthly pay from $1,667 to $1,750 — a boost within the new federal 5.5 per cent wage hike guidelines.

Councilman Neil Brixon noted the raise was "almost the same increase as other city employees got — 5 per cent." Those raises were voted at budget time, but Bathurst's was deferred.

While Bathurst moved up in pay, however, the appointment of his chief aide, Harlan Barry, to the proposed new post of assistant city manager and combined increase of his salary from $1,155 to $1,213 a month was deferred.

Mayor Earl J. O'Grady said he had asked that the matter be placed on the agenda, although Councilman Neil Brixon pointed out sharply that the council had agreed not to discuss Barry's elevation until it considered next year's budget.

Brixon also convinced the council — again at O'Grady's behest — to drop from the agenda consideration of including on the April ballot a request that councilmen receive salaries. A council election is scheduled in April.

Bathurst noted that pay for councilmen might conflict with new federal enconomic guidelines.

Kosygin Arrives For Denmark Talks

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin arrived in Copenhagen today to plug the Kremlin's proposal for a European Security Conference. He made no comment.

Denmark's new Social Democratic Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag and his actress wife, Helle Virkner, greeted Kosygin and his daughter, Mrs. Ludmilla Gvishiani, as they flew in aboard a special Aeroflot flight to begin an official four-day visit to Denmark.

Greenbrae Service Area Idea Delayed

Amid a tangle of problems, the Larkspur City Council last night withheld a decision on whether to support formation of a service area in Greenbrae to maintain community landscaping.

A handful of residents — some supporting the special taxing district and others against it — turned out in the council chambers last night to debate the plan.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission endorsed the formation last month, but the city must consent under state law before the matter goes to the county board of supervisors.

The council grappled with several uncertainties before referring the issue to a special study committee composed of Greenbrae residents and city officials. One unknown was whether the city could contract with residents to provide landscaping of median strips and community entrances — a possibility raised by Councilman William G. Fleckles.

Two of his colleagues, Neil Brixon and Alfred Malvino, were firmly opposed to that, Brixon noting most of the landscaping would be required in Greenbrae's unincorporated portion. And Asst. City Atty. Robert B. Breckhus questioned the legality of the plan, although he said he would research the matter and report back at a special meeting on Dec. 15.

Further, the council was unclear over what effect its consent would have on the outcome of the plan. Breckhus said he would look into that, too.

Residents in the audience were split between those who disdained formation of another taxing agency and those who viewed as inadequate funds currently gained from property liens for landscaping purposes.

The board of supervisors will be asked at a hearing Dec. 28 to form the district, thus relieving the Greenbrae Property Owners Association of the landscaping task. The work formerly had been done by Greenbrae developer Neils L. Schultz Jr., but he bowed out under an option afforded him when the development was built in the 1940s.

Formation can be forced to a vote by signatures from at least 10 per cent of Greenbrae's 2,036 registered voters, or stopped entirely if the board of supervisors is presented with letters of protest from at least 50 per cent of the homes in the community.

About $14,000 a year is currently collected for landscaping purposes, and proponents say it is not enough. Opponents say they fear the fiscal consequences if the service area, whose directors would be the board of supervisors, is formed.

Larkspur May Relent And Keep Youths On Panel

The Larkspur City Council, in an abrupt change of heart, indicated last night it may keep youths on the city park and recreation commission after all.

The council was about to adopt an ordinance amendment deleting two seats for youths from the city agency because of absenteeism and other reasons, but was persuaded to table the measure.

Charles Brouse, chairman of Larkspur's town meeting group, read letters from Redwood High School faculty, a Marin County Youth Commission official and a Larkspur clergyman urging retention of youths on the panel. The letters cited the need for youth involvement in government.

City staff, with Brouse's support, raised the possibility of keeping the commisson at seven members, but reducing the quorum requirement to three. It was pointed out the youths' absence often made it impossible to obtain the current quorum of five members.

The council asked staff to discuss the plan with the commission and report back Jan. 5.

In addition to absenteeism, a lack of continuity in service and insufficient participation by teen-age members were cited as reasons for dropping the two seats. Two youth members most recently on the commission have departed for college.

The city council created the youth posts a year ago amid considerable fanfare.

First Day's Crab Haul Small One

EUREKA (UPI)—The Northern California crab season opened Wednesday with scant hopes of a good catch.

As fishermen put to sea for the first day of the official season, Angela Kntersimone of Lazio's Seafood Co. noted test pots had drawn only a few crabs.

Fishermen and wholesalers agreed on a price of 35 cents a pound for crabs landed at Humboldt Bay, reported manager Bud Thomas of Eureka Fisheries.

First Lady Practices What President Preaching

WASHINGTON (UPI) —First Lady Pat Nixon and her younger daughter shopped at Sears Roebuck Wednesday and came away with a popcorn popper, a necktie and a pair of sneakers.

The purpose of the shopping trip, monitored by a crowd of photographers and reporters, was to spotlight stores that have voluntarily "kept the lid on" prices in support of President Nixon's economic program.

The administration's Committee for a New Prosperity has started a drive to enlist the help of large retail outlets to voluntarily keep prices down.

Mrs. Nixon bought the popcorn popper, paying $6.88, and said she would present it to her son-in-law, Ens. David Eisenhower.

Julie Eisenhower, who accompanied her mother, paid $5 for a blue and yellow diagonal striped tie for her husband and then purchased a pair of sneakers for her mother, paying $3.99, saying Mrs. Nixon could wear the shoes on the beach, at Camp David and on other casual occasions.

The shoppers also looked for a bag in which the President could carrry his golfing attire on short trips but did not find one they wanted.

Inverness Man Wins Honors

An Inverness man has been awarded a senior fellowship in the humanities by the National Endowment for the Humanities at its 21st national council held in Washington, D.C.

Arthur E. Gordon, retired professor of Latin in the department of classics at the University of California at Berkeley, received the fellowship in classical archaeology.

The fellowship, one of 84 awarded by a group of 26 citizen-humanists appointed by President Richard M. Nixon, carries a maximum award of $18,000 prorated at $1,500 per month.

Gordon now is teaching Greek at Ohio State University.

Reagan Knows Why His 'Popularity' Dips

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan blames his decline in the popularity polls, if any, on the legislature and "government in general."

"People are disgruntled," he said in a television interview. "They are unhappy about what has been done and hasn't been done. They don't draw many lines between the executive and legislators. It's just government in general."

He added, "It's in spades this time. I think the people of California are sick and tired of (legislators) hanging around Sacramento and would like to see them go home. So would I."

Reagan made the remarks in response to questions during the taping of the Public Broadcasting System's "Thirty Minutes With ..." The interview will be broadcast tonight.

In response to a question by interviewer Elizabeth Drew about his slip in public opinion polls, the Republican governor said he hadn't "noticed any great deterioration or fall away" in popularity.

He also was asked about a recent California poll which showed that of the leading Republican vice presidential candidates, he was the "least likely" to receive the electorate's votes.

Reagan, who denies any vice presidential ambitions and strongly supports Vice President Spiro Agnew for renomination, said that "maybe the people of California want me to stay where I am."

He repeated his support for Agnew, saying many Republican conservatives would object if President Nixon did not again select the incumbent vice president as his running mate.

Asked whether he wants to run for the U.S. Senate in 1974, Reagan said his position still is: "I don't know. I'm not ruling it out. I'm a little hesitant about predicting what I might do three years from now."

He spurned going back to movies: "No, I'm too old to take my clothes off."

Door-Sale Of Candy Illegal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The little boy or girl trying to sell candy at your door is operating illegally, according to George W. Milias, state labor commissioner.

Milias warned Wednesday that investigation by his office has shown that only Boy Scout, Girl Scout and Campfire Girl candy or cookie sales activities fall within legal bounds in California.

He said promoters, often using the guise of a charitable-sounding organization, violate a number of child labor and workmen's compensation laws in utilizing children to sell candies. Some of the promoters even take the tips, or nuisance payoffs the children sometimes pick up on their rounds, he said.

UC Therapists Fired Again

BERKELEY (UPI) —Eight of 10 therapists suspended then rehired at the University of California psychiatric clinic were abruptly fired again Wednesday.

Dr. Harvey Powelson, head of the clinic, had ordered the therapists back to work only last Saturday.

He said the eight employes fired for the second time had returned to work after he sent them a series of letters stating they could return upon acceptance of his supervision and if they abided by rules of the student clinic.

When the therapists—psychiatrists, psychologist and psychiatric social workers—returned, he said, they informed him they would agree to supervision, but not from Powelson. "Not your kind" of supervision he quoted them as saying. "We can't live with it."

Rising 110 stories (1,350 feet), the towers are part of a $700-million complex of buildings. Both towers have been "topped out," but completion is more than two years away. Tenants already occupy the lower floor of the left tower. The Statue of Liberty, by the way, stands 151 feet, one inch.

U.S. Throws Out Hypothetical Question On Dollar Devaluation

ROME (UPI)—The United States asked the rest of the world's richest non-Communist nations what they would be willing to concede to help solve the free world money crisis in return for a 5 per cent dollar devaluation, delegates to the conference of the "Group of Ten" said today.

They said Treasury Secretary John B. Connally raised the possibility of devaluation for the first time Wednesday before the finance ministers of the 10 nations adjourned negotiations for two weeks.

The United States put forth a "hypothetical" question as to what would happen if America devalued the dollar by more than 5 per cent. It was enough to make the French run for the telephone then join the rest of America's nine major trading partners in asking for more time.

West Germany Finance Minister Karl Schiller Wednesday disclosed what kind of "nuts and bolts" monetary situations the non-Communist world's 10 wealthiest nations discussed.

The Group of 10 wound up two days of talks on the monetary crisis with Connally telling newsmen "we did not reach any decisions and we did not solve any problems." However, he said some "hypothetical situations" had been discussed and that "definite percentages" had come under consideration by the delegates.

But Schiller, speaking later, said that "one country made an offer which was bigger than some countries expected (and) this caused some embarrassment to the others."

Meanwhile, reports that the United States might be considering devaluation of the dollar sent dollar prices plunging on world money markets and brought the dollar to its lowest ebb in Frankfurt and Tokyo since creation of the postwar German and Japanese currencies.

In Frankfurt the mark was quoted at 3.2875 to the dollar, a devaluation of 11.3 per cent from the old rate of four marks to the dollar —the lowest rate since the deutschmark was created 22 years ago.

In Tokyo the dollar dropped 10.17 per cent—the lowest since the Japanese postwar yen was pegged at 360 to the dollar 20 years ago. It had slid downward since Japan allowed the yen to float last August and reached 326.77 to the dollar today.

About 65 per cent of this world's sugar output is cane and 35 per cent beet.

A Good Steak Is Hard To Find

Most Americans probably would be surprised to learn that their much less affluent grandparents could afford steak for dinner several times a week. Today it's an expensive dish but the industry is doing something about it.

An association of cattle breeders is introducing the Alpine Simmental beef cattle into the United States for cross-breeding with Herefords, Shorthorns and Angus in order to produce bigger steers faster. A half-blooded Simmental bull recently weigh ed in at 1,705 pounds on his first birthday, a record for any breed. Simmental cross-bred slaughter steers average 1,100 pounds at 12 to 13 months. There are now more than 20,000 cross-bred Simmentals for breeding purposes in the United States and in several recent contests, Simmental calves have outperformed other breeds in daily weight gaining tests.

"Moreover," says Gordon Philip, a native Scot who manages the herd of International Simmental Co. near Kansas City, beef from the Simmental cross-breeds not only grades choice but has fine flavor equal to the best black Angus, Hereford or Shorthorn beef."

The Simmental, which looks a lot like the red and white Hereford but is bigger, has been bred in the high pastures of the Swiss Alps for 1,000 years or more. They always have been entirely grass and hay fed because Switzerland grows no grain. According to D. M. Lorenz, president of International Simmental, many a Swiss family derives its whole living from a herd of eight or 10 Simmental cows because they give a lot of milk as well as beef.

In fact, said Lorenz, the high milk production is what makes the calves grow so fast. Lorenz started three years ago to phase out a herd of purebred Herefords by crossing them with Simmental.

He had to inseminate his cows artificially because U.S. quarantine law forbids the direct importation of bulls. But Simmental admirers have established quarantine stations on islands in the St. Lawrence River where imported bulls are stationed and their semen shipped to U.S. breeders by air. The first two of these bulls, Cyr and Parisien, each have produced more than $1 million sales of semen and calves of their get in three years.

Although crosses between the Simmental and other breeds have produced much of Europe's beef for nearly a century the Simmental didn't reach North America until 1968, because of the U.S. quarantine laws and American cattle breeders, preoccupation with the problem of finding cross breeds that could withstand drought and heat on western ranges.

In the 19th Century the Sonora or Texas Longhorn was imported for that reason. But the picturesque Longhorn was actually a poor beef producer and went his way long ago. The humpbacked Brahma bull from India has been brought in this century and crossed with Hereford and the Shorthorn, fine beef breeds that originated in Britain.

With modern water supplies and feeding pen methods, the North American cattle grower is in position to pay more attention to the consumers' desire for more and better steaks and roasts. "The big, fast growning Simmental with his proven record in Europe could be the answer," says Lorenz.

Ecologist: Monitor Insecticides

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Dr. Jack McLeod, Canadian Department of Environment ecologist, said Wednesday the effect of chemical insecticides should be carefully monitored in order to make decisions on their continued use.

"This especially includes facts on the long-term effects of chemical insecticides on populations of pest insects and on their environment," he added.

McLeod told members of the Entomological Society of America that recent attacks on the use of insecticides have produced "massive efforts" toward the development of biological controls.

"But workable and effective biological control methods are still a thing of the future," the scientist said.

McLeod told of a 15-year study he made which showed the use of an organophosphate insecticide — Phosphamidon — was an acceptable way to cut down the Swain Jack Pine sawfly population in a Canadian forest.

In the Jack Pine pulpwood forests of Quebec where outbreaks of this insect regularly occur," McLeod said, "the sawfly's populations are already tightly regulated by a large number of interacting natural enemies, but the regulation is at too high a level and damage to the forests results."

After spraying the chemical, he added, the sawfly population thinned out to a level that was easily controlled by natural predators. McLeod said the most successful apsect of the program was that it was ecologically justified.

Air Collision Warning Bill May Be Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Industry disagreement over what type of warning system should be used to help pilots of airliners, military aircraft and small planes avoid in-flight collisions may delay its adoption, congresional testimony suggested Wednesday.

Because of the expected delay, a spokesman for the nation's airline pilots urged that the Federal Aviation Administration at least start by requiring flashing strobe lights on all aircraft to make them easier to see.

Capt. John J. O'Donnell, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, also urged the FAA to establish special corridors through which airliners would approach for landings at major airports.

Spokesmen for aviation equipment manufacturers told the Senate aviation subcommittee that they could come up with collision avoidance and pilot warning devices at reasonable cost.

However, they were divided over which of two basic systems should be used. To be effective, all the devices would have to be compatible with each other no matter who manufactures them.

The proposed devices were described at hearings called on a bill by Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, to require installation of collision-avoidance or warning devices on all aircraft within five years.

For small planes, a lower-cost pilot warning system would be required to tell the pilot where to look for another nearby aircraft.

For airliners and other heavier aircraft, a collision avoidance system would be required not only to tell the pilot where the other airplane is but to provide instant information on what action he should take to avoid it.

Pleads Innocent To Charge Of Burglary

Leslie Robert Jewett, 20, of San Rafael, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of burglary. A preliminary hearing will be held Dec. 14.

CORTE MADERA STEWARDESS

By PAT BALMES

While playing with neighborhood children, Nancy Haugen of Corte Madera had an idea. The idea, now mushrooming was to place some 500 flight service personnel into creative volunteer jobs in eight cities. It is Pan American Airlines Community Action Program, and it draws on resources of stewardesses and pursers who give their time between flights to help other people.

The stewardesses and pursers counsel youngsters on probation, man telephone hotlines to lonely people, take school children on visits to exotic places, guide foreign visitors, help handicapped and act as big sisters to troubled girls.

It all started in April 1970 when Nancy, a former stewardess who was injured in an industrial accident, was playing in San Francisco with her neighborhood's children. She was using Japanese coins she had collected to help them learn arithmetic, and she began to tell them about Japanese customs. It struck her that stewardesses could help in schools, so she contacted the San Francisco Educational Auxiliary and spent the summer investigating the idea with schools and teachers to see if they were interested in using the stewardesses to enrich class units on foreign countries or other subjects. Soon she was speaking in classrooms about kimonos, passports, how an airplane flies, and how to serve food attractively.

SHE BEGAN to recruit her stewardess friends.

Then Nancy took three weeks to write a minithesis on resources an airline has that could be useful and mailed it to an airline vice-president. The executive, responded, saying the airline was strongly behind her concept and asked what help she needed.

She was given control of the new program — called CAP — and was told that it wouldn't be censored or "bureaucratized." Last January, Pan American president NeJeeb Halaby appointed stewardess coordinators in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Miami, Honolulu, Seattle and Washington, D.C. Their average 70-hours-a-month flying time each was trimmed so they can operate at a desk and phone, keeping track of volunteer projects and assigning volunteers.

STEWARDESSES DON'T realize their worth, according to Nancy, the San Francisco coordinator of some 100 volunteers. Stewardesses work long hours, care for 250 passengers and keep the cabin in order during long flights. Almost all have undergraduate college degrees and have flown around the world. But they feel cut off from things at home and in the community by their chaotic schedules of missed birthdays and big dates.

"They can't take a course, follow an interest or even do regular volunteer work," says Nancy, who knows if there is a typhoon in Tahiti, the stewardess will not arrive for her volunteer job.

Nancy seeks specific volunteer work which will allow Kirsten individual growth; something she is good at or will grow in. Giving her time must be a rewarding experience for the stewardess.

"Then I go shopping in the community to find a creative work which can absorb a girl with an erratic schedule," says Nancy. And she finds an opportunity to share Kirsten's intensive training on how Pan American personnel cook with a home economics class. Even her experience serving so many aloft will interest students. There is a special way of carving, two strokes for each slice. All meals served by Pan American are from "scratch," she says.

Nancy makes out a file card about Kirsten which joins the 100 others. Among them are information about a national champion baton twirler, a Japanese napkin-folding expert, a stewardess who can lecture about France in French, a Norwegian-born Sausalito woman who can tell about her homeland, and a Mill Valley stewardess who allows school children to play her collection of musical instruments from around the world. All personnel speak a second language.

The coordinator arranged for Spanish-speaking mechanics to lead an airport tour for a special class of Spanish-speaking children who can speak no English. Then the mechanics showed a pilot-trainer film of a pilot's view of Mexico City at those children's school.

NANCY USES photographs of volunteers doing their after-hours jobs to attract new volunteers. Posters are hung in airport briefing rooms, blurbs put in stewardesses' mailboxes, pictures sent to the airline's newspaper and photographs of San Francisco volunteers sent to the seven other coordinators.

A native of Philadelphia, Nancy was graduated from Illinois's Northwestern University. She majored in speech education.

"Then I went to fly. Flying internationally would give me the opportunity to see the world and still work with people."

When she applied to be a stewardess she was told it is tough.

"You say 'sure' but you never realize how hard it is until you are airborne, in turbulence, and cooking scrambled eggs for 120 passengers," says Nancy, who flew to Hawaii, Tahiti, Tokyo and Vietnam.

Last December, she married Pan Am pilot Paul Haugen and moved to Corte Madera.

The Complete Costume Will Make Reappearance In Spring Fashions

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fashion designers help the woman "put it all together" in the new spring collections.

The "do your own thing" gives way to the more traditional planning of the entire costume by the style experts. This usually includes the shoes, hat, and the other accessories that add up to the total look.

Part of the unified look comes through suit, dress and jacket or dress and sweater combinations for layered dressing, now more important than the former disordered mix of separates which confused many women and which they found hard to cope with.

THE SUIT with the skirt is more in fashion than the pantsuit, although it too goes right into spring. Full length coats will be worn less, giving way to the three-quarter length coat with a shirt and skirt or pants. And the blazer jackets are thick.

These were some of the trends outlined as the American Designers Group (ADG) opened a week of ready-to-wear showings for visiting fashion reporters from newspapers, television and radio. Another organized group, the New York Couture Business Council, will hold its spring showings early in January.

Styles have a slicked-up look, cleancut shapes, very few geegaws.

"It's smart to be tidy," said Eleanor Lambert in the ADG forecast. "Elegance has recaptured its full dictionary definition; esthetic, refined, polished, finished with distinction, good taste, restraint, purity and luxury."

THE STITCHED down hipline on pleated skirts continue a favorite, although some designers introduce full-gathered skirts. One of the newest cuts is the godet, a bias pyramid of fabric set in below the hips.

Whatever the cut, all skirts flare at the hem. But there's a vast span in hemline lengths—from the top of the kneecap to two inches above the ankle, even on daytime dresses. For the time being, the hemline length hassle has been put to rest.

President Nixon's projected trip to Peking has set off a whole flurry of Chinese or other oriental motifs among designers. You'll be able to buy coolie coats, copies of the coolie's wide-brimmed hat, the Mao tunic, the worker's smock, the cheongsam, embroidered mandarin robes and some designers speak proudly of dresses made up in China silk. Copies also are the high-rising Chinese collars and sideclosings with frogs (corded loops).

DESIGNER DONALD Brooks brings back two major fashion trends — ruffles for the soft look and taffeta — in a bare-shouldered evening dress from his spring ready-to-wear collection. The look is part of the back-to-sanity-dressing trend running through New York spring collections.

THE GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

She Really Digs The Guy — But He Has Another Girlfriend

DEAR SUE AND HELEN:

There's a guy in my class I really dig. Bill has been having a lot of problems lately: school, job, money —and his girl doesn't help a bit. These troubles are tearing him up inside, and it seems she just doesn't care about them. She just wants him around to help her out of jams, etc.

Is it okay to lend him a hand in solving his problems, even if he's got a girl? Also, how can I step over the line and be more than a — FRIEND WITH A HELPING HAND

DEAR FRIEND:

You really care about this guy, so go ahead and listen out his problems — but only as a good friend. Let him step over the "friendship" line first — after he stops digging the other girl. That way you won't make a fool of yourself. — SUE

DEAR FRIEND:

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

What do you think of today's far-out weddings? A big wedding with lots of attendants and a banquet at an exclusive country club featured the wealthy young bride (not a divorcee or widow) in a black velvet gown. Reminded me of Morticia in that old TV series.

Another recent union between a big city girl and a boy from a proper "first family" of Virginia was a study in contrasts. The groom's family dressed in excellent taste, but the bride's jersey gown looked for all the world like a lounging robe, and her mother wore an evening gown at 2 o'clock in the afternoon!

I don't mind garden ceremonies and guitars instead of organs, but brides in mini skirts or hot pants, weddings on water skis? These things I can't abide. Am I being stuffy? — SOMEWHAT TRADITIONAL

DEAR SOMEWHAT:

Traditions are fine, but they get worn out after a while.

A wedding is individual and personal and I think it should be whatever the guy and girl want — not what has always been considered "proper."

. . .Even if it's eloping from a basement window. — SUE

DEAR SOMEWHAT:

A wedding is "theirs" not "ours." If they want a barefoot ceremony at dawn in a meadow, with wreaths of wild flowers and dancing later in the dew, so be it.

I too enjoy anything different and unusual, but don't feel badly, " S.T.": most people still agree with you. It's just that big formal "traditional" weddings have always turned me slightly off. — HELEN

DEAR HELEN:

Did you ever hear again from "El Fin," the girl who wouldn't give her name and address and was about to overdose because she thought nobody cared? — ???

DEAR ALL OF YOU WHO HAVE WONDERED AND WORRIED ABOUT "EL FIN":

I'm tremendously glad to report that "El Fin" is alive and well, back in school, relating again to her parents, headed for college —and dating a great guy. In a recent letter (she sent her name and address this time) she tells me that an undiagnosed physical problem had produced extreme depression —which she tried to "cure" with drugs.

She says in part, "Helen, I'd really like to thank and hug you, and all those who wrote me through your column, for showing me I wasn't alone."

Perhaps these column-letters were the turning point, giving El Fin courage to level with her parents. A hurry-up trip to the hospital revealed that her troubles came primarily from a disease that can be controlled with proper treatment. And she's getting it — plus mental therapy too.

She adds, "No drugs, no booze, no Jesus-freaking — just me and my guy and life to believe in. And that's more than enough . . ."

Ah, happy endings. Aren't they great? — HELEN

Fabric Strain

Jumping into panty hose may seem like the quickest way to put them on, but, unfortunately, research indicates that such agility puts an unreasonable strain on the fabric and frequently starts runs, snags and tears. No matter how late you are, it pays to sit down, while you settle one foot at a time in the panty hose and pull them slowly up to your knees.

A Flat Bread Becomes Cake

Gingerbread was probably a snap when it was first made by a Greek from Rhodes several thousand years ago, according to the Sugar Information Bureau. The original flat, cookie-kind of spicy bread was an instant success.

It traveled through countries and towns, changing little in centuries until about Chaucer's time, 14th Century England.

Then gingerbread appeared in sometimes funny shapes as men, birds and animals, or houses, frosted fancifully, when sugar supplies increased in the late 1500s.

Gingerbread did not remain flat and hard. With added ingredients, it rose, tenderly soft, to the height of cakes.

Two Gingerbreads In Early Salem

From recipes arriving on the Mayflower, gingerbread was made and sold from a bake shop in early Salem, in two varieties. "Lower Shelf" gingerbread was mixed with molasses, flour, butter, milk, ginger and saleratus, a forerunner of baking powder.

"Upper Shelf" gingerbread, with sugar and eggs added, was richer, lighter and more tender too, from creaming air into the butter with the sugar, before adding the eggs.

Dinner Starter

What's New In Window Shades

In window shades what's new includes stripes in colors to zing up any room decor. Imagine apple green, azalea or tiger lily stripes on window shades with a woven look.

New cabana striped shades are of vinyl-impregnanted cloth which resists fire, never fades and protects the room from the sun's destructive rays. The shades can be washed with soap or detergent.

A Break At Last In Pay For Women

Women in retailing who have been paid less than their male counterparts can take heart from federal government crackdowns on such retail firms, reports Women's Wear Daily.

The Labor Department in the last few months has successfully sued three retailers in federal district court on the equal pay issue — Robert Hall, J. M. Fields and Loveman's —and a suit against the May Co. is still pending.

Ben Robertson, assistant administrator of the Employment Standards Administration and who has been the key figure on the equal pay issue, told Women's Wear retailers "must forget their historic practices and see the tenor of times."

He believes that sex discrimination in pay is widespread in retailing and that it must be ended, the apparel trade newspaper reported.

Yule Decorations May Be Harmful

The Council on Family Health urges parents to warn children about the dangers of playing with Christmas decoration of all types and to use caution and good sense in decorating the home.

Lighted candles, for instance, should never be placed in a window. Using candles as decorations when children are involved is considered a danger since most children are attracted to the brightness, and the younger the child, the more eager he is to see what makes the candle glow.

MUSIC REVIEW

A Flamboyant Season Opener

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — Seiji Ozawa opened the 60th season of the San Francisco Symphony last night at the sold out Opera House with a program realizing to perfection his sure instinct for dramatic contrasts.

For a flamboyant season opener what better choice than works by Berlioz and Stravinsky, those masters capable of producing thunder and lightning, balanced with the serenity and joy of Haydn.

This Ozawa accomplished by starting with the rarely heard overture to "Les Franc-Juges," all that remains of a youthful Berlioz opera, following with the Haydn Symphony No. 90 in C Major and closing with Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring" as a smashing climax.

With many players having just completed the San Francisco Opera season, the orchestra was in good form and except for some minor imprecisions in several instruments in the overture, played brilliantly. It was apparently inspired by the almost visible force radiated from their youthful maestro.

Still wearing the neck brace necessitated by a last season's infirmity, he was as always the master of rhythmic motion, whether in explosive or gently flowing tempos. If he had the physical stamina, what a ballet dancer he would make!

The major work of the evening was, of course, the "Rite of Spring" — a salute to the late composer — in a reading full of blazing daytime light and mysterious night shadows. Even with today's toleration of and high threshold for noise this shocker that rocked the musical world at its 1913 premiere in Paris still has plenty of punch. Somehow, though, unlike many contemporary works, its cacophony is meaningful and fully expressive of its subject — savage pagan rituals ending in a sacrificial death dedicated to the God of spring.

In comparison with the Stravinsky, the overture of "Les Franc-Juges" — considered terrifying when it was first heard in 1826 — now seems almost laughable.

IGOR STRAVINSKY
Late composer saluted

Inspired by the medieval German tribunals held by self-appointed judges to condemn heretics and witches to death — revived during the Third Reich — this work still has a powerful impact, especially in its magnificent orchestration for trombones and other brass. Ozawa's strong rhythmic emphasis made parts of it dance-like. It was a very good opening number.

Between these two earth shakers, the Haydn was like the sun breaking through the clouds of a storm just before its greatest fury. It was 18th Century courtly elegance, highlighted by some exceptionally fluid and melodic woodwind passages, particularly flute solos.

In view of acoustics at the new Veterans Memorial Building being possibly superior to those of the Opera House, Marin Symphony music lovers can look forward with excitement to the San Francisco Orchestra's Marin series that starts Jan. 22.

'Oldest Speed Cop' To Retire

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sgt. Carl E. Perscheid, 69, credited with being the "oldest speed cop in the world," announced his retirement Wednesday after 47 years with the Police Department.

Perscheid, who will go off duty officially in February when he reaches 70, said he has outlasted 11 morotcycles since joining the first team of cycle officers in the department.

He said he has had his share of spills but nothing serious.

Asked how he has been able to stay fit over the years, he said he did not worry and he added, "Stay away from doctors if you can."

Wire Service Errs On Mars Tabulation

A United Press International account of the placing of a capsule on Mars in Tuesday's Independent-Journal erred in calculating the distance from Mars to the satellite which ejected the capsule.

According to Soviet news agency Tass, Mars 2 was orbiting the planet at a distance of 1,250 kilometers. UPI incorrectly computed the distance in miles at 570. The figure should have been 776 miles.

Sausalito Art Festival Opening Set

The Sausalito Art Center will be transformed into an ancient Greek agora this weekend when the Sausalito Arts Association holds its first winter indoor art festival.

More than 150 artists and craftsmen from Marin will exhibit their works at the event, scheduled for 7 to 10 p.m. tomorrow and from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Theme for the festival, which the association hopes will become an annual activity, is "Joy of the Muses."

A variety of media will be represented, including paintings, creative crafts, sculptured candles and experimental art forms. There will be demonstrations of glass blowing and an opportunity for visitors to try their hand at drawing figures from life, according to Dan O'Connor, festival co-director.

Mime, exotic belly dancing, Javanese and Scottish dancing and wandering minstrels all will be part of the event. The Greek motif will be carried out in banners and other decorations designed by Diane Brewer, association president. Toga-clad girls will greet the public and answer questions, according to O'Connor.

Greek foods, including meats, cheeses, fruits, and pastries, will be served.

A baby-sitting service will be provided for those who attend, with youngsters given the chance to draw and paint while waiting for their parents.

According to Shelagh Considine, art center director and codirector of the event, the winter festival came about because of the absence this year of the traditional Sausalito Art Festival, which has been held on Labor Day weekend for the past 15 years.

Mrs. Considine said the September festival was not held this year because the center was facing eviction from the old Bayside School (a lease agreement on the building, with the Sausalito School District, was worked out last month).

The only difference between the winter and September festival, according to Mrs. Considine, is that the winter festival will be indoors, while the fall event is usually held outside.

Soft-Drink Case Figures Give Up

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Six persons indicted in the Bubble Up soft drink investigation, allegedly the biggest stock fraud in California history, surrendered in Superior Court Wednesday.

Bail was set at $2,000 each and their cases continued to Dec. 27 for arraignment and plea. The remaining 14 defendants were expected to surrender later this week.

The charges are grand theft and violation of state security laws. The alleged fraud involved sale of unregistered stock in the soft drink company. Investigators said the total money involved could be as high as $4.5 million.

Burglary Case To Youth Court

Robert Andrew Kraft Jr., 19, of Larkspur, accused of burglary, has been certified to Marin Juvenile Court.

He appeared Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court, where Judge Robert A. Smallman turned him over to juvenile authorities.

Heiress Teaches Museum Lesson — Takes Sculpture

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mrs. Ileana Lindt, flanked by two deputy sheriffs and her lawyer, walked into the Guggenheim Museum Wednesday. A few minutes later she walked out with a sculpture insured for $80,000, climbed in her limousine and drove away.

The surprise action ended an 11-year court fight by Mrs. Lindt to regain possession of the sculpture "The Muse" by Constantin Brancusi which she had bought at auction in 1955 for $7,000.

The Romanian-born heiress said she took the action because the museum refused to return the sculpture even though a New York Supreme Court had ruled it was hers two years ago.

"They (museum officials) were very rude to me and didn't want to give it up," she said. "But what could they do? I had the sheriffs with me."

The museum would not comment on the episode. The Guggenheim, a modernistic, spiral-shaped museum overlooking Central Park, has had "The Muse" since 1958.

Mrs. Lindt bought the sculpture in 1955 when she was married to Arde Bulova, board chairman of the Bulova Watch Co. Bulova died in 1958 and after unsuccessfully trying to get a share of pis $10 million estate, Mrs. Lindt tried to get possession of the sculpture.

The lower courts ruled against her, saying although she bought it at auction, her husband had paid for it. Finally, after 40 judges had handled the case, the supreme court ruled in her favor in 1969.

"The Muse," a 17 ½-inch high white marble head cradled on a hand, was done by Brancusi in 1912. It was insured by the museum for $80,000 but some estimates put its worth at up to $200,000.

Brancusi, a Romanian who worked in Paris, was considered the grand old man of abstract sculpture and was best known for his "Bird in Flight." Mrs. Lindt said she was a longtime friend of the artist and was at his bedside when he died in 1957.

Mrs. Lindt, 46, the estranged wife of Auguste Rudolph Lindt of the Swiss chocolate family who she married 10 years ago when he was ambassador to the United States, said she plans to exhibit the art work in museums.

"If the museum (Guggenheim) had been nice about it, I might have left it there on loan," she said. "I intend to exhibit it at museums, but not at the Guggenheim. They certainly had nothing to gain by being rude."

Paralyzed Officer Given Valor Medal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Police Department awarded its gold medal of valor Wednesday to a special officer who was paralyzed from the waist down by a shot fired during a holdup.

In addition, the department retired the badge of Donald W. Fatooh, 29, who was flown from his new home in Fresno to San Francisco in a Navy airplane.

Sex, Money And The Generation Gap

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sex and money keep the generation gap wide and very much alive, says Lester Rand, president of the Rand Youth Poll, an organization which surveys trends among this nation's young people.

"Parents never have been able to adjust to high teen-age spending and youth's resulting lifestyle," he said.

Artificial Proteins For Food Eyed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Producing artifically grown proteins suitable for human food may soon become possible but getting them eaten will be much more difficult, two chemists agreed Wednesday.

The scientists were interviewed during the closing session of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers meeting.

Dunlop said nutritious bacteria can be grown from waste cellulose of sugar cane stalks in a process that can be adapted to straw from rice and wheat or corn stalks.

At present the artificially grown protein can be used successfully in feed for chickens and rats, he said.

Morgan noted, however, that the source of human protein instead probably will come from rice, wheat and soybeans.

Smog Official Ouster Is Sought

his firm may someday represent industries before the district, and wanted to avoid any possible conflict of interest.

The personnel committee, the Independent-Journal learned, instead has asked the state attorney general's office to provide legal service in the hassle over Walker. The attorney general has not yet responded to the request.

Demands that Callaghan, not Walker, be fired came from Ralph Warner, an attorney representing black neighborhoods in Richmond, and Jean Siri, representing the West Contra Costa Conservation League. Both were key leaders in the citizens' campaign last year that toughened district regulations.

Warner declared that the dispute between Callaghan and Walker was not a personality clash, but a difference over philosophy on enforcing district regulations.

The young attorney said Callaghan has "outlasted his usefulness" and no longer has "the confidence of his staff." He added that "a lot of us feel the wrong person may be fired," and called for an analysis of the district's procedures "before there's a bloodbath."

Mrs. Siri said that her group never had confidence in Callaghan's "efforts for the public interest or the public health."

The Stop Smog Committee's chairman, Katherine Lord, urged the board — as it later did — to seek professional management consultants to scrutinize district operations. The consultants, she said, should spot "breakdowns in the chain of command, tell us where the bottleneck lies and advise us how to eliminate it."

She urged that the legal department be recognized as the district's best instrument for fighting polluters.

Board members, dropping their customary defense of the district and its staff, did not comment either way on the demands that Callaghan be fired. Several instead commended the citizen groups as needed spurs to keep the district alert.

Only director Robert B. St. Clair, a San Mateo County supervisor, took exception. He especially objected to an advertisement by Mrs. Lord's group in Monday's Richmond Independent. It asserted: "After so many years of playing pat-a-cake with polluters, top district officials can't seem to bring themselves to get tough with their old pals."

St. Clair pressed her unsuccessfully to back the assertion with specific examples.

The point, however, brought an observation from Callaghan that the district had collected $23,103 in fines against polluters last fiscal year. The figure brought cries of "peanuts" from the audience of some 40 persons.

The suggestion of a conflict of interest was raised by Mrs. Feinstein after Warner noted that progress by a district advisory subcommittee had been delayed because its chairman, Joseph D. Coons of San Rafael, was too busy as a consulting engineer for industry. Warner said the subcommittee often had to wait six weeks between meetings on proposed new limits on industrial emissions.

The charge of lying was leveled against Callaghan by director William R. Jelavich, a Mountain View city councilman. He asked Callaghan why the press had not been notified in writing of the personnel committee's frequent closed door meetings as required by state law.

Callaghan claimed that his failure to notify the press of the committee's meeting yesterday before the regular board meeting was "an exception," and that he had not learned until Monday that it was even scheduled.

Jelavich, insisting that Callaghan had known of the meeting "long before," angrily countered "that's a damn lie. I'm sick and tired of that kind of shenanigan going on about here. Somewhere, something is drastically wrong... I am no longer going to tolerate this kind of relationship with the news media. If it means taking off the kid gloves, so be it."

He also ripped into the chairman of the personnel committee, Pleasanton City Councilman Bernard T. Gerton, for refusing to tell newsmen the purpose of the closed door sessions. Gerton replied that sometimes he could not tell newsmen the purpose because he himself did not know what would be discussed.

In that case, suggested Jelavich, "there's not much point in meeting."

Jelavich also exploded when he discovered the board's meeting was being tape recorded by a district employee — a discovery he made moments after being assured by Callaghan that board meetings were not taped. "Someone ought to know what's going on around here," Jelavich declared, adding the tape recorder "didn't just walk in and hook itself up. To say this is slippery is very mild."

Kevin Maloney, an aide to Callaghan, explained that he had ordered the taping because board meetings were getting too long and detailed for the minutes clerk to get everything down. The clerk, Mabel Harder, however, acknowledged under a question from Jelavich that she had not asked for the taping.

Criticism also came from director Nevin K. Hiester, Portola Valley city councilman. He objected to the personnel committee's order barring from its half dozen closed sessions directors who were not on the committee.

A member of the committee, Napa County Supervisor Joseph G. Peatman, said other directors had been barred "just because it's very difficult to bring up to date anyone who has not been sitting in on our meetings."

About the only "positive" statements heard all day came from R. J. King of San Rafael, plant manager for Chevron Chemical Company's Ortho Division in Contra Costa County. Objecting to "a lot of negative talk here today," he noted that his company was spending $3.5 million to meet the district's new regulations. He said that industry had taken "a lot of positive action."

The long board session ended with an unsuccessful proposal by Jelavich that a confidential questionnaire be circulated among district employees to determine the truth of reports he had heard of "low morale."

The Air Pollution Control District board also:

LOBBYIST — Rehired Jerome Desmond as the district's Sacramento lobbyist for the 1972 legislative session at an annual fee of $10,000.

SMOKING — Banned smoking at board meetings, Jelavich commenting that the ban at least would improve air quality in the board room.

FEDERAL — Voted to impose district regulations on federal installations, which under federal law must comply with the regulations unless exempted by presidential order.

Employee Pay Hike Advances

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Ways and Means Committee reversed itself yesterday and approved a 5 per cent pay hike for state employees which would cost $46.8 million.

The committee also reversed itself on another bill providing a 6 per cent, $1.8 million pay boost for Division of Forestry firefighters.

Both bills were defeated on a split voice vote Nov. 24, but were sent to the Assembly floor today along with a third which would give a $5.4 million, 6 per cent salary increase to California Highway Patrolmen.

Convention Going Knocked

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Mayor J. Bracken Lee says the taxpayers could be saved a lot of money if public officials just stopped going to conventions.

Lee said most conventions for office-holders are just glorified vacations.

Referring to the current municipal government conference in Honolulu, Lee said, "Going to these conventions is just an indoctrination course ... where so-called experts from Washington figure out schemes to take more money from the over-taxed taxpayer."

Priest Facing An Elk Charge

MIDDLEBORO, Mass. (UPI)—A secret four-man panel has been chosen by the Middleboro Lodge of Elks to hear charges brought against a Roman Catholic priest for opposing a "whites only" membership restriction.

Lodge Exalted Ruler Arthur E. Parent Jr., who brought the charges of "conduct unbecoming an Elk" against Rev. William R. MacKenzie, said Wednesday night a date for the so-called "subordinate forum," or trial, will be set "in not less than five days, but no more than 10 days."

Parent would not disclose the names of the jurors but did say they were selected from a list of 25 names drawn from a box containing the names of 100 of the lodge's 1,200 members.

Chance For Women's Equality — Only $1

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A women's lib group is offering husbands a chance to give their wives an unusual Christmas gift for $1—legal equality in handling the family finances.

In newspaper advertisements, the "Women's Equalization Committee" offered "husbands who want to do something very special for their wives this Christmas" the legal forms for giving their wives a 50 per cent share in control of community property.

The committee's advertisement said that under California law, although husband and wife share ownership of joint property, except real estate, husband has the legal right to sell it without his wife's knowledge or consent.

"The law also gives the husband the exclusive power to choose where the family will live and the wife has to agree," the committee said. "Once a wife's separate earnings are mixed in (a joint) bank account, with her husband's earnings, she loses all control over what she has herself earned," it complained.

"If you as a husband trust and respect your wife as a truly equal marriage partner," the ad urged husbands, "we will send you a simple form which a husband and wife can execute in the privacy of their own home ... to give your wife an equal voice in deciding how to use the property which is hers as much as yours.

"We must ask you to enclose one dollar to cover our mailing and printing costs.

Innocent Plea To Robbery

Three men, accused of attempting to rob a Tamalpais Valley restaurant on Nov. 29, have pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court.

Larry David Adams, 22, of Marin City; Bernard Jerome Stringer, 25, of San Francisco and Keith James Jackson, 19, of San Rafael, entered pleas Tuesday.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set Dec. 14 for a preliminary hearing.

Sheriff's deputies said they caught the three crouching behind the La Camembert restaurant about 12:30 a.m. with nylon stockings on their heads and a loaded carbine rifle lying on top of a box nearby.

Water District, Seeger In Partial Victory On Order

Marin Municipal Water District directors and Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger did not intentionally violate a court order prohibiting them from campaigning for the water district's Measure B in last month's election, a Marin Superior Court judge has ruled.

However, a claim for refund of public funds which the water district allegedly used in pushing for the bond issue is still being weighed by Judge Joseph G. Wilson. A decision on this claim is not expected until late December or January.

The contempt charge was argued before Judge Wilson on Nov. 19. Douglas P. Ferguson, representing plaintiff Huey D. Johnson, declared that Seeger had appeared before the Marin County Board of Supervisors on Oct. 26. At that time, he said the supervisors had copies of a brochure urging the passage of Measure B. This was in violation of an Oct. 8 injunction against such campaigning, said Ferguson.

Attorneys Robert W. Elliott and Peter Brekhus, representing the water district and Seeger, argued that Seeger had specifically ordered that such brochures not be distributed.

Judge Wilson found Seeger did not provide the brochures to the supervisors, and held that a brochure given to the Independent-Journal at the newspaper's request did not constitute contempt.

The judge asked both sides to submit legal arguments on these two pending claims by Johnson:

1. The water district spent $19,500 illegally on the 1970 water bond issue, and this should be refunded.

2. The water district should be penalized $3,000 for violating the election code requiring the reporting of campaign expenses.

The legal arguments by both sides are due on Dec. 19, and the judge is expected to rule sometime after that date.

Johnson, who brought the legal action, is western regional director of Nature Conservancy and lives in Mill Valley. He contended that the water district had no right to use funds collected from water users to advocate passage of bonds or urge a yes vote on Measure B, which would have allowed the water district to participate in financing the Marin-Sonoma Aqueduct.

House Banking Panel Is Stalling Nixon Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The House Banking Committee refused today for the second time to approve a bill to extend through April 30, 1973, President Nixon's power to control the economy. But a compromise was reported in the offing.

The committee voted 18 to 15 against sending the measure to the House floor, with four members voting "present". The committee voted 18 to 18 Wednesday in failing to agree on a bill.

The Senate approved a control bill Wednesday 85 to 4 despite some misgivings of both Democrats and Republicans.

Following today's vote, the House committee began working on a compromise measure that committee members hoped would break the deadlock.

The compromise, sponsored by Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, was similar to the Senate bill and was considered more acceptable to the administration than the committee's original version.

As passed by the Senate, the bill carried a number of provisions only reluctantly approved by the White House. Among them, it would give government workers and servicemen a 5.5 per cent pay raise on Jan. 1 — at a cost of about $2 billion a year —instead of delaying it until July 1 as Nixon wanted.

It also would allow nongovernment workers to regain contracted wage boosts due but not allowed during the 90-day wage freeze that started Aug. 15 — provided the raises are not "unreasonably inconsistent" with the pay board's guideline.

The Senate bill would extend until April 30, 1973 Nixon's powers — unprecedented in peacetime —to control almost all aspects of the economy through whatever machinery he sets up. In addition to direct price and wage controls, he is given standby power to limit interest rates and profits.

Over administration and chiefly Republican opposition, the Senate by a 50 to 36 vote exempted from controls the prices charged and wages paid by the newspaper, news service, book, magazine and radio and television industries.

In a long battle to change or defeat the bill, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said that the Democratic-controlled Congress would come to regret giving Nixon such vast powers for so long a time.

He was bitter about defeats of proposals to exempt small businesses and to make interest rate controls mandatory.

"What we've done," he said, "is exempt the Chase Manhattan Bank, the Bank of America, CBS, NBC, The New York Times ... and we've included every little mom and pop shop."

Low Bidder Would Save $1.4 Million

Golden Gate Bridge District officials opened bids yesterday from seven firms competing for a contract to replace suspender ropes and repair floor beams on the span.

The lowest bid, for $2,799,537, was more than $1.4 million below the $4.2 million estimate bridge district engineers had calculated for the job. It was submitted by Allied Structural Steel Co. of Hammond, Ind. High bidder was Gordon Ball, Inc. of Danville, Contra Costa County, at $5,014,450.

Dale W. Luehring, bridge district general manager, said three of the bids were within the estimate range, and that he was "very pleased" at the chance to save more than a million dollars on the work.

District staff will check the bids for compliance, before submitting them to district directors for contract award later this month.

Prosecution Ends Case In Pot Smuggling Trial

I-J Special Report

PHILADELPHIA — The prosecution wound up its case yesterday against three men charged in the alleged smuggling of $3 million worth of marijuana, and agreed that the case against one of the defendants was "thin at best."

Two Marin men in the same case already have pleaded guilty.

One, Leonard Glassberg, 31, of Novato, changed his plea before the trial opened and took the stand for the prosecution. The other, David Miller, 34, of Corte Madera, pleaded guilty last week, along with Thomas B. Vallejo, 28, of Langhorne, Pa., to three of five charges.

The remaining three men on trial, Charles C. Cornet, 44, of Las Vegas, Norman Keim, 34, of Pendel, Pa., and Edson Whipple, 45, of Duncan, Ariz., are charged in connection with the alleged importing of a ton of marijuana to a small airport here last March.

Whipple failed to show up in court last Friday and his $123,000 bail was ordered forfeited by the judge, who issued a bench warrant for him and ordered him to continue to be tried in absentia.

Robert Finkel, an attorney for Cornet, argued there should be a directed verdict of acquittal on the grounds the government presented no evidence that his client knew about the marijuana flight.

Prosecutor Jeffrey Miller, who completed his case after calling 22 witnesses during the three-week trial before a jury of eight women and four men in U.S. District Court, said he agreed the case against Cornet was "thin at best."

DALLAS (UPI) — The State Fair of Texas attracts about 3.5 million persons a year. The extravaganza is — naturally — the largest state fair in the Country.

Dyk Marriage Is Dissolved

The marriage of former Sausalito Mayor Jan Paul Dyk and his wife, Eugenia, was dissolved yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Judge Thomas F. Keating granted the dissolution on grounds of irreconcilable differences. The Dyks lived at 122 Crescent Avenue in Sausalito.

They were married Sept. 23, 1955, in Sausalito and separated this past Sept. 16. They have no children.

Dyk, an executive with Holland-American Lines in San Francisco, was a Sausalito city councilman from 1962 to 1970, and served as mayor in 1964 and 1965.

PITY POOR SANTA

If you think you have a hard time getting ready for Christmas, pity poor Santa. The 30-foot Santa greeting passersby from the roof of the Kentfield Fire Station at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and College Avenue already has gone through a severe identity crisis and suffered a broken arm. Fireman Rodney Biddleman (left in left photo) and Lt. Ronald Darrington performed the first aid yesterday. First aid actually amounted to major surgery as Santa's mechanically operated left arm, knocked off somehow Tuesday night, had to be hoisted up (center photo) and reattached by Darrington. Santa endured the identity crisis more than a week ago when he was a guest star at St. Raphael's annual Mission Holiday Festival in San Rafael. He was featured on the front page of the Independent-Journal several days before the festival when volunteer workers were having trouble getting his bottom half into the parish auditorium. As it turned out, they never did. Santa, who weighs about 350 pounds, was acquired by the Kentfield Fire Department when Macy's declared him surplus. He was repaired and repainted by the Kentfield Association of Firemen and barring further illness or injury, will preside over the Kentfield scene through the Christmas season.

Relatively Cool Session On Firemen's Pay Hikes

Novato fire department headquarters, expected to heat up last night over firemen's demands for increased wages and fringe benefits, remained comparatively cool as talks were postponed until Jan. 5.

A standing room audience of about 35 persons, many of them firemen, were on hand expecting to hear the demands discussed.

The Novato Fire Protection District board, which felt the demands were premature, and required study, held off.

The Board voted to create a committee board members, possibly the entire board, to negotiate with representatives of the Novato Firemen's Association, at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 5 at fire headquarters.

Director Joseph F. Silveira cast the lone vote against forming the committee. Director Dante Panfiglio was absent.

The board deadlocked 2-2 on whether the negotiating session should be closed, and as a result it will be open.

Directors Henry V. Alvernaz and Richard W. Price voted for a closed session, while chairman Peter J. Ferrarese and Silveira voted for an open session.

Firemen, who received a 4 per cent pay hike in October, want the pay range, $718-915 a month, hiked to $794-954, the work week reduced from 70 to 63 hours, 11 holidays instead of 8 and increased vacation time.

Alvernaz said the "timing was bad" on the demands since they normally are brought before the board "just prior to preparation of the district budget."

Ferrarese said the board set a policy several years ago to discuss such matters once a year, at budget time.

Attorney Richard H. Breiner, representing the firemen, said this "apparently was one of the problems" since the board had denied some association requests "without negotiation. . . and the association felt it's not getting a fair shake."

Breiner proposed that the directors then discuss other demands, such as a dental plan, a switch to the state retirement system and adopting a civil service ordinance, which would provide a personnel committee to hear appeals and grievances.

These matters, the board agreed, could be brought up at the Jan. 5 meeting.

Dougherty said there were 29 members out of 33 eligible in the department. There are 35 men in the department overall, but two are ineligible, Chief Jack Kidder and a probationary fireman.

Ferrarese wanted to know how many firemen voted to present the demands and hire an attorney to represent them.

Dougherty estimated that "at least 16" were present when the vote was taken, none objecting, and this meant a majority favored the association's bid.

Directors clashed with Breiner on the matter of funds available to the district.

Breiner said a district audit showed that on June 30, 1971, there was $400,000 in an "investment fund," which earned more than $27,000 in a year.

Silveira said: "You better check those figures," and Ferrarese said it wasn't an "investment fund" but an allocation for "capital expenditures."

Breiner asked if the district had any plans for making capital expenditures. Ferrarese said directors have discussed some, but haven't any final plans.

"My feeling is men come first, before expansion or equipment," Breiner said.

When the meeting ended without any discussion of the issues, there were murmurs of discontent from some of the audience, who had come expecting some action.

'Wise Guy' Testimony At Murder Trial Of Baron

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI)— A New Bedford, Mass., waiter testified Wednesday that accused murderer Joseph Barbosa Baron was a "wise guy who needed straightening up."

Lawrence P. Hughes was a witness for the prosecution in the Sonoma County Superior Court jury trial of Baron, 39, an underworld enforcer, charged with killing a mechanic in a dispute over $250,000 in stolen securities.

Clay Wilson, 26, was shot to death on July 7, 1970, and his body was buried in a creek near Glen Ellen. The securities were stolen from the Petaluma home of Victor DeCarlo in 1969.

Hughes testified that there was a discussion about the securities in his home in the spring of 1970. He said he, his brother, Leonard and Baron were on hand.

Hughes said the securities were at the home of a newspaperman identified as James Southwood.. He said Baron told his brother "to get on with them, to move them" because there was a large amount of money involved.

Hughes said he ultimately came into possession of the securities and at the suggestion of Boston Police Inspector John Doyle made photostatic copies of them.

College Trustee Shifts Stand On Second Campus In Novato

Construction of Indian Valley Colleges in Novato may have taken a step backwards last night when one member of the Marin Community College District board came out flatly against it.

Vice president Charles W. Gray said he was against the construction and urged spending all construction money on the Kentfield campus.

His position was opposed by the other members present, but with board president Donald K. Felt and clerk Theodore C. Wellman absent, the board adjourned to 8 p.m. next Thursday to discuss the matter further.

Grace Mitchell, co-chairman of the recent bond drive, presented the board a resolution asking that the Indian Valley Colleges be given first priority. It was not acted on, however.

The board had just taken up the item of alternatives to capital financing in the district when Gray read a prepared statement.

In it, he said he had changed his mind since November election defeat. He blamed the cutbacks in the state universities and colleges as throwing the burden of education of young people on the community colleges.

He said that citizen support for expansion of the college facilities and the accompanying enlargement of the property tax bills simply does not exist.

Gray urged better utilization of the Kentfield campus facilities, a reexamination of the college calendar, giving first priority to all Marin County high school graduates and a reexamination of community service and adult education.

Winifred Frederick and Sarah Nome, directors of the Irate Taxpayers of Marin, who attended the citizens advisory committee meetings, endorsed Gray's stand.

Herbert Cook, representing the North Marin Federation of Home Owners, suggested that the board not develop the campus as planned, but rent space in the Nave Shopping Center, buildings on the east side of Grant Avenue, or at Hamilton Air Force Base to get the college located.

Board member Martin J. Dean said that the people of Novato did not envisage the college in a store. He moved that the board increase the construction tax from 32 cents as voted on Nov. 22 to 43 cents, but it died for lack of a second.

In setting its adjourned meeting to next Thursday, the board cut out the workshop meeting schedule for Tuesday.

In parting, Gray urged the other board members to go over his statement to see if they would change their minds. If they did not, he said, he would stand alone if necessary in opposing the construction of the second campus.

Time Now To Begin Evaluation Of Barrows

When the Marin County Board of Supervisors named John F. Barrows county administrator on Aug. 31, it was with proviso for review and evaluation in six months.

That was the motion by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., seconded by Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, which passed 3-2 with Louis H. Baar and John F. McInnis dissenting.

There was a reason for this.

THE BOARD HAD SET in motion a recruiting and screening procedure for a replacement for County Administrator Alan Bruce. There was, however, pressure from some quarters for an "in-house" appointment. Using dissatisfaction with the screening committee as a pretext, the majority of the board on Aug. 31 appointed Barrows — subject to the evaluation in six months.

We recite this history because it is about time to start thinking about that evaluation and what it should involve.

PART OF THE SUPPOSED task of the screening committee was to have been to delineate just what the duties, responsibilities and powers of the county administrator should include. While these are set forth in general terms in the ordinance creating the job, the recurrent conflicts between Bruce and the board indicated that they need to be spelled out more specifically.

When the screening committee was disbanded, this project died with it. But if the supervisors are to evaluate Barrows' performance after six months in office, they need criteria by which to evaluate it. Therefore, the duties, responsibilities — and powers — should be spelled out, in fairness to the supervisors themselves, to Barrows, and to the citizens whom the county government is intended to serve.

The board also should draw up a list of criteria by which, as those responsible to the electorate, they can judge the performance of the administrator in specific areas.

Additionally, the evaluation process should include feedback from the citizenry. The supervisors are to some extent insulated from their constituents by the bureaucracy they have created. They should invite comments — which would not be subject to screening by the office under evaluation — from all segments of the public, including organizations and individuals.

ALL THESE PROCESSES should begin now — not the day before the evaluation is to be concluded.

Ordinarily, such extensive evaluation might not be necessary. But Barrows' appointment was not ordinary. It was made in rapid-fire order after three of the supervisors had decided to junk the careful selection process on which they had previously agreed. And because it was made in that manner — and by 3-2 vote — it "put Barrows under a cloud," as Supervisor McInnis said at the time. And it left the electorate unsatisfied that the board had acted with the deliberations and care due such an important appointment.

Therefore, the six-month evaluation should be as thoroughing as the selection originally was to have been — until three supervisors decided otherwise.

"Ive been attacked!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

School Site Taxation Hits Two Districts

Assemblyman LeRoy Greene (in his address to the Marin County School Boards Association) made certain statements about AB 2628 (taxation of school sites) which appeared to be in conflict with a recent article in the I-J about the bill. Greene gave the impression that AB 2628 applied only to selected districts under certain specified conditions (unnamed).

I have examined AB 2628 again, and reviewed Article XIII, Section 1 of the California Constitution, and read Government Code section 15490 — all being involved in AB 2628's operation . . . I am unable to find any restriction whatsoever in the new section which would make it apply to some districts and not others. Thus, I can only conclude that the I-J article correctly reported the bills effect. From the copy of the bill I have attached you can see from where the remark of Mr. Greene's may have originated: apparently, at an early stage, there was language aimed at confining the bill to those sites where allocations of state money had been made. The conditioning language was amended out of the bill, and Mr. Greene may not have been aware of the change.

I have some serious reservations about the bill. Whether it is constitutional deserves abundant thought. Additionally, the policy consideration that as much land as possible ought to be on the rolls, reflected by AB 2628, seems to conflict with the Legislature's recent enactment of bills designed to grant tax exemption to those who will hold unused land for "open space" purposes.

The Tam District and the Reed Union School District will be affected by AB 2628 and the subject will undoubtedly be discussed in the near future by the respective boards . . .

On-Duty Veterinary System Valuable

Yesterday (Thanksgiving) we had something extra to be thankful for; namely, Marin County's Veterinarian Medical Association and one of it's members, Dr. Tom Mehloff, in particular!

Last Sunday night the combination of an unsecured gate with an unguarded moment allowed our lovable, gawky, 10-week-old, 40-pound St. Bernard puppy, "Barney", to tumble into a freshly chlorinated pool! Miraculously he managed to claw his way out but you've never seen a wetter, unhappier, retching "baby". Hours later, we had a desperately sick pup on our hands.

A frantic call to our regular pet clinic brought a prompt call-back from Dr. Mehloff with instructions where to take "Barney" without delay. This was the veterinarian who through the special arrangement of the Marin County association was "on emergency duty" at the East San Rafael Animal Clinic. Have you ever tried to get hold of a doctor of any kind over a weekend or holiday?

No human received better attention or more sophisticated examination on being admitted to an emergency ward. . . .

We called at 8 a.m. the next morning prepared for "the worst" but what a happy surprise to learn from the same young lady that "Barney" had rallied in the morning after they'd both worked on him all night! What a joyous reunion at 11 a.m. with "Barney" weak but "wagging"!

Yesterday — while waiting for the turkey dinner — I had the occasion to drive a sobbing neighbor of my daughter's, together with her equally distraught teen-age daughter holding their 10-month-old minipoodle pup who had just been hit by an auto. Again an "on duty" vet had been located and in minutes the pup was out of shock and improving steadily.

Yes, indeed, fellow residents of Marin County, we all have something unique and extra special to be thankful for!

Museum Flea Market 'Smashing Success'

The first annual flea market of the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science and Children's Zoo was a smashing success.

It will no doubt take its place as another annual fund raiser for the museum.

At our last regular board of directors meeting, we passed a resolution of thanks to the Independent Journal for your very gracious assistance in helping to publicize this event.

Everywhere You Look: More Tam Junipers

Recently, a gentleman from the county came to the house and asked to inventory our Tam junipers. I didn't get all the particulars, but it seemed the agriculture department was checking on blight.

Well and good. However, in driving around Marin, I became aware of juniper bushes. Everywhere I looked I saw Tam junipers. For a week or so it became a game, or an obsession if you will. I couldn't believe there were that many plants of any species in a given area. There must be a million bushes on every block of Terra Linda.

I'm sure the man who called on me had his work cut out for him, and I'm sure there were others from his office doing the same work. So, my question: What was the final result of the survey? In the interest of pure trivia for myself and your other readers, could you furnish the answer?

School Ship Headed Straight For Iceberg

This is your 8 p.m. newscaster, Miss Jones, with an instant on-the-scene report of the Mill Valley School Board meeting.

The ship of Mill Valley schools is going a full 35 knots straight toward an enormous iceberg.

Mr. Bodovitz, on lookout in the prow, is shouting, "All clear, all clear."

Mr. Eliot, atop the mast, is yelling, "Hoist the mainsail, hoist the mainsail" — his foot, unfortunately jamming the track for the sail, is out of his sight as he cannot see past his boom.

Mr. Robinson, seated amidships, is shouting, "Check the charts, check the charts."

Mr. Everts is struggling, trying to hoist the mainsail.

Mr. Collins is weaving a lifeline out of millions of words, unfortunately not waterproof.

Mr. Cutler is manfully controlling the tiller, his view hopelessly obstructed by the other bodies on the boat.

Tune in in two weeks for your next full report.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Pension Fund Runs Short And Nobody Knows Why

By MARY K. SHELL

SACRAMENTO (Capitol) — If the 500,000 employees of the State of California and local agencies are nervous about their pension fund they have good reason.

Even the state auditor general has thrown up his hands and filed a "disclaimer of personal opinion" after attempting for two years to determine the financial condition of the fund.

In a report filed recently by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, it is estimated the Public Employees Retirement System had a $602 million reserve deficiency in mid-1969. It can be assumed the condition is worse now, with rising ularies and rising retirement benefits.

What this means is that somebody (the state, the employees, or both) isn't putting enough money into the kitty each month to cover future obligations.

AFTER HIS TWO-YEAR examination of the PERS fund, Auditor General William E. Merrifield says it is impossible to make an analysis of the pension fund as a whole because of the inadequacy of financial reports of the system, which administers public pension programs for the State of California and local public agencies.

He says the known deficiency in actuarial reserves for state employees was $602 million as of June 30, 1969 and he has no idea what the shortage might be for local agency employees covered under the system.

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, chairman of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, says, "The report . . . "raises more questions than it answers."

NOBODY SEEMS TO KNOW how the pension fund for state employees came to be in arrears to the tune of some $602 million, and Merrifield says no recommendations, financial plans or timetables are offered as to how the state should make up the deficit.

He also reported there are no plans for determining the actuarial deficiency of local agencies to the pension fund or suggested plans for repayment.

The Public Employees Retirement System is not just a little savings account tucked away for a rainy day. PERS assets of $4.5 billion are within a few hundred million of those of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph and are larger than Pacific Gas and Electric, Wells Fargo Bank and Crocker National Bank resources.

The system is managed by an eight-member board of administration, consisting of a representative from the State Personnel Board, the director of the Department of Finance, a representative from the University of California, one each from a life insurance company and a bank (appointed by the governor), and three members elected from the active membership of the system.

This board has exclusive control and administration of the Public Employees Retirement Fund, administers the Legislators' Retirement Fund, the Old Age and Survivors' Insurance Revolving Fund, and the State Employees' Contingency Reserve Fund.

WHAT HAPPENS NOW is anybody's guess. The audit report could be shelved by the legislature to gather dust, which has happened before to audit reports. The condition of the fund could be duly "viewed with alarm" each year only to be corrected when there's no money left for retirement benefits.

Thomas, however, says his committee doesn't intend to let the matter drop.

Japan Struggles To Recapture Past Devoured By Progress

KYOTO, Japan — In the garden of the Nanzenji Temple the cut-leaf maples have turned every shade from russet and orange to scarlet. Against the dark conifers they are reflected in the still pond-like slow-burning fires. On a holiday thousands idle along the gravel paths, schoolboys and schoolgirls, uniformed members of the defense force, old women in stiff formal kimonos, their men in solemn black.

It is Japan in search of the past with a growing awareness that ancient roots are being lost to sight. Today identification with the landmarks of history has a new significance.

The overpowering drive of the last 25 years must count not just for affluence and success as measured by every economic index. With the prop of American patronage and protection suddenly pulled out, the Japanese are in search of their own reason for being. Here in Kyoto and nearby Nara the shrines and temples from the earliest centuries attract an endless pilgrimage from all the islands.

THE DRIVE that has pushed Japan to third place in the world's economy assaults the visitor like a force of nature. The great motorways linking the cities run night and day with a river of traffic. The rice paddies are being so rapidly pre-empted for buildings, rising on every side, that Japan has become an importer of rice.

In the rush of achieving a miraculous recovery from defeat and ruin there was no time to think about zoning and orderly development. So much was overrun in the fierce drive to build and produce. But now troubling questions are being asked about the threatened heritage of a time that formed the character of the Japanese people.

Will the Honda totally eclipse the tea ceremony? Does television — a saturation second only to the United States, 90 per cent of homes with one or more sets —mean the end of the arts of the geisha? That is becoming the stuff of partisan politics.

In the federal budget last year was $750 million to restore the 8th Century Heijo Palace in Nara. The plan calls not only for restoration but for buying up surrounding land threatened by developers in a 25-year program. Sharp debate in the diet preceded what economy-minded critics felt was an unwarranted extravagance.

AS MIRACULOUS as the recovery itself is the survival of pieces of the past. Thanks to American authorities on Japan's shrines, Nara and Kyoto were off-limits to U.S. bombers during the war. One remarkable survival is Hokke-ji, a Buddhist nunnery not far from Nara's famous deer park. It was first built by the Empress Komyo in the 7th Century as the mother house for all national nunneries.

The abbess, called the Monzeki, traditionally comes from the imperial or a noble family. The present monzeki, 45th in the line of succession, is a daughter of the house of the Marquis of Kuga. She gave up her name when she shaved her head to become the principal nun with duties that include a monthly visit to supervise each of Japan's leper colonies.

Her private apartment looks out on what is surely one of the most beautiful amal gardens in the world. It is a masterpiece of greens in every shade from the ground cover of moss to the ancient gnarled pines. Beside a curved stone bridge over the pond is a camellia tree with white blooms and against one wall are chrysanthemums extraordinary in size and range of color.

The monzeki, in a kimono of imperial purple, has a serenity that is more than detachment. It is part of the peace and quiet of the Hokke-ji. The padding feet of the nuns who come bringing tea are the only sounds that break the stillness.

A short distance away is the roar of the traffic, the crowded narrow streets, the shops that never seem to close, the blare of the radio prophesying still another Asian war. Here is one of the contradictions eluding not just the visitor of a few days or weeks but even westerners who have given long and devoted study to the phenomenon of a Japan that has known the heights and the depths of our time. Surviving shock after shock, an inward-turning society is determined to preserve and re-create the past as a core of strength and resolve.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

India, Pakistan Head Obstinately Into War

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Hatred between Moslem and Hindu inhabitants of the Indian subcontinent has flared into two India-Pakistan wars since independence in 1947 and seems on the verge of a third.

And, partly because this hatred goes so deep that it permeates both governments as well as the populace, efforts toward a peaceful settlement so far have been exercises in futility.

Despite repeated warnings from Secretary General Thant, the United Nations has done nothing, presumably because neither India nor Pakistan is sure of what support they might be able to muster, because neither the United States nor Russia has adopted any specific attitude beyond a warning of caution to both sides and because China remains a new and relatively untested influence in the U.N.

OFFICIALLY, PAKISTAN'S President Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan is attempting to put down a secessionist movement and thus preserve the integrity of Pakistan.

Officially, India regards settlement as an internal matter and says her troops have crossed into East Pakistan only as a matter of self defense.

KHAN'S HARSH suppression of a democratically expressed desire for autonomy in East Pakistan has fallen most heavily on East Pakistan's Hindu population. They make up the bulk of the reported nine million refugees now crowded into India.

It has been made clear that Khan does not want them back.

On the other hand, India's open support of Bangla Desh (an independent East Pakistan or East Bengal as the Indians see it) is something less than unselfish.

A broken up Pakistan would remove what the Indians always have regarded as a threat and leave India the clearly dominant power on the subcontinent.

This clearly is an Indian objective in the present conflict, to be obtained as quickly and cheaply as possible and preferably, of course, without full scale war.

BOTH COUNTRIES are suffering economic damage which neither can afford.

The attempt to put down the East Pakistan rebellion is said to be costing the Pakistan government $60 million a month, which, over a year's time, comes nearly to the total of Pakistan's entire budget of something over $800 million.

Foreign trade and aid are falling off, capital is fleeing the country and joblessness is mounting.

The same goes for India. Costs for aid to Pakistan refugees have been set at well over $500 million to which must be added hundreds of millions more in costs attributed to cyclones and floods.

Transportation facilities in both countries have been disrupted widely.

Who Says Our Supervisors Don't Eat High On The Hog?

The county supervisors' "test" night meeting in October was a long one.

However, all that moaning may not have been due to the lack of sleep they suffered (as was assumed), but rather indigestion.

It seems that during the meeting's 6 p.m. dinner break, each supervisor managed to wolf down $11.35 worth of food at the West End Villa in San Rafael.

That figure does not include any liquid fortifiers which might have been consumed.

Judging from the prices, it must have been an especially enjoyable dinner. A dinner made all the more enjoyable since they didn't have to pay for it.

UNDER COUNTY regulations, if an employee is forced to work past his dinner hour, the taxpayers pick up the tab.

Thus, our five hungry supervisors — who already have their noses in the public trough for $12,000 per year each — were able to write off the dinner to Marin's "affluent taxpayers."

During the three-month period from August through October, county property owners picked up the tab for $206.24 worth of meals by the supervisors.

Some $90 was spent by the supervisors and their "county administrator selection committee" during their July meeting to which the public was not invited.

The remainder can be divided up among supervisors attending various dinner and luncheon meetings, such as Supervisor Arnold Baptiste's bill of $7.56 for dinner at the regional criminal planning meeting.

SPEAKING OF BEING HAD — Youths attending Saturday's rock concert at the new Veterans Building have every right to think they've been had. They were.

Responding to advertisements promising two shows by three rock groups, a sizable number paid $3.50 and $4.50 for tickets to attend the late show.

At the appointed time (10:30 P.M.) they arrived full of expectations.

For the next hour or so they listened to the sounds of Delaney, Bonnie and Friends — the featured group.

Then, at about midnight, the lights came on and the announcement was made: "That's all folks."

"What's going on?" the late comers asked. "What about the other groups?"

They were told that due to poor attendance, the promoter of the shows had decided to give one long show (with each group performing once) instead of two not-so-long shows.

Those who purchased tickets for the early show got more than they figured, while those who purchased tickets for the late show got less — much less.

Marin Peace Officers Nominate Lafferty

Lt. M.D. Lafferty of the Novato Police Department has been nominated for 1972 president of the Marin County Peace Officers Association, to succeed Dist. Atty. Bruce Bales.

A slate headed by Lafferty was proposed by the nominating committee at the association's meeting Tuesday night at San Quentin Prison. Election will be Dec. 17 at the San Rafael Elks Club, with installation Jan. 22 at Hamilton Air Force Base Officers Club.

Besides Lafferty, the nominating committee's slate includes Sgt. Stan Laffsa of San Quentin, for first vice president; Officer Arthur Olson of the California Highway Patrol, for second vice president; Sgt. Henry Ingwersen of San Rafael police, for third vice president, and Arthur H. Fellows, former San Rafael police sergeant, to serve another term as secretary-treasurer.

The Olathe Red Cross notified the eight servicemen by telegram Tuesday night. The town brought seven local servicemen home from Indochina for Easter, and flew eight home last Christmas.

No Freeze On Lawyer Fees In Wonderful Phase Two

WASHINGTON — Awhile back I wrote an article in favor of no-fault insurance laws, which provide for people to be compensated for automobile accidents without the expensive process of litigation. To no one's surprise I received about 100 indignant letters from lawyers telling me I was trying to take the bread out of their mouths.

Well, I have good news for the legal profession. Whatever fees they lose on no-fault insurance, they will make up on President Nixon's Phase II economic plan. As a matter of fact, no matter what happens to the economy, lawyers stand to gain the most from whatever Mr. Nxon and his advisers have in store for the country.

THIS REALIZATION dawned on me when I tried for three days to get through to a lawyer friend of mine named Branch Brewmaker. Every time I called the line was busy, so I decided to go over to his office to find out if he was all right.

Was he all right? He was absolutely dancing around his office. "It's beautiful," he cried. "It's a lawyer's dream."

"What do you mean it's a lawyer's dream?"

"Phase II. No one understands it."

"No one?"

"No one," Brewmaker chortled. "My clients don't understand it, I don't understand it, no one in the government understands it. Do you have any idea of what this means in legal fees?"

"I GUESS IT MUST mean something or you wouldn't be bouncing up and down on your couch in your stockinged feet."

"Remember six months ago? How lousy I told you thing were for lawyers? Well, everything has changed. Thanks to Mr. Nxon we will soon own the world."

"Brewmaker, I can understand a certain amount of elation, but why are you throwing $5 bills out your window?"

"I'll show you why," he said, jumping off the couch. He went over to his intercom. "Miss Ramsay, whom do we have on 'hold'? Minow of Minow Earplugs, Inc? Good, put him on ... Hello Minow, Brewmaker here ... What's that? You want to know if you can raise the price of plastic earplugs! I can't tell you offhand, but I'll find out for you ... What's my fee? The usual $100 an hour ... Right, I'll get back to you as soon as Ihave the answer."

Brewmaker hung up. "Now watch this," he said to me, placing a clock in front of him. He dialed a number. "U.S. government? I wish to speak to someone in charge of raising the price of plastic earplugs ... No, don't hurry ... I'll hold on."

An hour and a half later Brewmaker had yet to find anyone in charge of earplugs. He said to me. "It usually takes about three days to get anyone to talk to me." He laughed. "Then it takes another three days to explain the problem. Then they always demand more information. Then I have to go over and see the guy. It takes a half-day to find him and a day to get in to see him. Then when I finally do, it turns out he's the wrong guy, and I have to start all over again."

"AND ALL THE TIME the clock is ticking," I said.

"I've had cases since Phase II started, and I've yet to get an answer out of anyone in the government on what my client can do. My phone is ringing day and night with desperate businessmen askingfor guidelines. The only thing I can do is put them on the meter."

"Nixon's been good to you," I said to Brewmaker.

Brewmaker's secretary came in. "Mr. Saladash f Saladash Corkscrews, Inc. has just hit a Cost of Living councilor on the jaw and wants to know if you'll defend him."

Brewmaker shook his head sadly. "I told Saladash not to appear at the Cost of Living Council without a lawyer. But I guess I can't blame him. If I made corkscrews and tried to find out from the government what I could charge for them, I'd eventually hit somebody, too."

Rose Kennedy's Writing Check

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy has received $1,525,000 from Doubleday & Co. for her autobiography, it was disclosed Wednesday.

A spokesman said the mother of the late President John F. Kennedy will donate the money —one of the highest prices ever paid for publication rights to an autobiography —to the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation for the Mentally Retarded.

Mrs. Kennedy, 81, began writing her autobiography a year ago and exepcts to complete it next year. Robert Coughlin, a former writer for Life Magazine, is collaborating.

City Employee Bill Rejected

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate yesterday overwhelmingly rejected a bill which would have prohibited charter cities and counties from requiring employes to live in the city in which they work.

The bill was defeated 12-13 after Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, said, "I don't believe it is any of the business of the legislature" where city employes live.

The bill by Assemblyman John Quimby, D-San Bernardino, would not have applied to Los Angeles or San Francisco.

It would have allowed charter cities to regulate how far an employe could live from his place of work. But it would have barred requirements that an employe actually live within the city of employment.

An Expert Defender Forgets The Principle Of Present Play

"What sort of hand does declarer hold?" is the question you must ask yourself when you are a defender. Forget about all the hands you can't beat and concentrate on the kind of beatable hand that declarer is most likely to hold. An expert defender lost sight of this principle during a national team selection match held in New Orleans a few weeks ago.

WITH ACE

West opened the six of clubs, and East naturally won with the ace. Now East gave his next play only cursory consideration (translation: no thought at all) and returned the queen of clubs to declarer's king.

Los Angeles expert Mike Lawrence, a member of the victorious Dallas Aces team, drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king, hoping that the queen would fall.

LAUNCHES SPADES

Undaunted by the moderately bad break in trumps, Lawrence began on the spades. All would go well if the spades were 3-3 or if West held four low spades.

As it happened, West followed to three rounds of spades, while declarer got rid of a diamond. Lawrence then led a fourth spade from dummy, discarding another diamond while West used up his trump trick. The defenders could then get only one diamond trick.

POOR EXCUSE

"I thought you had a singleton club," East stammered when his partner looked at him accusingly. This was, of course, possible; but it was far more likely that West had the king of diamonds. East should have led the three of diamonds at the second trick.

West would win with the king of diamonds and would return the jack of diamonds. After disposing of the diamonds East could return a club and hope that his partner had opened a singleton.

Newark Schools To Fly New Flag

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—The Newark Board of Education voted late Tuesday night to install the black liberation banner in every city school where a majority of pupils are black.

Hundreds of black students, dozens of whom had criticized the school system and the board during the lengthy, emotional meeting, greeted the resolution with wild cheering.

Lawrence Hamm, the city's newly-appointed 17-year-old board member, made the motion to place the red, black and green flag in Newark schools. The five board members present, four blacks and one Puerto Rican, unanimously approved the proposal.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Not-Fresh Food Could Wipe Out Vending Machine Advantages

Automatic vending machines have many built-in advantages that can be wiped out if the food is not fresh and those who maintain the units are careless. A properly serviced machine protects the user against dirt, insects, sneezes, and unnecessary handling of foods. Fortunately, 50 states are required to follow specific standards set by the vending code of the U.S. public health service. Basically, the safety of convenience foods involves a chain of sanitation. These precautions start at the source of supply, and depend upon conditions during storage, preparation, packaging, transportation, and vending.

CLEAN MACHINES vend quality products. The health of the routeman is as important as the food offered. Neatly pressed uniforms and scrupulously clean hands are a must when handling cups and servicing these machines. An annual chest X-ray protects the routeman and others. Areas in which these machines are located should be adequately lighted, and have trash containers with self-closing lids.

According to the vending code, cold perishables should be stored at 45 degrees Fahrenheit (or below). Hot foods require 140 degrees F. (or above), and frozen items keep best at zero Fahrenheit. Vending equipment should be constructed so that it can be taken apart, washed, sanitized and dried properly. Federally inspected meats and poultry prevent poisoning from contaminated items. Individually wrapped pastries packed in clean boxes with a protective covering, usually come from reliable bakeries.

THE MOST dangerous concoctions are snacks or other edibles that are mixtures of several ingredients, high in mositure content, and foods requiring considerable handling during preparation. Bacteria thrive in low salt, creamy foods, such as ham, chicken, or turkey salads, cream pies, potato and macaroni salad and puddings. Staph and other germs can't multiply in a cold environment. The critters are great hitchhikers — they get into foods via a sneeze, cough, hands, flies, and rats.

It is well to remember that contaminated foods may look and smell all right — tainted foods do not always have a bad odor or change in color.

ASPIRIN FOR CHILDREN

Mrs. D. F. M. writes: My daughter gives her child aspirin for every little cold and fever. What do you think of this practice?

REPLY

No harm, if she knows that the child's fever is caused by a common cold and not by sinusitis, pneumonia, or an ear infection. This is the main objection to home treatment.

PAINFUL JOINTS

B. writes: Could anemia cause aching joints in various parts of the body?

REPLY

No. Arthritis is a more logical cause for the manifestation. Anemia may coexist with an arthritic condition, but is is not responsible for the joint pain.

BOILS AND SOILS

T.O.H. writes: Is there anything in the soil that would cause a child to have boils?

REPLY

She'd Sue For Non-Arrest

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)— Susan Anne Menge, 23, wants to sue the California Highway Patrol for $35,000 on the grounds a patrolman was too lenient and did not arrest her for drunken driving when he should have.

Miss Menge's case contends that less than an hour after she was stopped by the officer who found her asleep in her car last May 17, her auto hit a tree near Camarillo and she was seriously injured. A blood test determined she was drunk, she said.

She would not have been hurt if the officer had arrested her, she contended.

A hearing will be held Dec. 13 in Ventura Superior Court on Miss Menge's request that she be allowed to sue the Highway Patrol, setting aside the 100-day limit usually required by law for the filing of a lawsuit against a state agency.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Planning Agency Compromise Fails

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A two-house conference committee's proposed compromise on legislation creating a regional planning agency for the San Francisco Bay Area has been rejected by the Senate.

It was the second defeat in the upper house for the measure by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond. The measure was scuttled when the senators rejected the report on a 17-16 vote.

However, Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, told colleagues the proposal may be returned to a second conference panel in an effort to iron out differences.

The main contention in the bill is a provision stricken by the conference committee. It called for a vote of the people next year before the agency could be established.

Instead, the conference plan recommended that the agency become effective Jan. 1, 1973, and that the voters decide in the November 1976 general election whether it should remain alive.

The agency would have planning authority and veto power over ordinances adopted by city and county governments in Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda, Contra Costa, Solano and Napa counties.

It would be empowered to draft development plans for transportation, open space, environmental quality control and parks in the eight-county region.

'Brain Drain'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A retirement bill aimed at preventing a "brain drain" from the legislature reached Gov. Ronald Reagan today, minus a special rider for two former lawmakers.

The proposal by Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, R-La Canada, was approved Wednesday by the Assembly 64-4 and by the Senate 22-11.

The bill is aimed at encouraging lawmakers to remain in the legislature instead of taking advantage of generous early retirement benefits during a reapportionment year. Lanterman said this would prevent a "brain drain" of talent.

In the Senate, a special amendment was added which would benefit state Controller Houston Flourney, a former assemblyman, and Don Mulford, who was defeated for reelection to the Assembly last year.

But the amendment was quietly dropped and the bill restored to its original shape. The amendment would have cut the 15 years service requirement of lawmakers to 14.

Aid To Crippled

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A coalition of Assembly Democrats and rebellious Republicans has failed in an attempt to overturn Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of $1.2 million for crippled children services.

"From a humanitarian standpoint, I plead with you to vote aye," Crown said, "If there is only one child in need, we should help him."

The override attempt fell far short of the 54 votes needed to reverse the veto. No Democrats voted to uphold the veto, and five Republicans voted against the governor.

No veto has been overridden since 1946.

BILL KILLED

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly committee Wednesday killed legislation incorporating Gov. Ronald Reagan's once-rejected plans for a new environmental agency.

Reaction from the governor was swift. He accused Assembly Democrats of "shameful and cynically partisan tactics" in defeating "one of the most significant environmental protection bills of the year."

The bill by Sen. Gordon Cologne, R-Indio, was held in the Assembly Natural Resources Committee by agreement of its members, committee chairman Edwin L. Z'berg, D-Sacramento, said.

He said the governor's charges were "ridiculous" and accused Reagan of trying to "blackjack" his environmental reorganization proposal through the legislature.

OVERRIDE FAILS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) Democrats failed Wednesday in a move to override Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of a bill requiring manufacturers to label over-the-counter drugs with potency expiration dates.

The override attempt by Assemblyman Robert Crown, D-Alameda, fell short, 41-28. It needed at least 54 votes.

GRAND JURIES

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly has rejected legislation allowing 18-year-olds to serve on county grand juries after opponents argued it would create more problems than it would solve.

The measure by Sen. George Zenovich, D-Fresno, failed Wednesday on a 31-38 vote with 41 votes needed for approval.

But its floor sponsor, Assemblyman Robert Crown, D-Alameda, who described the present grand jury system as "undemocratic," kept the bill technically alive by asking for reconsideration of the vote.

BAGLEY BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation aimed at helping California schools achieve peaceful integration and avoid court intervention has been passed by the Senate and returned to the Assembly.

The measure by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, cleared the Senate Wednesday on a 21-5 vote, the bare margin needed, and was sent back to the lower house for concurrence in amendments.

Sentencing Set On Grand Theft Count

Angelo Allegra, 46, of Novato, accused of grand theft by selling used cars with odometers rolled back, will be sentenced in Marin Superior Court on Dec. 27.

He has pleaded guilty to one count of grand theft in Marin Municipal Court.

Allegra worked for Timothy Daniel O'Donnell, 31, a former San Rafael police officer, who ran I and D Autos in Ignacio until about four months ago.

O'Donnell faces seven counts of felony grand theft in connection with odometer tampering. He is to plead to the charges Dec. 6 in Marin Municipal Court.

O'Donnell and Allegra were arrested last month after an extensive investigation by the state Department of Motor Vehicles. Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas said that O'Donnell bought used cars, rolled back odometers, and resold the cars at high prices on the basis of the low mileage.

Pollution Forms Out In Michigan

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Nearly 30,000 Michigan industries and commercial enterprises have received their first wastewater reporting forms from the Michigan Water Resources Commission to begin enforcement of the "Truth in Pollution Law."

BASKETBALL

San Rafael Falls 32-20

By LEW CODDINGTON

The personnel clearly belonged to San Rafael High School, but the game plan must have been borrowed from the San Francisco 49ers — excellent defense, failure to hang onto the ball, and ultimate defeat.

Visiting Washington High from The City defeated San Rafael's basketball team yesterday, 32-20, in a game that matched two fine 1-2-2 zone defenses and produced a 9-9 halftime score.

Originally the game was scheduled for Tuesday night — at least on San Rafael's calendar — but Washington thought otherwise and played St. Joseph's of Alameda instead.

WEREN'T SHOOTING

"I told the team at halftime that I was really proud of the defense," said San Rafael coach Mike Diaz, whose team is now 1-1. "We weren't shooting well, but that was mainly because of their (Washington's) defensive play. We lost the game because of turnovers and because we were out of place on rebounds."

Washington (now 2-2) broke the game open immediately after intermission by a variety of means, including sharp passing by Dave Ota and Dave Pang and good work underneat the boards by Mike Smallpage.

OUTREBOUNDED

Althougn giving away three or four inches per man, Washington outrebounded the Bulldogs for the game, 25-20, including a killing stretch in the third period when the visitors grabbed nine of 11 under San Rafael's bucket.

Harrassed by a press Washington used after getting the lead, San Rafael committed 12 ball-control errors to the Eagles' five.

As a result of all this, Washington seized a 24-11 lead early in the fourth quarter, forcing San Rafael out of its zone and bringing about a rash of fouls.

FARRAR HIGH

Smallpage was the only scorer in double figures. He hit 10 and Pang eight. Mark Farrar, who entered the game late for San Rafael, showed a nice shooting touch and was high with six.

The first half had people wondering if they hadn't wandered into a Green Bay-Minnesota game by mistake. San Rafael's zone was air-tight, but the visitors, who usually like to run, patiently worked their patterns for a couple of minutes at a time.

EARLY LEAD

San Rafael led, 7-2, but Washington gradually inched back into the game. For you statistics buffs, Washington then outscored San Rafael 22-4 over a 13½-minute stretch.

The Bulldogs shot 24 per cent on nine of 37; Washington converted 36 per cent, 13 of 36. Only three fouls were committed before intermission, two by Washington.

SEALS SMASHED — Minnesota North Stars' Lou Nanne (23) slammed the puck past California Seal goalie Lyle Carter enroute to the whiteshirts' 4-1 win Wednesday night. The loss dropped the traveling Seals to fourth place. (UPI Telephoto)

Golden Seals Lose 4-1

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Now that they've lost to the best in the West, maybe the California Golden Seals will figure the Chicago Black Hawks as softer touches.

Paced by Bill Goldsworthy's hat trick, the Minnesota North Stars beat the Seals 4-1 before 15,148 appreciative hometown fans Wednesday night. The Seals now return home for a date Friday night at the Coliseum-Arena against the Black Hawks, second best in the West.

The loss to the North Stars did three things: 1.) put Minnesota three points ahead of Chicago in first place in the NHL West, 2.) dropped the Seals from third to fourth place in the same division and 3.) showed that the Seals have goalie problems.

Lyle Carter started in goal for the Seals against the North Stars but he was replaced by Gilles Meloche after allowing three goals in the opening period, including two by Goldsworthy.

Meloche, who was bombed 5-2 in St. Louis Tuesday night, blanked the North Stars in the middle period but gave up Goldsworthy's third goal of the game in the final period.

California's Gary Jarrett ruined Cesare Maniago's bid for a shutout when he batted in Norm Ferguson's rebound at 7:31 of the second period while Maniago was down.

The last time the Seals and North Stars met in Oakland, Minnesota edged California 2-1 in a close-checking contest.

The Seals could not get their offense untracked against the defense-oriented Minnesotans. Solid checking coupled with Maniago's net acrobatics proved too much for the young Seals to overcome.

Tamalpais High School's basketball team will test its poise and its sense of direction against two San Francisco squads this weekend, headlining a schedule that sees all eight Marin County teams in action.

Tomorrow, Marin Catholic travels to face the College of Marin freshmen, 4 p.m.; Redwood entertains Lincoln of San Francisco, 7 o'clock; Drake journeys to Vallejo, 7; Terra Linda meets De Anza in Richmond, 8; San Rafael travels to Healdsburg, 8; and San Marin opens its season by visiting Rancho Cotate, 8:15.

Saturday, Novato treks to Petaluma, 7; Marin Catholic takes on Cardinal Newman in Santa Rosa, 7; and San Marin hosts Analy of Sebastopol, 8:15.

PLAYS RIORDAN

Tam (1-0) plays Riordan at St. Ignatius at 9 tomorrow, and meets St. Ignatius at Riordan at 9 Saturday. That is not a typographical error. Instead, it is a curious round-robin that also involves a fourth school, Lowell. The two schools not playing Tam play each other at 7:30 each evening. Got that?

"Both Riordan and SI are intelligent and experienced," said Tam coach Bernie Schneider. "They think on their feet and they don't beat themselves. We're going to have to go out and beat them."

The Indians won their opener against Petaluma Saturday, 75-58, using their speed and size to good effect and getting 28 points from hot-shooting Will Garner.

NEW COACH

Riordan has a new coach, Kevin Eagleson, who started for the Santa Clara team that nearly knocked UCLA out of the national playoffs two years ago. "He was a little hustling guard for that team," said Schneider, "and his Riordan team reflects his personality."

St. Ignatius gives away a lot of size to Tamalpais, but will challenge the Indians' quickness. "They have good shooters, too," Schneider noted.

"The point is not that we have so much height or so much speed," he went on. "The problem is coping with their intelligence and finesse."

Lincoln, always a power in San Francisco basketball, provides another in a series of early-season tests for Redwood. The Giants (2-0) won close games against Washington and Santa Rosa earlier.

Redwood always bites off large chunks in the early going, and this is the first time in recent history the Giants have won their opening pair. A quick transition from football to basketball by junior guard Mike Connor is one of the reasons, according to coach Dick Hart.

Terra Linda (2-1) is still in the experimental stage, and a dozen or so players are seeing action every game. Coach Bob Corley is gradually discovering who his top reserves are going to be and getting everyone acquainted with his fast-break attack under game conditions.

FACES VALLEJO

Drake (1-2), improving with each game, meets a tough opponent in Vallejo. The Solano Countians already have claimed one local victim, Novato, by a 56-39 count. Drake's John Channell emerges as a shooter Tuesday night in the victory over Analy of Sebastopol.

San Marin (0-0) meets a curious Rancho Cotate team. The Cougars played an awful stretch against Terra Linda Tuesday, getting outscored 44-14, then turned around to generate an effective press and overwhelmed the Trojans' reserves, 34-11.

San Marin gets Analy, Drake's recent victim, the next night. The Sebastopol team trailed most of the way against Drake, but always kept it close and made it almost too close at the end. San Marin's scores over this weekend may give a clue as to how well the Mustangs will fare against some MCAL rivals.

GOOD BALANCE

Marin Catholic (1-0) was more dominant in its 62-58 victory over St. Patrick's of Vallejo than the score showed. The Wildcats had good team balance and defense in their first outing.

San Rafael's Bulldogs will be trying to regain the rebounding (1-1) they showed in their opener against Sonoma and then lost yesterday against Washington. Healdsburg was a Terra Linda victim last Saturday by a wide 72-39 margin.

PETALUMA 'GOOD'

Novato (1-2) takes on the good Petaluma team that harrassed Tam for three quarters before falling. Novato's high-scoring Marty Moroski was in midseason form Tuesday night with 23 points in two quarters of play. Petaluma features a fine guard, Kevin Gilmore.

Perry Trade Prompts Mixed Reactions

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Now about that Gaylord Perry for Sam McDowell trade. It's the kind of thing that takes some chewing on and digesting before opinion is rendered.

My first reaction was one of utter distaste, because Gaylord happened to be one of my favorite Giants. He is gutsy and can be counted upon to take his turn on the mound every time it comes up. He gave 100 per cent, and perhaps 120 per cent when the umpires took away his spitball.

McDowell is said to be capable of becoming a 30-game winner and perhaps has the fastest fast ball in the major leagues. Yes, even faster than Vida Blue. He's a lefthander and Candlestick Park, because of its wind from left to right field, favors southpaws. Gaylord is 33 and the Sudden one from Cleveland is 29. That could total 80 games in the long run.

But on a one season basis, say 1972, the Giants still have only two really front line pitchers. Giving up a pitcher to get a pitcher doesn't add up to another pitcher, unless I've got that new math all wrong. The trade might amount to the difference of two or three wins, but the Giants still must come up with a third pitcher capable of being a consistent winner. You know, a guy like Gaylord Perry.

ACCORDING TO most reports, the Giants are still working on a trade with the Angels for pitcher Rudy May or all-star shortstop Jim Fregosi. With Fregosi on third, the Giants would have some kind of an infield. Fregosi became available when the Angels traded pitcher Dave LaRoche to Minnesota for shortstop Leo Cardenas.

The Angels organization is really looking for infielders, and that is why they traded to get Ken Johnson of Larkspur from the Yankee chain a few weeks back. The Angels have also signed another former Redwood High School baseballer in pitcher Jim LaTorre. Infielder Johnson had been playing for Manchester, N.H. of the Eastern League.

MAKING IT a clean sweep with the wire services, Oregon State defensive end Jim Sherbert, former gridder at Terra Linda High School, was named to the Associated Press All-Coast team. Last week he was named to the UPI All-West squad. Senior tackle Vern Kellerman of University of Pacific, former player at College of Marin, was on AP's All-Coast second team.

ANOTHER UOP player, safety Pete Carroll from Redwood High, a junior, ended the season as the fourth best pass stealer in the nation with eight interceptions in 11 games. Frank Polito of Villanova was No. 1 man in the country with 12 thefts.

According to the UOP sports information office, "Carroll was the defensive unit's most conspicuous player, intercepting eight passes and gaining respect with his vicious tackling. Guard Vern Kellerman was a steady, courageous performer all season — despite a host of painful injuries.

L.A. Gets Robinson; Allen Out

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers today traded slugging outfielder Richie Allen to the Chicago White Sox for two players and also obtained slugger Frank Robinson from the Baltimore Orioles in a six player trade.

In exchange for Allen, who hit .295 with 23 home runs in 1971, the Dodgers acquired pitcher Tommy John and infielder Steve Huntz.

Along with Robinson, who hit .281 with 28 homers this year, the Dodgers obtained left-handed pitcher Pete Reichert in exchange for four players — pitchers Doyle Alexander and Bob O'Brien, catcher Sergio Robles and first baseman-outfielder Royal Stillman.

Robinson, a mainstay for the Orioles since 1966, is the only player ever to be named most valuable player in both leagues — with the Cincinnati Reds in 1961 and with Baltimore in 1966.

The 36-year-old first baseman-outfielder has a lifetime batting average of over .300 and was a member of the National League All-Star team six times and the American League All-Star five times.

Sherman White Receives 2 Bear Awards

BERKELEY (UPI) — All-Coast defensive tackle Sherm White received the University of California's top two awards Wednesday night at the school's annual football banquet.

White won honors as the team's most valuable lineman and most valuable player.

Co-captain Ray Youngblood, a defensive back, won honors as the team's most inspirational player and the one with the most playing time, while the most courageous award went to linebacker Sam Garamendi.

Badger Pass Skiing Opens This Weekend

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK — Badger Pass ski area will open for the season Saturday and Sunday. Badger will be operating on a weekend schedule until Dec. 18, when it will go to a daily operation.

There are 22 inches of snow on the ground, with more snow expected today. All facilities, which include Chair Lift, T-Bar Lifts, Snowflake Room restaurant, rental shop, and bar will be open.

Texas Rangers In 8-Man Trade

PHOENIX (UPI)—The Texas Rangers obtained two players from the New York Yankees and then included them in an eight-player swap with the Cleveland Indians today in a burst of trading to open the final day of the winter baseball meetings.

Several other deals were understood near completion as the baseball moguls went through their final session, with third baseman Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs and shortstop Jim Fregosi of the California Angels the center of trade talks.

But it was the Rangers who broke a 36-hour trading logjam in the meetings by:

ALLEN PEDDLED

...trading Jones, Ley, centerfielder Del Unser and pitcher Dennis Riddleberger to the Indians for pitchers Rich Hand and Mike Paul, catcher Ken Suarez and outfielder Roy Foster.

Unser hit .255 with nine home runs with the Senators-Rangers this year and Riddleberger had a 3-1 record and a 3.21 earned run average. Suarez batted .203 in 50 games with the Indians and Foster hit .245. Hand was 2-6 and Paul 2-7 with Cleveland.

SANTO SOUGHT

Santo has been sought since the beginning of these meetings by several clubs and the Yankees are especially hot to get him, offering one of their front line pitchers such as Mel Stottlemyre and Fritz Peterson. Fregosi became trade bait early in the meeting when the Angels obtained another shortstop, Leo Cardenas, from Minnesota.

The formal meetings moved into their final stages after the most important action Wednesday took place off-stage. A blue-ribbon Washington, D. C. group met in a second secret meeting with the assembled club owners to demand a new team by the start of the 1973 season.

Rep. Bernie Sisk (D-Calif.), a leader in the four-man congressional delegation which was part of the Washington group, said the delegation was "pleased by the response" of the owners creating a special committee to work with them to find a way to bring a team to Washington.

CLOUDY SITUATION

However, the possibility of a new team for Washington remains cloudy.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, in announcing the formation of the committee, pointed out, "We did not guarantee a solution—we did guarantee to work to find out whether there is a solution."

One club head, president Mike Burke of the Yankees, called the appearance of the four congressmen and their insistence on the "necessity" of a new team, coupled with their remarks about baseball's legal problems, "a refined power play."

TEAM WANTED

Rep. Frank Horton (R-NY) announced after the Wednesday meeting that the group had presented to Kuhn a petition signed by 238 members of the House of Representatives "supporting a new baseball team for Washington."

Falcons Like Baltimore Says Raiders' Madden

"Like Baltimore, the Falcons like to establish the run and they have outstanding backs to do it," said Madden.

"They start with Jim Butler and Willie Belton, then use Art Malone, Harman Wages and Sonny Campbell. All five play."

Madden said Atlanta was "very physical" on defense while playing a lot of zone coverage in the secondary.

The Raiders meet the Falcons for the first time Sunday at Atlanta. Oakland is favored by three points.

Madden says he still doesn't know the availability of running back Marv Hubbard, defensive tackle Tom Keating, defensive end Harold Rice, tackle Bob Brown, linebacker Gus Otto and wide receiver Drew Buie. All have injuries or are coming off serious hurts.

"Keating probably will play more this week," said Madden, "but I don't know about Hubbard—he's still bothered by a bad shouldar and ankle.

"I won't decide until late in the week on Brown and Otto. I want us to be as strong as we possibly can for this game but it's too early to know if they'll be ready."

Tam Boosters To Sell Trees

Tamalpais High School boosters and athletes will sell Christmas trees in Mill Valley seven days a week until Dec. 23 to benefit the school's athletic program.

Trees will be sold from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the corner of Blithedale Ave. and Camino Alto, said boosters' president Casey Silewicz.

ABC Aide Defends Fight Show

NEW YORK (UPI)—Roone Arledge, president of sports for the American Broadcasting Company today stood firm behind the views taken on last week's Wide World of Sports telecast which ridiculed the Muhammed Ali-Buster Mathis fight.

Arledge answered the threats of Peers, Inc., and its president Jimmy Iselin, who manages Mathis, when he backed announcer Howard Cosell and the format of the show which featured highlights of the fight won by Ali.

"After reviewing the Ali-Mathis fight tape today, ABC is standing both on its presentation of the fight telecast and on Howard Cosell's comments during it," said Arledge. "There is no need to apologize for anything that was said."

49ers, Raiders Picked; Jim Sweeney Honored

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

STATELINE, Nev. — Harrah's Tahoe Racebook yesterday listed both the San Francisco 49ers and Oakland Raiders as slim choices to win their respective pro football games this weekend.

The Lake Tahoe/Reno casino quoted the 49ers as 2½-point choices over Kansas City in their Monday night game, and listed the Raiders as 3 point favorites over the Atlanta Falcons.

Other odds include: Saturday — Dallas over New York Jets by 7; Sunday — Detroit over Philadelphia by 13; Washington over New York Giants by 7; Miami over New England by 12; Cleveland over Cincinnati by 1; Baltimore over Buffalo by 16; Pittsburgh over Houston by 4; Los Angeles over New Orleans by 12; Minnesota over San Diego by 13; Denver over Chicago by 3; and St. Louis over Green Bay by 2.

In two college games, Penn State is a 12-point favorite over Tennessee, and Oklahoma is a lopsided 30-point choice over Oklahome State.

More Football

PULLMAN, Wash. — Washington State University Football coach Jim Sweeney has been named Kodak District 8 Coach of the Year for producing two "miracle" wins despite an overall unimpressive 4-7 season.

The clincher for Sweeney appeared to be his team's victories over Stanford and Oregon.

"This is a great honor for me," Sweeney said, "especially coming from such a large segment of the coaches association."

In 1966, Sweeney was named District Coach of the Year while directing Montana State to an 8-3 record.

BOSTON — Gino Cappelletti's love affair for football has little, if any, room for television and big business.

Cappelletti, who retired this year as the last of the original Boston — now New England — Patriots, told a gathering Wednesday night he was "concerned" that television and big business were becoming dominant in the sport.

"If this is allowed to happen and they take over the game, it will crush the players," said the old American Football League's all-time leading scorer, with 1,130 points.

AMES, Iowa — Ending speculation he would resign and take over the head coaching job at Baylor University, Iowa State head football coach Johnny Majors Wednesday signed a new five-year extension of his contract.

ATLANTA — Georgia Tech Athletic Director Bobby Dodd gave his personal backing today to football coach Bud Carson, seeking to squelch rumors that Carson is on his way out.

Dodd said it seemed "ridiculous that it should be necessary to endorse a coach who has brought his team along as well as coach Carson has this year (but) I know something should be done to stop the many rumors going around."

Basketball

SAN FRANCISCO — Funeral services will be Saturday morning for Pete Peletta, 43, athletic director and highly successful former basketball coach at the University of San Francisco.

Peletta died Wednesday in St. Mary's Hospital. He had been hospitalized Nov. 10 for exploratory surgery.

After coming to USF in 1960 from Monterey Peninsula Junior College, he guided the Dons to an overall record of 114-51. Peletta led the Dons to three consecutive basketball titles in the West Coast Athletic Fonerence and to a berth in the National Invitation Tournament in New York in 1965.

RALEIGH, N. C. — Captain Paul Coder led North Carolina State's basketball team onto the floor to a standing ovation Wednesday night, only hours after marijuana possession charges against him and teammate Bob Heuts were dismissed.

District Court Judge George F. Bason dismissed the charges Wednesday, ruling that police had gained alleged evidence against the two in an illegal search of an automobile.

Dolphins' Trio Tops Statistics

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Conference's weekly statistics offer three good reasons today why the Miami Dolphins have the best record in the National Football League.

They are quarterback Bob Griese, running back Larry Csonka and kicker Garo Yepremian.

San Francisco Leads In Statistical Race

Tight end Ted Kwalick continues to lead the NFC in pass catching with 42, four better than teammate Gene Washington.

San Francisco running backs Vic Washington and Ken Willard are third and fifth, respectively, in rushing. Washington has 697 yards, three more than Willard.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance!

Building From The Ground Up

By LEW CODDINGTON

Other men seem satisfied with coaching champions, but Imants Abers of Drake High School is different. He likes to build them — from the ground up.

The architect of a Marin County Athletic League championship soccer team, Abers now is coaching Drake's first-ever wrestling team. The difficulties are great, but he doesn't appear discouraged.

"The biggest problem is deciding what to teach," he says. "The kids can only absorb so much. You have to teach the fundamentals first, but wrestlers from other schools already know the finer points."

He has had difficulty getting students to try out for the team — only 17 showed up, and five weight classes will be unfilled.

"I don't know what it is," he said. "One problem seems to be that the smaller kids have been pushed around all their life, and it's hard to convince them they have an equal chance on the mat. But really it's very fair, with a weight division every eight pounds.

"Some say another reason is a falling down in hard work among the kids," he went on. "Wrestling takes dedication, and you can't depend on anyone else to help you out, as in a team sport."

Why did Abers get into this thicket? "Because wrestling is a great sport, and it's growing. I'm really enjoying myself coaching. The kids we have are very enthusiastic, and a large number are freshmen, so there is hope for the future."

Abers never coached wrestling before, although he was a physical education major in college, has attended numerous clinics, and claims a good knowledge of the sport.

Certainly his credentials as an architect are impressive. He was the moving force behind Drake's entry into soccer four years ago, when he asked for a signup, got 50 names and assembled a team. But building a wrestling team requires a different approach.

"The students at Drake have never seen wrestling and don't know what to expect," he said. "We haven't been promoting very much, either — it's not like Beverly Hills High School, where they have a 'Wrestling Week' and all sorts of other publicity.

"Also, there's a motivational problem. The kids don't have anybody to look up to. In soccer they had experienced players and stars from former years."

Abers says Drake athletic director Carl "Red" Brown was the main advocate of adopting wrestling. "We didn't do it before because facilities were limited, because nobody was pushing it, and because we had no coach," Abers said.

"But I'm really interested in this sport."

VAGABONDS — Novato High would do well to consider changing its team nickname from Hornets to Nomads. Novato plays its first 12 basketball games on the road this year, and officially won't see the inside of its own gym until January.

EYE IN THE SKY — In case you're wondering about the camera in Terra Linda's gym, the answer is that it's used to video-tape all the basketball games. The Trojans do it for other sports, too. Students in certain physical education classes run the operation. Shoot — you're on candid camera!

Cavs Crush Houston; Trail By 1

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

There's a new division contender in the National Basketball Association —and would you believe the Cleveland Cavaliers?

The Cavaliers had scored one victory in 23 games at this stage of the 1970-71 NBA race and were being ridiculed as one of the worst teams in pro basketball history.

But they moved past the Cincinnati Royals into second place in the Central Division of the Eastern Conference when they defeated the Houston Rockets, 116-106 Wednesday night and are now only one game behind the division-leading Baltimore Bullets. However, the Cavaliers have won five straight games and appear at least capable of maintaining their role as division contenders if not of taking the title.

The Chicago Bulls beat the Royals, 109-101, the Los Angeles Lakers downed the Boston Celtics, 124-111, the Philadelphia 76ers topped the Seattle SuperSonics, 102-98, the Atlanta Hawks defeated the Detroit Pistons, 117-103, and the Phoenix Suns whipped the Portland Trail Blazers, 139-103, in other Wednesday night games.

'MICKEY MOUSE OPEN'

Jack Nicklaus Plans Chase In Fund Race

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Golf great Jack Nicklaus plans to chase his World Cup teammate Lee Trevino down to the wire to try to claim top spot among this season's money winners.

Nicklaus, trailing Trevino by less than $16,000 going into today's start of the $150,000 Walt Disney World Open, said he would enter the Bahamas National Open at Freeport next week if he fails at Disney to overtake Trevino's earnings of $229,552 so far.

"The money tille is an important title," said Nicklaus. But, he added, "I wouldn't burn myself out in any one year in order to win it."

PALMER CONTENDS

Old pro Arnold Palmer also could move into first place among the money winners with the $30,000 going to the winner of this next-to-last stop on the PGA tour. Palmer has collected $200,706 so far this year.

Nicklaus and Floridian Bert Yancey both hit record 65s, seven under par, during Wednesday's pro-am rounds over Disney's Magnolia course, one of two golf tracks at the new $400 million resort center.

Yancey said the 6,924-yard layout is "an easy course" and added:

MICKEY MOUSE

"It's strictly a Mickey Mouse course. But it's ideal for what Disney wants—a place where people can relax. The fairways are wide and the greens are in excellent shape."

Nicklaus rated the Magnolia course, getting its first test under the cleats of pros, as "far better than the average course."

"I like the course," he said. "It's built to take play that comes from the hotels and it adapts reasonably well for tournaments. It does what it's meant to do."

YANCEY PREDICTS

Yancey predicted scores would be low as 144 of golfdom's top stars teed off for four rounds across a man-made lake from Disney's newest fantasyland.

Both Nicklaus and Yancey said the winner probably would come in at least 16 under par.

Nicklaus said the heavily-trapped golf course, carved out of Florida scrubland, offered amateurs an interesting afternoon while still presenting a challenge to the pros.

CHAMPION FIELD

"And that's not easy to accomplish," he said.

The field in this first so-called "Mickey Mouse Open" held all the past Masters champions since 1961, including Charles Coody, Billy Casper, George Archer, Bob Goalby, Gay Brewer, Nicklaus and Palmer.

Trevino has been taking shots to ease an attack of bursitis in his right arm, but he doesn't expect it to affect his play. The happy Mexican was also without the familiar bandage on his arm which covers the tattooed name of a former girlfriend—Ann.

Three strokes behind Nicklaus and Yancey in the pro-am scoring were Tommy Aaron and Dale Douglas, with 68s.

Sam McDowell Finally A Giant

Sam McDowell, now 29, finally is a Giant. When he was 17 he was ready to sign with the Giants. He had just pitched Central Catholic High of Pittsburgh to the Pennsylvania State Championship. He pitched a no-hitter and hit a home run to win the finale, 1-0.

There were lots of major league scouts in the stands that day in 1960. One of them was Charlie Fox. But it wasn't the first game Fox had seen the southpaw pitch. Fox, now manager of the Giants, was a Giant scout in the Pennsylvania-Ohio territory a decade ago. He had followed McDowell since he was a 15-year-old high school sophomore. The scout and high school boy had become good friends.

BUT AFTER McDowell's high school no-hitter and home run that won a state championship, Fox had to tell him: "I can't sign you. I haven't got enough money."

Fox explained to McDowell and his father, Tommy McDowell, a star quarterback at the University of Pittsburg in the 1930s, that the Giants had used all of their budgeted 1960 bonus money to sign two catchers — Randy Hundley and Dick Dietz. Hundley received a $115,000 bonus, Dietz $90,000.

SO HOOT EVERS and Bob Kennedy, a couple of Cleveland Indian scouts who were highly recommended to McDowell and his father by Fox, signed the high school whiz to an $85,000 bonus contract.

"If we hadn't tapped our bonus budget in 1960 Sam would have been with the Giants instead of Indians these past years," Fox recalled in a telephone conversation following Monday's trade in Phoenix of Gaylord Perry and Frank Duffy for McDowell.

Yet, Fox was sorry to see Perry go, as well as Duffy, the ex-Stanford star acquired for George Foster from Cincinnati at the end of May in this year's campaign as a backup shortstop man for Chris Speier.

"PERRY IS A great competitor," said Fox. "And Duffy is a young man with a potentially great future. But we needed a strong southpaw starter, a man like McDowell. I know his background from the time he was a skinny kid in high school. He is as determined a competitor as Perry."

Fox recalled that in 1959 the Giants traded Bill White and Ray Jablonski for Sam Jones who almost pitched the Giants to a pennant that year.

"Jones was a competitive strikeout man," said Fox. "So is McDowell. Candlestick Park fans are going to take him to their heart just as they did Sam Jones."

IS McDOWELL really a you-or-me pitcher against a batter?

"Ask Jack Hiatt," said Fox. "In a Cactus League exhibition game between the Giants and Indians a couple of years ago, Hiatt turned to the Indian catcher and asked 'Is that his fast ball?' The next pitch hit Hiatt in the ribs, felling him. "That's my fast ball,' said McDowell."

THE SKI SCENE

Improvements At Heavenly Valley

By CHARLIE COANE

Heavenly Valley seems to be the only ski area in the Sierra this season which has made any significant improvements on the mountain.

"With the addition of our new East Peak Chairlift," says boss Hugh Killebrew, "we have almost doubled the available skiing terrain for advanced and expert skiers."

The new chair begins on East Peak Mountain at 8,600 feet — the altitude at which most areas' lifts end. The short, steep chair measures 3,600 feet and rises to 9,600 feet. From the top, you can ski in any direction into Nevada or California from this new lift and connect with the other lifts. Advanced or expert skiers, without riding on another lift, could ski to any of three parking lots — the main lot where the lodge is located (West), the new parking area at the top of Kingsberry Grade (North), or the casino areas.

"There are groomed runs to the Kingsberry lot," said Killebrew, "but the runs to the Heavenly Valley West lot and the casino lots involve skiing through some trees and ungroomed areas. I wouldn't recommend that for intermediates, but it can be delightful for good skiers."

Restaurant and ticket facilities are available from either of the Heavenly Valley parking areas.

The men's Olympic downhill run, which begins at the top of East Peak, can be skied 4,000 vertical feet to its end. As yet, there's no chairlift back up, and a car would have to meet you if you ventured all the way down.

When one first arrives at Heavenly Valley, he is staring straight at the face of the famous gunbarrel run — a pretty good workout by anyone's standards.

Heavenly, too, has made the switch to the GLM (Graduated Length Method) of teaching people how to ski. There are 75 instructors on weekends and a learn-to-ski week package of lifts and lessons runs $62.50. Ticket booklets are also offered with 10, 15, 20 or 25 tickets in each book at a considerable savings over the daily $9 adult price. A children's season pass is a particular bargain — $100 for high schoolers on down.

The NASTAR (National Standard Race) is run only on Fridays in conjunction with the ski school. If enough people on weekends express an interest in NASTAR, Killebrew will consider it.

Heavenly Valley will host a World Cup Race Feb. 28 — March 5, including the downhill, giant slalom and slalom for men and women. All three events at one spot in America has not happened in a long time. The finest skiers in the world will compete.

Floridians Top Dallas; Advance To Third Place

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Floridians moved into third place in the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division Wednesday night—the hard way.

The Floridians jumped a notch in the Eastern standings by winning on the road —a 107-106 overtime triumph over the Dallas Chaps at Dallas, Tex. The Chaps forced the Floridians into overtime when Rich Jones' 15-foot jump shot tied the score at 94-94 after regulation but muffed a chance to tie the score again when George Johnson missed an eight-foot shot with six seconds left in overtime.

Mack Calvin's two free throws with 12 seconds left had given the Floridians their final margin. Calvin had 22 points, No. 2 on the Floridians behind Willie Long's 26 while Steve Jones scored 26 points for the Chaps.

The victory raised the Floridians' record to 11-14, a half-game ahead of the Pittsburgh Condors, who bowed to the Carolina Cougars, 118-117, in the only other Wednesday night game.

Ranger Romp Over Buffalo, 7-2

The New York Rangers are certainly a stingy lot — just ask the Buffalo Sabres.

The Sabres lost 7-2 Wednesday night to the defense-conscious Rangers. New York, which won the Vezina Trophy last season for allowing the fewest goals, maintained its two-point advantage in the Eastern Division with the win.

Montreal maintained its runnerup position behind New York by overcoming a two-goal deficit to beat the Los Angeles Kings, 5-3, and in other games the Pittsburgh Penguins ended a six-game losing streak by beating the Detroit Red Wings, 4-2, and the Toronto Maple Leafs beat the St. Louis Blues, 4-2.

Dog Signs Favorable For Amicable Peking Session

HONG KONG (UPI)—President Nixon (Ox) is scheduled to sweep into Peking only six days after the Chinese celebrate the New Year of the Rat, and the signs are favorable for an amicable meeting with Chairman Mao Tse-tung (Snake).

Talks with Premier Chou En-lai (Dog), despite his reputation for affability, may be another matter if the legends of the ancient Chinese horoscope are to be believed.

In olden days, it is likely the crash of cymbals and the sound and smell of firecrackers still would be reverberating in the Chinese capital in celebration of the first year in the 12-animal cycle of the Oriental zodiac.

But the no-nonsense leaders of the People's Repuboic of China have frowned on such frivolity and the New Year celebrations now are considerably more subdued. President Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Chinese people on Taiwan take care of the Dragon dances and the noise.

The Year of the Rat comes in on Feb. 15—Nixon is scheduled to arrive Feb. 21—to be followed by the years of the Ox, Tiger, Rabbit, Dragon, Snake, Horse, Sheep, Monkey, Cock, Dog and Pig.

Chairman Mao was born in 1893, the Year of the Snake; President Nixon was born in 1913, the Year of the Ox; and Premier Chou was born in 1898, the Year of the Dog.

There are wheels within wheels in Oriental mysticism, all mixed up with the relationships between the female symbol of yin and the male symbol of yang and the hour of day a person is born.

According to the signs of the zodiac, an Ox person is calm and relaxed, but self-assured and stubborn. Anger can bring on their downfall. An Ox leads a pleasant early life, in his middle phase he is likely to run into misfortune only to find success and tranquility in the final phase.

The snake people are sly and devious; they trust no one and they are unable to win the trust of others, but they pursue their ooals with absolutely selfless dedication and determination. They are intelligent and ruthless.

The first two phases of the life of a snake person are pretty good, but the final phase is not.

According to the ancient soothsayers the Ox (Nixon) and the Snake (Mao) are compatible. But the Ox should beware of the Dog (Chou), the Horse and the Sheep.

Dog-year people tend to live in luxury (of all the Chinese leaders only Chou was born to the upper class) and win a good reputation. They are dedicated to their tasks.

But their relationship is not good with the Ox, the Cock and worse with the Dragon and the Sheep.

'Harvey' Will Be Presented

A 1940s comedy about an invisible rabbit named Harvey will be presented by the drama department of Marin Catholic High school tomorrow and Saturday.

Performances of "Harvey" by Mary Chase are set for 8 p.m. each night in the school's gym.

Starring in the play are Shree White, Eileen Hicken, Sue Lyon, Lynn Donohue, Bill Larkins, Jeff Minardo and George Brown. The show is produced and directed by Rev. David M. Pettingill, head of the drama department.

The plot revolves around Elwood P. Dowd, played by Larkins, who has visions of a giant rabbit named Harvey.

Hair Length's A Burning Issue

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In the Fire Department, the length of hair still is a burning issue.

Fireman Michael W. Salmon, 25, pleaded guilty Tuesday before the Fire Commission to insubordination and disobedience—failing to get his locks cut as ordered.

Commissioners said they would decide his penalty later.

He previously had been suspended four days without pay, because his hair was too long.

Three other firemen and four officers have been suspended in San Francisco, either for having long hair or failing to enforce hair rules.

A HUG FOR NIXON

CHICAGO (UPI) —There's gold in those oceans —and if you can get it out it's all yours.

The total amount of gold in the world's seas, says Encyclopaedia Britannica, has been estimated at billions of tons. But as the concentration is .000006 parts gold per 1 million parts water no one has found an economical method of extracting it from the brine.

Sonoma Physicians's Plan To Ease Doctor's Load

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A proposal to use students refused admission to medical schools to help solve the growing shortage of young doctors was offered Wednesday to the American Medical Association's council on health manpower.

Dr. C. B. Andrews of Sonoma, Calif., said the basic reason for rejection to medical school was low qualifying grades, but "it should be remembered, however, that these are the young people who have a real interest in medicine."

During the three-day 25th annual clinical convention of the AMA, which ended Wednesday, Andrews said, "This pool comprises 53 per cent of all who apply for admission, and is estimated to be some 14,000 young men and women this year alone. The pool of those refused is growing at a rate of almost 40 per cent a year."

"I think that by giving the top section of this pool an opportunity to learn and to help, two worthwhile ends could be accomplished," he said. "The load on the doctors in geographically isolated areas, where assistance is not readily available, would be lessened; and hopefully a substantial portion of the assistants could later on qualify for reexamination for medical school matriculation."

Andrews suggested a program somewhat parallel to the Army's training of medical corpsmen, including two concentrated training periods of three months each.

The two training periods would be separated by nine months of practical clinical experience as trainee-assistants to doctors serving the lower income groups or in geographically isolated areas.

"I feel that after one or two years of this sort of supporting role, young candidates would be encouraged to apply again for re-examination in the medical schools," he said. "Today, these thousands who are interested in medicine are turned away from the profession, discouraged by refusal of admission.

"The screening program is necessarily strict because the laboratory, classroom and technical facilities are simply not able to accommodate all who want to enter.

"As assistants in private practice or in hospitals of the country towns, this bottleneck would be overcome and the better section of the applicants salvaged for future careers in medicine."

Dr. Malcolm C. Todd of Long Beach, Calif., chairman of the AMA council on health manpower, said of Andrews' plan that he was "impressed in that it coincides with some projects we have already going and is in concert with them. He comes from a small community 50 miles north of San Francisco and he wants to have this program where there can be relief in areas where doctors are not readily available."

Todd said Andrews' proposal would be reviewed and that the council could take it up at its meeting in Chicago Feb. 5.

"The medical profession itself looks upon the development of physician's assistants with some degree of caution but feels the concept provides new health manpower," Todd said. "If they are properly educated, they can serve a very vital role."

Thousands Carry TV In Indonesia

DKAJARTA (UPI) —About half of Indonesia's total population of 120 million are carriers of tuberculosis, although only 5 per cent are afflicted seriously enough to be a threat to others, according to a Health Ministry official.

Dr. Kusnadi of the government's tuberculosis eradication program said the largest group of sufferers from the disease are Indonesians between the ages 16 and 45, the most productive age group. The number of persons afflicted is estimated to increase by as much as 180,000 each year, Kusnadi said.

County Rejects Damage Claims

The Marin County Board of Supervisors has rejected damage claims totaling $2 million filed by the families of two San Quentin Prison guards killed during the Aug. 21 escape attempt.

The board's rejection came without comment Tuesday. All such claims are routinely rejected by the board under agreement with the county's insurance agent.

The claims were filed last month by the families of guards Jere P. Graham and Paul W. Krasenes, who were killed along with another guard and three inmates.

Countless List Of Museum Attractions

DETROIT (UPI) —One of the things to do at the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle in the Detroit River is listen to the chatter of ship-to-shore radio.

Or you can view the Detroit skyline through a submarine periscope, or take in the changing exhibits drawn from the museum's various collections such as cale ship models, marine paintings, shipboard relics and navigational equipment.

Novato's Betty Machado Wants Bridge Board Job

Betty J. Machado, twice an unsuccessful candidate for the Novato City Council, is seeking appointment to the Golden Gate Bridge District board.

Mrs. Machado said yesterday she has asked the Marin County Board of Supervisors to appoint her to the at-large seat from Marin, held by Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley, whose indefinite term will be up for review next Nov. 2.

With the bridge district in the transit business, serving North Marin, there should be a representative from North Marin on the board, she said.

Marin has three members on the board, Michael Wornum from the board of supervisors and C. Paul Bettini, San Rafael mayor, who is the representative from cities in Marin.

OTHER PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

By HARRY CRAFT

Gorsline Associates Plan Move To Terra Linda, Expansion

There is expansion in the plans of Lester Gorsline Associates, now at 1550 Tiburon Boulevard, which will move farther north to a new and larger home in Terra Linda at about the first of the year.

The company, which acts in a consultant capacity for hospitals and health institutions, has taken 5,300 square feet in the Holiday Plaza Building at 1050 Northgate Drive, covering the entire east wing on the second floor.

Lease was negotiated by George Denney of Grubb and Ellis Co., San Rafael, who is official leasing agent for the building. He reports that this will bring the Holiday Plaza up to about 65 or 70 per cent occupancy, with some prime space still available.

SPEAKING OF OFFICE SPACE, building permits for more than 5.5 acres of it have been issued so far this year in Marin County, according to the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

According to the chamber, new projects varied in size from 7,000 square feet to the 72,260 square feet contained in the new La Plaza building complex recently constructed by Johnny Ribeiro Builder at the front of Northgate Industrial Park.

As a result of the flow of new tenants into La Plaza, the tally of occupants at the park has probably risen considerably since the total of 224 that was shown early last September.

RICHARD B. KARNS of Mill Valley, former agricultural specialist for the National Real Estate Exchange in San Francisco, has joined West Coast Investment Associates as a sales representative. West Coast Investment is located at Pleasant Hill and specializes in finding properties for developers and for syndication. His previous associations were with Casale Enterprises as general sales manager, with Capital Funding and with the National Park Service.

THE NATIONAL FOOD INSURERS ASSOCIATION reports that small business concerns in certain California communities are eligible for increased amounts of flood insurance under the National Flood Insurance Program.

This is administered and funded in accordance with the requirements established by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in cooperation with the private insurance industry. Damage from flooding is not covered in standard property insurance policies.

Marin areas affected are said to be San Rafael, Corte Madera and Larkspur.

REGINALD JONES of San Rafael, former president of Pico Graphics Corp., and his partner Dawson Zaug have acquired Corporate Design Center of San Francisco, which previously operated as a division of Pico. Corporate Design, now renamed Unigraphics, will concentrate on graphic design and the production of annual reports. Jones remains a major shareholder and a director of Pico. He has been an art director and corporate designer for more than 20 years.

Jones Cook

ROY L. COOK of San Rafael, president of C.I.T. Financial Services, San Francisco, has been elected president of the California Loan and Finance Association. He joined C.I.T. as a field representative at Knoxville in 1940 and advanced through successive promotions to his present position.

The Electrical Consumption Up

NEW YORK (UPI) —Americans used 18 trillion kilowatt hours of power during the last 90 years and are expected to need an equal amount in the next 10 years, according to an industry source. Included will be large blocks of power to solve ecological problems and conserve resources.

THE SIMULATOR

This "6-year-old boy" is a member of a family of human simulators residing at Fisher Body Division's engineering facility in Warren, Mich. The engineer hooks a scale to the mannequin to weigh it as it is lifted onto the car seat. Built into the seat is a pressure-sensitive device which triggers a warning if the lap belt isn't used. The warning system becomes mandatory under federal standards on Jan. 1, 1972.

Profit-Taking Brakes Investors' Stock-Buying

NEW YORK (UPI) — Investors continued to buy stocks today, but at a slower pace than in recent sessions. Profit taking acted as a brake on demand.

While there was little concrete news to account for the market's sharp rise, analysts commented that the rally has apparently made investors forget about the recent uncertainties about the economy and Phase Two of the administration's economic program.

Also among the actives were American Telephone, Shell Oil, Pan American World Airways, Eastern Air Lines, United Utilities, and Goodyear Tire and Rubber.

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am interested in Reclamation Systems (OTC) which supposedly has a method of disposing of solid wastes. Could you give me information and advice on whether this would be good for the long term? I know it's probably speculative. — P.S.

A. And right your are. While Reclamation Systems does, indeed, have a solution to the well-pubticized problem of disposing of the nation's growing mountain of rubbish and refuse, the firm has also had some tough problems of its own to solve. The company is just recovering from a near disastrous fire which extensively damaged its sole plant. And, although improvements in the effectiveness of the burned-out facilities augur well for future profits, they may be slow in coming. Thus, with not a cent of revenue coming in right now, four-year-old Reclamation Systems must be regarded as highly speculative.

However, earning power and market potential are there. Output of solid waste may reach 720 million tons a year by 1980 — double today's volume. And, with municipal dumps fast filling up, they simply will not be able to cope with this load. Reclamation Systems' simple yet inventive way to handle this problem is to reduce the waste to very dense blocks which may then be hauled by railway to sanitary landfills.

Of the roughly 1.2 million common shares outstanding, 200,000 were issued to the public in May 1969.

Q. I have been grimly holding Kliklok (ASE) while it dropped from $32 to its present price near $10. Shall I continue to hold for recovery or sell? — R.N.

A. Since the latter part of 1969, Kliklok's earnings have been either flat or moving lower, a situation accompanied by the stock's decline. Results thus far for 1971 have shown no signs of improvement as per share net for the nine months to September fell 24 per cent to 60 cents on a 15 per cent drop in revenues.

Near term outlook is unexciting; and until Kliklok can turn operations around, shares may remain at or near present levels. Sell.
